Gay New Year Eve Din, Sin, and Gin Children Have New Game: What, No More War?

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1930, King Features, Syndicate, Inc.

THE learned Prof. James Mackaye of Dartmouth brings forth a new theory of the universe, pushing Einstein and relativity into the background.

The universe possesses a radiation of super-frequency and super-penetration, pervading all space.

The ether, which Einstein eliminated, returns, but it is a dynamic, not a static ether.

That deep news interests a few.

Secretary Mellon says 1930 will be a super-year, money abundant, interest rates low, business good.

That interests everybody, violently.

Infinite time, space and ether will take care of themselves; 1930 and business must be attended to at once.

Nineteen hundred and thirty is three days old.

Not fewer than a million good resolutions have been broken, more breakage will come later. But enough resolutions will be kept to provide the usual annual improvement.

New Year's eve, throughout the country, shed the usual light on prohibition, many prohibition raids, many arrests, unlimited whiskey, gin, etc.

A moving picture advertisement invites you to see an all-talking, singing and laughing play that, to quote the promoter, "shows amazingly girls to hire, for the out-of-town buyer. The road to din, sin and gin." That road is wide open in this year of our Lord.

One newspaper describes New Year's eve in New York as an effort to drown remembrance of margins wiped out, and, in spite of determined efforts of prohibition agents, as a "rather dismal, but doggedly drunken night."

At parties for young people, and in the so-called "best society," a new game for children is played. The younger boys ask an older boy of 16 or 17, "What time is it," and watch the younger American hold his wrist watch before his eyes and weave drunkenly to and fro, trying to focus his bleary sight. This seems delightfully amusing to the young boys.

For real information on youthful drunkenness, ask teachers in leading American preparatory schools.

A crop of drunkenness is being bred that will disgrace this country and injure the young American generation as oppressive child labor in England injured British youth in the last century.

However, New York, Chicago and other big wet cities are not all of the United States. In other places the nation's work goes on, as usual.

New roads, factories, dwellings, millions of automobiles are built, industries are perfected, even agriculture makes progress, with better machinery and Government credit.

In Lancaster, O., for instance, Mrs. Vincent Kemp had two sets of twins in 1929. The first pair came on January 4, last. The second on the last day of the year. That is the crop that counts, and neither vootleg liquor nor drugs will ruin it.

But the American rich, bringing up boys to drink vile gin and whiskey and girls to suck cigarette smoke through painted lips, would feel foolish if they could see their dear children 25 years hence.

General Smuts, able South African leader, is here to tell us that world wars are at an end.

Future wars, waged with poison gas and high explosives dropped on cities, with deadly bacteria used to spread devastating diseases, would be aimed first of all at civilians and armies and navies would play a minor part.

General Smuts says the world would not be so lunatic as to allow such a conflict to begin, but suppose Russia, having successfully completed her program to spend thirty billions and pass the United States in industry, wealth and power, should decide to teach capitalism a real lesson. Or suppose some Asiatic power, annoyed by race discrimination, preparing secretly the necessary airships, submarines and chemicals, should set out to rebuke western arrogance.

Does General Smuts think that regard for women and children would prevent an attack?

Human nature and government have not changed much since England turned loose hordes of red Indians, with tomahawks and scalping knives, among women and children in the American colonies. Those knives and hatchets were as painful as any poison gas. The fact that war could be made unspeakably horrible, with suc-

MELLON DEFENDS RUM KILLINGS

BAY STATER IS MOVIE PLANE AIR VICTIM

Pilot Hallock Rouse One of 10 Killed in the Crash; Navy Seeks Bodies of Seven

Santa Monica, Cal., Jan. 3 (INS)—The United States Navy today took charge of divers and diving operations in the deep sea search for the bodies of seven company staff men missing in the crash of two planes that claimed 10 lives.

Santa Monica, Cal., Jan. 3—The placid Pacific rolled gently today over the watery sepulchre of seven of the ten men who yesterday met a flaming death 3000 feet above the sea in catering to a public whim.

The charred and shattered bodies of the other three were in a morgue, where sorrowing relatives will claim them before the world forgets.

Search for the missing bodies was resumed at dawn. An investigation into the crash is under way.

One of the victims of the disaster, Lieut. Hallock Rouse, aged 29, formerly lived in Worcester, Mass. He was a son of the late Rev. Dr. Frederick T. Rouse, former pastor of Pilgrim Congregational Church, Worcester.

He was a pilot on one of the wrecked planes.

MAKING A "THRILLER"

The crash victims were making a motion picture thriller. Had they succeeded, the world would never have seen or known them. For they were behind-the-scenes-men—directors, cameramen, property men and airplane pilots.

Yesterday they soared out above the sea—two plane loads of men and cameras and equipment. They hovered over a third plane, waiting for a "stunt man" to drop toward the water with his parachute. They were to make a thrilling sequence in a story based on disappearance of Capt. Alfred Lowen-

GIRL DIED FROM ILLEGAL KNIFE

Lowell, Jan. 3—Regina McNally, 22, a Haverstraw, N. Y., school teacher, died at St. John's Hospital as a result of an illegal operation, Medical Examiner Marshall L. Alling today informed the police.

The young woman, a former Boston resident, had been visiting a cousin, Mrs. John F. Roane, of North Chelmsford. She was taken ill soon after Christmas and died shortly after being admitted to the hospital.

Police began an investigation under Chief Harold King of North Chelmsford. Authorities at Haverstraw were notified and a local physician was questioned.

5 Recognize Malden Youth as Holdup Man

The police of New England are making an intensive search for Paul Smith, alias Paul Hanson, 19, of Sydney st., Malden, on a warrant charging him with robbery while armed.

Malden police officials, who hold the robbery warrant, say the youth is also wanted for questioning as to his whereabouts when William F. Fendall, 64, was brutally murdered last night in his lunchroom and variety store in Saugus by one of three youths who held up and robbed him.

According to police officials the five holdup victims who identified Smith's picture included Edward Modeen and his fiancee, Theresa Lingbergh of Pleasant st., Malden, who narrowly escaped death New Year's Eve when they fled a group of robbers in Melrose and a hail of bullets; Peter Rennella of Broadway, Malden, who was held up New Year's morning near his home, and F. C. Adams of Salem st., Malden, whose home holdup men attempted to enter New Year's. All five persons said Smith appeared to be the leader of the holdup gang in each instance.

The warrant charging Smith with robbery while armed was procured by Lieut. Inspector John Linehan of Malden police yesterday after-

Astor's Two Wives Snub Each Other

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—One of the current sensations of society is the visit of Lady Ribblesdale, the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor (Ava Willing). To veteran society commentators she does not seem to have changed a whit since she was regarded as the most beautiful woman in American society.

It so happened that she and her successor as Mrs. John Jacob Astor, the former Madeline Force, now Mrs. William K. Dick, lunched at the same time at the Colony Club, but at different tables. There was no sign of recognition.

HOLDS COAST GUARDS ARE AUTHORIZED TO SHOOT RUNNERS

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Secretary Mellon today asserted that the coast guard had done nothing that was not justified and authorized under the law in firing on the liquor-smuggling boat Black Duck, which resulted in the death of three men.

BLACK DUCK WAS FIRED AT FROM ASTERN

Providence, Jan. 3 (AP)—State and government officials here today examined the rum-runner Black Duck at the State pier, and disclosed that all of the machine gun bullets which killed three men and wounded another Sunday morning aboard that vessel were fired from astern of the vessel by the coast guard.

The coast guard has claimed that the Black Duck was trying to escape when fired upon.

Answering Atty-Gen. Oscar L. Haitsen's request that the crew of the patrol boat 290 which raked the pilot house of the Black Duck with its machine gun be summoned from New London to testify at the Newport inquest in the three deaths, United States Attorney Henry M. Boss, Jr., said he would have to confer with higher federal authorities before ordering any of the crew to appear before an inquest or a grand jury.

A special session of the grand jury may be called within a week or ten days, Mr. Haitsen said, either in Providence or Newport to hear the facts of the case.

Atty.-Gen. Heitsen today released the names of the crew of the coast guard patrol boat 290, from which the machine gun bullets which killed the smugglers were fired.

He received the names from U. S. Atty. Henry M. Boss, Jr., who is the government's representative in the proceedings. They follow:

Boatswain Alexander C. Cornell, in charge of the 290.

Chief Motor Machinist's Mate Louis Johnson.

Boatswain's mate, first class, Louis W. Gavitt.

Motor machinist's mate, first class, Risden T. Bennett.

Mr. Mellon's statement was in line with those previously made by Rear Admiral Billard, Coast Guard commandant, and Assistant Secretary Lowman, both of whom had defended the Coast Guard.

SAYS WARNING GIVEN.

Secretary Mellon said that as much as the shooting was regretted, reports to him indicated that the Coast Guard was acting "entirely within their instructions and observing their duty in what they did.

"They gave warning, the boat was endeavoring to escape and they could not do less than they did," he added.

The Secretary, who returned to Washington today from a sea trip in Bahama waters, said the Coast Guard had information that the smugglers were attempting to run liquor into the United States and concentrated Coast Guard boats in that vicinity. The Black Duck, he said, was near the coast off Newport.

"The Coast Guard," Mellon said, "is authorized under the law to use force to stop boats. If they could not shoot they could not carry out their instructions.

"They give warning and pursue and if a boat does not stop it is necessary to use force. In these cases the men were violators of the law. They were smuggling liquor and it was the coast guard's duty to capture them."

FAVORS TRANSFER

Asserting that all reports of the coast guard indicated that "everything was regular and that they were justified in what they were doing," Mr. Mellon added "our men use force where it is absolutely necessary."

"The coast guard gave this boat warning and it was endeavoring to escape and the coast guard could not do less than they did."

The policy enforcement in general, the Secretary said he favored the transfer of the entire prohibition unit from the jurisdiction of the Treasury to the jurisdiction of the Department of Justice.

He pointed out that at present the Department of Justice prosecutes the cases that are developed by the prohibition bureau and expressed the belief that better cooperation could be obtained if both divisions were under the same department.

HUB MAN PROBES CASE

The secretary said the Treasury was having an independent investigation into the shooting of the smugglers, merely to bring out anything that had not as yet been learned.

He said this was being conducted by T. F. Finnegan, collector of customs at Boston, and Joseph E. McKenna, special customs agent from Washington, and George M. Murphy, customs agent from Providence.

Mr. Mellon declined to discuss any of the attacks made upon him by members of Congress or any of the statements regarding prohibition enforcement from the same force.

He asserted the personnel of the prohibition enforcement divisions was using every effort to enforce the prohibition law.

One of the major problems now confronting enforcement, he said, was the smuggling of liquor into this country from Canada and nearby foreign possesions, adding that progress had been made in preventing diversion of industrial alcohol for bootleg purposes.

URGES WARD 14 CIVIC BUILDING

Erection of a municipal building for Ward 14 at Franklin field to house a gymnasium, civic center, branch library, public auditorium and a branch hospital relief station is called for in a bill filed with the legislature today by Rep. Bernard Ginsburg of Dorchester.

"This section of Dorchester, Roxbury and Mattapan," Ginsburg said, "is the most thickly populated residential section in the state. There is no branch public library adequate to meet the needs of the people there, the city hospital is too distant, and gymnasium facilities are lacking."

It was his hope, he said, that the incoming administration will back his bill for this improvement, which is an acute needed.

Senator Fess of Ohio, a Republican dry, has suggested that Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, who has been severely condemning prohibition enforcement, be made chairman of the committee.

Would Make Illegal Searches a Felony

Washington, Jan. 3 (INS)—A bill to make federal prohibition agents who violate the search-and-seizure provisions of the law guilty of a felony is being drawn by Rep. John C. Schafer (R.) of Wisconsin and will be introduced in the House next week.

"Agents who violate the law in conducting illegal searches should be guilty of a felony," said Rep. Schafer, "just as the man who violates the Volstead law in selling a drink of liquor. We should play no favorites under the prohibition law."

GRAVE TAKES SAVIN, MILLIONAIRE, WHOSE NO. 4 WAS HIS MAID

'SON' TO SUE FOR HIS 20 MILLIONS

Brother-in-Law of the Eccentric Octogenarian Tells of When He Scrubbed Floors

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 3 (INS)—To a solitary grave today goes all the mystery and eccentricity that was Frank W. Savin, multi-millionaire, of Port Chester, mourned chiefly by his former chambermaid, now his widow, and members of her family, now servants on the great Savin estate.

Private services were conducted at Winchester Hall, the millionaire's palatial manse, which fronts the Boston post road, and is one of the show places of Westchester.

It was within the walls of this great house that the venerable Savin (for he was nearly 80 when he passed away) wooed and won four wives. On this estate he laid to rest the body of his second wife, the celebrated Sadie West. That was years ago, but her grave was revered, watched, some say, by him until the day he died.

"SON" TO CONTEST

With his passing Mrs. Savin, the former Anna May Schleis, chambermaid, comes into possession of some $20,000,000. Her right to this enormous wealth will be vigorously disputed. Chief among the claimants to a portion of the old man's wealth will be Charles Edy Monroe, once a foster son, but since disinherited, he said today. Monroe is 40 and totally without funds.

"On a Monday," Monroe said with a wry smile, "I was a millionaire. On the Wednesday following I was a pauper."

He was referring to that day three years ago when Savin decided to cut him off without a penny. This occurred, Monroe recalled today, two months after the aged millionaire had taken his chambermaid as his fourth wife.

At the time of his legal adoption as Savin's son, Monroe was 43. Actually, Monroe was Savin's brother-in-law, for he was a brother of Mrs. Sarah M. Treadwell, Savin's third bride. Mrs. Treadwell died in 1925 and Monroe was cut off two years later.

SCRUBBED THE FLOORS

Sitting in his hall bedroom, on the "other side of town," Monroe related incidents of the days when "Anna was my chambermaid, and Joe, her brother-in-law Joseph Chopski, now general manager of the Savin estate), was my valet.

"And I ran the whole shooting match at a cost of $60,000 per annum and the old man (Savin) used to get down on his hands and knees and scrub the floors of his laundry at 3 a. m.

"I used to ride around the town in my own car and have my own chauffeur, but those days——"

"Three years in a man's life can make a lot of difference. Why, I remember the day the old man married Anna. We tried to keep it quiet, for it seemed so utterly ridiculous. But Savin wanted some one to take care of him. He needed some one and there was Anna, and that was all there was to it. I never saw them in any affectionate pose.

"After the nuptials I said to Anna: 'Now, Anna, you must take your place at the head of the table.' Remember," he added, "I was ruining the show then, and she turned to me and said: 'I'd rather not. I'd feel more comfortable eating in the servants' quarters.'"

IS "SORRY FOR ANNA"

Monroe does not feel embittered toward the present mistress of the Savin mansion.

"I really feel sorry for Anna," he said. "She never wanted to give up her place as chambermaid and I don't think she ever did. She was always an excellent housekeeper.

"Rolls Royces and expensive machines mean nothing to her; she never rides in them."

Today the cars were parked neatly in the great garage which sets back from the manse. The Savin chauffeur, who has been in the employ of the old millionaire for 25 years, watched over them, polished them, but rarely takes them out.

Monroe, who, although practically penniless, keeps up the appearance of a country gentleman, practically confirmed the general gossip which wove a background of resplendent women around the life of Frank Savin.

Some years ago, Savin acted as broker for John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

The bridegroom was so well pleased with the state into which the minister ushered him that on each Christmas he has sent a substantial check to the Ponca City pastor.

Maryland Bride of Five Weeks Who Was Killed by 'Christmas Package' Bomb

Police are baffled in their probe of the "Christmas package" bomb which exploded as it was being opened in the Seat Pleasant (Md.) home of John Hall, killing his daughter, Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, a bride of five weeks, and wounding Mrs. John Hall and her four younger children. The "gift" is said to have been left at the home of a neighbor for the 18-year-old bride. The infant son of the Halls died in a hospital from his injuries. Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady was instantly killed as she opened a "Christmas gift" in the home of her parents in Seat Pleasant, Md. Neither police nor friends are able to cite a single enemy of the Hall family who might be guilty of such a crime. (International Newsreel photos.)

From Maid to Millions

EDDIE CANTOR Rises to Say:

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3—Papers report that on New Year's Day President Hoover shook hands with over 6000 men, women and children. Great thrill for these people, but dangerous to the health of our President.

Many of these handsome "handshooked" people carry all kinds of germs. Supposing Mr. Hoover was infected by the Democratic germ, for instance.

Imagine him calling on the Senate to abolish the Eighteenth Amendment and permitting grocery and drug stores to sell light wines and beer under government supervision, doing away with bootleggers, rum runners and corrupt prohibition agents—that would be terrible—and all through a measly Democratic germ.

Worse yet, Mr. Hoover might have "caught" a germ from some comedian. Then, my friends, would have been disastrous.

Picture our dignified President starting off with "did you hear the story about Sophie Tucker and the midget?"

TUG IS SUNK BY FERRY, 4 HURT

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—Running blindly in a dense fog which threw her two miles off her course, the ferryboat William R. Hearst crashed into the tugboat Mutual today at Beard's dry dock, Brooklyn, throwing 18 men into the water and injuring four of them seriously.

The tugboat, which was tied up at the breakwater, sank. Capt. Harry Bass, seven members of the crew of the Mutual, and 10 dry dock employes, standing on the breakwater, were tossed into the water.

Several other tugs rescued all of the men. The damage to the ferry, which had 150 passengers aboard, was only slight.

WAR ON 'SPECS' IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 3—Producers and managers representing 25 theaters met at the office of Gilbert Miller in the Empire Theater and made plans to halt ticket speculating.

The plan is based on the assumption that the evil in the situation is the custom of allowing ticket brokers to buy outright blocks of seats months in advance for successful plays and to force patrons to buy, seats for the less popular shows.

To end the "buy" evil the managers signed a resolution to send tickets to agents only on consignment provided the agencies bind themselves to make no "buy" for any theatrical attraction and to make no charge in excess of 75 cents a ticket.

Springfield, Jan. 3 (AP)—After 23 hours' deliberation a jury today reported a verdict of guilty against Filadelfio Siracusano of this city, tried on an indictment for attempted extortion of $5000 from Pasquale Falcone last August by means of "Black Hand" letters. Judge D. F. Dillon sentenced the defendant to 10 to 15 years in State Prison. Counsel for Siracusano gave notice of an appeal.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 3 (AP)—Struck by a snowball between the eyes, Frank Hartley, 20, is dead. Three days after he was hit he became unconscious and he died one day after reaching a hospital.

20 DEATH FROM 'GIFT' BOMB

Seat Pleasant, Md., Jan. 3—Police went to a farm near Marlboro after scarred nails had been found at the scene of the explosion which, on New Year's, killed one person outright, fatally injured a baby and sent six others to the hospital.

Baby Samuel Hall was the second victim to die.

Some of the nails concealed with the explosive under the Christmas wrappings of the package were said to have been traced to a farm where construction was under way, and authorities were understood to have placed two suspects under surveillance.

County officials said, however, that they were continuing their investigation and did not expect to make any arrest soon. The nails, a small coiled spring, a piece of copper wire and pieces of brown paper were the only shreds of evidence.

Questioning of the neighbors, relatives and friends of Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, who was killed by the explosion, failed to develop any positive avenue by which authorities could hope to move upon the sender of the bomb. Rumors of rejected suits and religious dissension gave no tangible basis for work. Aged 18, Mrs. Brady was a recent bride.

Maryland authorities hoped that federal experts might be able to determine the kind of explosive and bomb mechanism used in the package. They also planned to have the paper examined for watermarks that might give a clew to its source.

A message from the ship gave her position as 330 miles off Cape Flattery. The coast guard boats could not reach that position until late today.

The new society, organized to send "interpreters to various countries to explain the talkies in the language of the nation in which they are being shown, is not greeted very enthusiastically by the newspaper.

"Paris naturally will be the first place they will come to," laments the Soir. "They will hasten the internationalization of the French capital which is now only a matter of weeks.

"Before long French will be the ordinary language of only about 10 per cent of the Parisians, and the polyglot policemen will carry on their arms among other signs: 'French spoken.'"

GREATEST RADIO RELIEF PLAN IN U. S. HISTORY

Elaborate Precautions for Army Fliers on 3000-Mile "Arctic Patrol"

Washington, Jan. 3—Army fliers who will start on a 3000-mile Arctic patrol next week will be safeguarded by the most elaborate radio plan ever devised, the War Department has announced.

The fliers, forming the first pursuit group, not only will be in daily contact with the outside world by means of a short wave relay system organized by the American Radio Relay League, but will proceed under the protection of radio as a source of relief in case of forced landings or other troubles.

Through arrangements made by the War Department, the powerful short wave experiment station of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady will listen during the first 10 minutes of every flying hour for possible S.O.S signals on the flight from Mt. Clemens, Mich., to Spokane and return.

This additional safety precaution in connection with the pursuit maneuvers will enable villages and towns in the immediate vicinity of a mishap to dispatch help within the shortest possible space of time. If an SOS signal should be sent, it will immediately be re-broadcast to Army Air Corps posts in the western section of the country.

Also, arrangements will be made to have the SOS call sent out through regular broadcasting stations covering the northwest so that people living in the territory where a ship may be forced down will hear the call for help.

According to plans formulated by Maj. Ralph Royce, commanding officer of the flight, the army transport which will carry the radio set will start each day with the pursuit planes and follow the same route that the much faster single seaters will traverse at much higher speeds.

STEALS ANNE MORGAN'S COAT

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—A woman who allegedly exchanged a cheap fur coat for Miss Anne Morgan's $3000 ermine—without Miss Morgan's knowledge—was in the lineup at police headquarters today charged with grand larceny of the coat, owned by Miss Morgan, a sister of J. P. Morgan, has been revealed.

The woman gave her name as Irene Thompson, 27, and said she had been arrested in Brookline, Mass., Feb. 8, 1922, under the name of Mabel Smith and had served a prison term.

Miss Morgan's coat was taken from a hallway of the American Women's Association clubhouse in West 57th st. while the owner was attending a meeting of the association of which she is a president.

Brookline police records show that Sergt. Robert Evans in 1922 arrested a 23-year-old girl named Mabel Smith on a charge of larceny of clothing from the Chonta School for girls in Beacon st. The girl, who was sent to Sherburne on April 8 of that year, had other names of Mabel Norris and Hawins, Hutchinson, O'Connell and Starling. She is said by police to have used a final name of Bernardine with these other names.

Miss Smith was recalled as having been an attractive looking girl.

Chicago Budget Finally Adopted

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP)—After weeks of controversy Chicago's corporate budget was adopted early today with a 7 per cent cut in appropriations for the fire and police departments. Opposing aldermen claimed the cut would lop 704 policemen off the payroll, effective at once. Proponents of the decreased budget argued that present man power in both departments could be maintained by extra income from pending claims.

Passage of the budget ended fears of city employes that they would be unable to collect their pay checks on January 15.

Place for Women in Air, Lindbergh Says

Wichita, Kan., Jan. 3 (AP)—Charles A. Lindbergh believes that women have an important place in aviation.

Asked by a reporter here what he thought about the status of women in flying, Lindbergh smiled and replied:

"That's difficult, but I'll say this: Woman's part in aviation will parallel that which she assumed with automobiles. There's no reason why she shouldn't have a place in the field."

The Lindberghs inspected local equipment of the Transcontinental Air Transport today, preparatory to hopping off for Waynoka, Okla.

Borah Says Mabel Didn't Tell Him

Letters From Readers
OF THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

Some Vogue in Ways of Committing Suicide

Editor Boston American:

There seems at certain periods to be a style in committing suicide. For the past six months I have kept tabs concerning suicides caused by jumping from the upper stories of buildings. For the past three months there were 17 of this type of suicide and eight for the preceding three months.

Of course, some of these cases might be, or might not be, marked as suicides, but there being no explanation, I have placed them under the heading of suicides. Some psychologist among your readers might throw some light upon this method of doing away with life and its causes. J. K. L.

Federal Building Work Badly Needed

Editor Boston American:

The newspapers report one-half of the building trades idle, about 12,000 men, the largest number since the crisis in 1920. This is a serious situation and some attention should be paid to it.

Work on the new postoffice building should be quickened and Washington stirred up. At the recent meeting of the New England Council I offered a resolution calling on Washington to hasten the plans. This resolution was passed unanimously and sent to our senators and representatives. How much effect it has had is doubtful, because things move so slowly at the nation's Capitol unless constant pressure is exerted.

Let us hope that the sight of 12,000 building mechanics and laborers walking the street, looking for work will get our two senators and 16 representatives pounding at the door of those responsible for the construction of the building.

If Mr. Hoover's engineering mind and his efficiency system have value, this is the time to show it.

JOHN F. FITZGERALD.

Rum Killings and Capital Punishment

Editor Boston American:

It is not inconsistent for those who so strongly believe in the abolition of capital punishment to go on record in public print as justifying the killing of three men on board of the Black Duck, near Newport?

We see a close similarity between this event and murder, but these persons in their advocacy of the abolition of capital punishment strenuously argue against the taking of human life under any circumstance. L. E. F.

Marathon Bible Reading Condemned

Editor Boston American:

I do not want to be too outspoken in my criticism of the Marathon Bible Readers tournament at the First United Baptist Church, Lowell, but I cannot withdraw my objections to it. It gives no accurate knowledge of the 27 books of the New Testament. Such a feat in reading does not result in much except that readers have passed at a rapid rate through the pages of that book.

It is not edifying. It is not conducive to the popularity of the Bible. Better by far take one gospel and go through its contents thoroughly and master its contents than pass through hop-skip and jump method with it. Many others think as I do.

EVANGELIST.

Urges Open Mind as 1930 Resolution

Editor Boston American:

Put me down as one person worn out with reading the different controversies in politics, legislation and religion that abounds in many newspapers in this State. I have come to this conclusion at the beginning of the New Year; that the best that anyone can do in this life is to have a few first-class convictions touching some essential matters.

Everyone that is intelligent recognizes the plain duty of being fair-minded, open-minded and hospitably-minded. But don't be so open-minded as to be open-minded at both ends, so hospitably-minded as to be a trimmer and afraid to hurt people's feelings.

Don't shut your mind down. Keep it open. Other people have a right to their opinions. You are not so absolutely right that every one else is absolutely wrong. In other words don't pontificate with your mind. If you pass the year in this way, you will find more in others than you have found during the past year. J. K. L.

Urges Contributions to Hospital Fund

Editor Boston American:

One of the best pieces of news for the New Year is that the Massachusetts General Hospital is planning a new hospital for people of modern means with 300 beds. The rates will vary from $4.50 per day for single room to $4 a day for cubicles. Every one of moderate means, it strikes me, should give towards this much needed hospital, for no hospital has done a greater work than the Massachusetts General Hospital.

SEE SELECTIVE IMMIGRATION A BAR TO CRIME

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Selective immigration as a panacea for two of the nation's problems—racketeering and unemployment—and to improve economic conditions, is advocated by Harry E. Hull, recently reappointed by President Hoover as commissioner general of immigration.

It will be a happy New Year for the commissioner if Congress makes this system the foundation of the country's immigration policy. In Hull's sponsorship, he will have the support of the American Federation of Labor.

In contrast to the present system under which thousands of unneeded alien laborers are admitted annually, selective immigration would permit accepting only those who would aid industry, Mr. Hull said, and it would be based upon one simple formula.

"We would find out where a man is going," he said, "what he is going to do there and whether there is room for him under economic needs. If he intended engaging in some occupation in which there is already a surplus, he would not be admitted."

Several bills are pending to allow selective immigration to a limited extent, but none goes so far as the commissioner desires. Under his plan certain standards based upon the actual economic needs of the country as determined by the Secretaries of State, Commerce, Agriculture and Labor, would be set up, and aliens who failed to meet those qualifications would be barred.

Hull believes many countries would be unable to fill their present quotas under that system and that immigration probably would be reduced from 50,000 to 100,000 annually.

In support of his demand for preferential immigration the commissioner cited that in Europe there are upward of 2,000,000 persons seeking admittance to this country, while the annual quotas of the countries concerned are only about 150,000. Under the law those who have filed applications first would be admitted, although they might be coal miners, with experts much needed here in some particular field below them.

Stone Re-elected at Columbia Y. C.

John A. Stone was re-elected commodore of the Columbia Yacht Club at the annual election of officers held at the clubhouse on the Strandway, South Boston.

The other officers and committees elected were: Vice-commodore, George W. Wilson; rear-commodore, Dr. Julian Doherty; secretary, Theodore H. Campbell; treasurer, Fred C. Mackintosh; trustees for three years, Joseph F. Fitzgerald and John J. Kenney; membership committee, Robert J. Ambrose and Gustav Dauwer; auditing committee, Thomas F. Horan, James F. Gough and Thomas A. O'Connell.

NATIONAL CAPITAL MYSTERY SOLVED BY ACCIDENT

WASHINGTON—For six weeks Congressman Horace Frisby has been dashing in and out of drug stores, trampling old women and children in his nervous haste. Invariably he emerges from a drug store with a tightly bound package, which he holds tightly to his breast.

The congressman's strange action caused considerable talk, and it is no secret that secret service men were assigned to watch him.

Yesterday, as luck would have it, Mister Frisby accidentally walked directly into a telephone pole, bursting the mysterious paper package. Immediately the sidewalk was strewn with—what do you suppose?

Moth balls.

Scores of correspondents rushed to the scene, their sirens screaming, impatiently.

Frisby, despite a rather painful injury to his nose, which bled profusely, gave out the following statement—

"Several weeks ago I was standing in the Department of Agriculture wash room and overheard a gentleman say that ordinary moth balls were anathema—(sniff)—to gophers. As you know, our Western States are overrun by gophers. So I started to quietly buy up all the moth balls in the United States, and had intended, prior to my accident this morning, to organize a corporation to reclaim the Western States from gophers. Since my secret is out, I wish to say that I was also planning to present some of the moth balls to the Government, as I do not care to profit personally in any way in this matter."

After leading a cheer for himself, Congressman Frisby tried to pick up some of the spilled moth balls, and suffered severe injury to the fingers of his right hand. He finally departed, impatiently, on a street car.

BOSTON TO GET POWER FROM N. H. PLANT

Concord, N. J., Jan. 3 (AP)—Permission was today granted the Grafton Power Company by the New Hampshire Public Service Commission to construct a transmission line from its plants at Fifteen Mile Falls through New Hampshire to the Massachusetts line.

The development is located at Littleton and Monroe and the line will pass through 30 towns and cities, a distance of 126 miles. Over this transmission line from the development, which cost about $40,000,000, the company plans to send power for distribution to Massachusetts points in and about Boston through the Edison Electric Illuminating Company.

The commission, in granting authority, inserted the provision that export of power would be allowed only on the condition that authority "shall become null and void upon failure of the Grafton Power Company to conform to the lawful orders" of the Public Service Commission.

The Grafton Power Company intends to transmit its power to Tewksbury, Mass., over a high tension line at 220,000 volts. At Tewksbury the voltage will be stepped down and distributed to subsidiaries of the New England Power Association.

The development is capable, according to engineers, of producing 200,000 primary kilowatt hours and 10,000,000 secondary kilowatt hours.

In discussing export of power, the commission points out that such export is permitted "if in the State there is no available market at fair rates for energy."

PREFERS DEATH TO JAIL RETURN

Rockland, Me., Jan. 3—Preferring death to a return to the county jail, where he had just served a year's sentence, John H. Breen, formerly of East Boston, made good his threat and is in the Knox County Hospital, apparently in a critical condition.

Breen balked attempts of the combined police and sheriff forces, supplemented by members of the State Highway Police to take him into custody.

He had been at liberty only 36 hours when the police raided his house and seized two gallons of liquor. Bail in the sum of $500 was forfeited when Breen failed to appear in Municipal Court and the bondsmen began a search for him.

Police received a tip that he was hiding in the attic of his house, which was found to be the case. When convinced that the fugitive had suicidal intent, Marshal Webster discharged a small tear gas bomb into a passageway where Breen was secreted.

After the vapor cleared away Breen's protruding feet could be seen through the aperture. Fashioning a noose around his feet, the officers drew him into the open. Bleeding profusely from a throat gash, he was hurried to the hospital.

DIVORCE BASIC THEME OF 'LOVEJOY'

"Divorce is like a surgical operation—it is often necessary, but should be used only as a last resort."

In these words Beatrice Fairfax, world famous writer on love problems, sums up her attitude toward the problem which plays a big part in "Lovejoy," Beatrice Burton's new novel of modern marriage, which will begin in the Boston Evening American on January 10, one week from today.

Beatrice Fairfax

"Marriage," Miss Fairfax continued, "should be given a fair trial. People shouldn't let silly misunderstandings send them rushing to a divorce court. They should do a lot of thinking before they get married.

"Divorce is no longer considered a social evil. It is recognized as a necessity in many cases. But I do believe that everything possible should be done to make the marriage permanent.

"If, however, two people simply cannot reconcile themselves to continue together, they should get a divorce, if their conscience and religion will allow them to do so."

Do you agree with Miss Fairfax? Or are your ideas at variance with hers? Read "Lovejoy" and settle it for yourself. Remember, it begins January 10.

Lack of Flying Skill Blamed in 146 Air Fatalities

Paris, Jan. 3 (INS)—Lack of piloting skill was responsible for 146 of the 267 fatal accidents among French army and naval airmen in 1928, according to statistics made public today by the Air Ministry.

Lesser causes of fatal accidents included engine trouble, bad weather and landing conditions and defective material.

OFTEDAL LOSES FEDERAL PLUM

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—President Hoover has decided to withdraw from Senate consideration the nomination of Alf Oftedal to be internal revenue collector at San Francisco.

Senate action on the nomination has been held up as a result of a controversy between Senators Shortridge and Johnson of California, both Republicans. Shortridge favored confirmation.

Johnson has insisted that Oftedal, who formerly was assistant prohibition director, is not a resident of California and consequently should not be appointed. He also has complained that Oftedal was the selection of the "Benjamin machine" in San Francisco.

Blame Jews in Plot to Kill Arab Leader

Jerusalem, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Arab Press today said a conspiracy to murder the Arab Grand Mufti, religious and political leader, had been discovered. Jews were alleged to be responsible.

The police however said the reports were entirely false and that they knew nothing of it.

BURGLAR'S OWN PHILOSOPHY CONVICTS HIM

Hanover, Germany (AP)—The philosophy of a burglar, Vladimir Debbler, was paid in kind by the local criminal court. The judge agreed that Debbler might have been predestined to break the law, but by the same token he was fated to be punished.

After the prosecutor had proposed two years of penal servitude, the prisoner said:

"Gentlemen, you see in me the victim of an unswerving destiny. So-called freedom of decision does not exist.

"Every human action in this world is preordained. The causes are given by circumstances and the results inevitable. By my inclinations of character, for which I am not responsible, as they were born in me, by my upbringing, my experiences, I was fated to become what I am.

"If you, gentlemen, had been subjected to the same influence as I, you would also have committed the burglary.

"With this theory I am in good company. I refer you to Spinoza and Leibnis. Even St. Augustine and later Calvin attributed all human actions to the immutable decree of destiny.

"As I have only done what I had to do, you can never punish me and I therefore plead for my acquittal."

To which peroration the court answered:

"We have followed the prisoner's reasoning with attention. Whatever happens is the necessary and immutable sequel to preceding causes. Consequently the prisoner, by reason of his character and experience was fated by destiny to commit the burglary."

Liverpool to Have Police Women

Liverpool, England, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Corporation of Liverpool after deliberations lasting for several years has decided by a narrow majority to instal a limited number of women police. Thus far the corporation has simply granted £10,000 annually for expenses of volunteer women patrol members, who have had no official status.

The employment of women police is debated at intervals in almost every large city in England.

80-CAR FREIGHT TRAIN WRECK TIES UP B. & M.

Fitchburg, Jan. 3—An 80-car freight train was wrecked today and tied up all rail traffic between Gardner and Fitchburg for six hours, when five of the cars jumped the track on a curve during a thick fog.

The accident was at Whitmansville curve on a steep grade on the Boston & Maine line. An old wooden car used for coal hauling collapsed in part and buckled up four following cars.

Three cars were so badly smashed that they were rolled over an embankment 30 feet to a marsh. The five cars were in the middle of the long train which had two locomotives in front and one in the rear. The other cars were hauled back to the nearest station.

A wrecked car was thrown across the second track and prevented all traffic. Passengers were transferred to buses when trains reached this point.

To Keep All Roads Open

MANY DOCTORS ACCUSED IN N. Y. REPORT

New York, Jan. 3 (INS)—Charges that unnecessary operations are performed in certain New York city hospitals and that some are supervised by physicians inadequately trained are contained in the report of the New York Academy of Medicine, made public today.

The report condemns "glaring abuses of professional conduct which have become so common as to constitute a menace to the profession."

Commercialism among physicians, overcharging of patients and "half-baked" specialism are denounced.

The report was drawn up by a committee of 36 leading physicians of New York.

"The present method of medical testimony in the courts is highly unsatisfactory from the point of view of the courts as well as from the view of the dignity of the medical profession," the report says.

Dr. John A. Hartwell, president of the academy, appointed a committee to study and make recommendations "in regard to the legal definition of insanity" and on the question of expert testimony "where there is a psychiatric problem involved."

GOOD TEA NEEDS CARE

"Tea, to be really tea, should be brewed in the true English fashion," is the hint given American tea lovers by Lady Armstrong, wife of Sir Henry Armstrong, British Consul General in New York.

No bitter, long steeped liquid fills the tea cups when Lady Armstrong pours, nor does she serve tea from shimmering silver. She believes that the English way is the proper way to brew tea.

First fill a brown earthenware pot half full of boiling water. Let it stand until the pot is thoroughly heated. Then pour off the water. Use a tsp. of tea for each cup and one for the pot. The warm moistness of the pot expands the leaves and softens them.

Just as the water boils and while it is still boiling it is to be poured over the tea leaves and allowed to steep for five minutes. The tea must be poured while fresh and hot to preserve the delicate flavor.

"Most English people," added Lady Armstrong, "take milk—not cream or lemon—in their tea."

Fire Loss Drops

Lawrence, Jan. 3—Michael McPhee, chief of the fire department, has announced the city's fire losses for 1929 totalled $176,635, the lowest since 1922. Statistics showed that the death rate in 1929 was lower than in 1928 and marriages increased.

cess certain for the aggressive attacking party, makes it, if anything, more probable.

What answer, but one, could this country make, for instance if in one day a million human beings were wiped out in New York city, and the demand for complete submission were accompanied by a threat to destroy a million more next day.

Modern war can do to the biggest nation what one gunman does to a crowd of 20, surprised, and held up in a small room.

This country needs understanding of its danger and adequate preparation, not mushy, sentimental talk about world courts, brotherly love, no more war and other nonsense.

First prepare yourself, then talk to your brother sweetly and lovingly as you choose. It is not hard to pick a fight. Read the fable of the lamb and wolf drinking from the same brook.

"There was plenty of water for both, but the wolf wanted a quarrel, and got it."

Hypnotized

Miss Leone Berry, 19, a dancer, who has been given a third strange test of hypnotism, which is being employed in a Los Angeles hospital to rescue her permanently from a state of paralysis, by Dr. Cecil E. Reynolds, psychiatrist. Photo shows her after she claims she is completely cured. (International Newsreel photo.)

Dempsey Appointed

Among the first acts of Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton, was the appointment of James Dempsey, former Boston newspaperman, as his secretary. Dempsey is a resident of Newton.

CHECKERS MARK OF PURITY

Among the most valuable as well as popular of our cereal foods are the products recognized by their checkerboard packages. Quick-cooking oats, as well as ready-cooked oats and the good old-fashioned rolled oats, wheat flakes and whole wheat cereal all come in the attractive checkerboard packages and solve the problem of what to give children that is "good for them" and yet not tiring to their taste.

The makers of these cereal products have not sacrificed natural elements nor flavor for appearance, inasmuch as their cereals contain the whole wheat berry, but they are prepared in such appetizing forms that they satisfy the most finicky taste.

In corn, oats and rye, we know are very definite body building values—minerals to build strong bones and teeth, proteins and iron for solid flesh, muscle and red blood, carbohydrate for energy and vitamines for health, life and growth. In none of these checkerboard products are these necessary food values destroyed.

Scantic Line Opens Service to Portland

Portland, Me., Jan. 3 (AP)—The American Scantic Line, through its Portland agents, announced today that direct steamship service from this port to Poland and the Baltic sea would be inaugurated this month. The schedule calls for two sailings this month and one a month thereafter.

The line has operated a westbound service for several years, but no direct east-bound serfice. All of the steamers under the new schedule will touch at New York after leaving here.

Leaders at Funeral of Pope's Brother

Rome, Jan. 3 (AP)—Funeral services for Count Fermo Ratti, brother of Pope Pius XI, were held today at St. Mary's. The pontiff was not present. Count Ratti died Tuesday.

Monsignor Zampini, the Pope's secretary, said mass and Cardinal Locatelli, the first prince of the church to be created by Pius XI, imparted absolution. Most of the cardinals at Vatican City, members of the papal court, and the diplomatic corps accredited at the Vatican attended.

Holdup in Shadow of Police Headquarters

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 3 (AP)—Five bandits, masked and carrying pistols, held up the Caldas restaurant, a few yards from police headquarters today. The robbers escaped with only the contents of the register, about $150.

ACCURATE MEASURE COUNTS

We want to make a low bow of thanks to the woman who recently wrote us "It's a pleasure just to come to your school to watch your cooking methods. I have never seen the materials for a recipe all assembled on a tray before the cooking is started, nor was I a very firm believer in the necessity of absolutely accurate measurements until I began to realize that this same accurate measurement was what insures your cookery against failure."

I don't want to seem finicky, nor fussy nor over insistent on this measuring subject, but really and truly, if every one would select their recipes with care from a positively reliable source (being modest, of course, I can't say select a Martha Lee recipe), and would measure accurately and regulate the oven heat properly, there would be no choruses heard in the land, of "I don't know what was the matter with my doughnuts today—they're not as good as usual" —Or I had the worst luck today with my cake! Usually it's so good but last week it was awfully coarse and this week it fell. I'm just discouraged."

THREE KINDS OF CUPS

We have three kinds of measuring cups in the Martha Lee Kitchen and plenty of each. They are all standard cups, divided into thirds and quarters and holding ¼ pint each. But we have some of glass and some of aluminum that hold exactly a half pint and some of aluminum or glass that hold a little over a half pint, but with the half pint division clearly marked. These are for the more convenient handling of liquids (avoiding spilling).

For measuring solids, such as butter or other shortening, if a full cup is required, the moderately soft solid is packed firmly into the cup until it is filled evenly to the top. If, however, a quarter cup of butter is required, the cup is filled three-quarters full of cold water and then sufficient butter added to bring the measurement up to the cup mark. If a half cup of butter is needed, the cup is first, of course, filled half full of water. When the water is drained off the shortening is in no way injured by the moisture and you can be sure that you have an absolutely accurate half cup full.

Flour, powdered sugar, confectioner's sugar and brown sugar should be sifted lightly before they are measured. Measure by filling from a bowl with a spoon and do not shake the material down. If you dip a cup into the bowl you are apt to pack it down and get too much in the cup to give the best results. Fill the cup of dry material to overflowing and level it off with a spatula or knife.

TEST IT YOURSELF

If this seems too fussy to you, make this test for yourself. Take a cupful of flour out of the bag, sift it into a bowl, fill a cup with a spoon lightly and level it off. You will find much flour left in the bowl, although apparently you only had a cupful to start with.

Measuring spoons are equally important, and,for a thin dime you can get a complete set of measuring spoons including the tablespoon, dessertspoon, teaspoon, half teaspoon, quarter teaspoon and eighth teaspoon. The regulation teaspoon holds one-third of a tablespoon — that is, takes three teaspoons to fill one tablespoon.

A teaspoon or a tablespoon of liquid is all that the spoon will hold. A teaspoon or tablespoon of butter, lard or other fat should be packed solidly and leveled off with a knife. In most cases a spoonful of melted fat is the same as a spoonful of solid fat.

We sift our flour with the baking powder and salt onto a sheet of wax paper, gather up the sheet and add the flour alternately with the milk to our butter and sugar and egg mixture in cake making. We also use it as a bread board on our enameled table as well as for wrapping vegetables and meats — storaged in the electric refrigerator.

Extra Lesson Sheets Ready for the Asking

We still have a few lesson sheets left from Class VII, recently graduated, and will be very glad indeed to send these to members of the Martha Lee Women's Club who may care to drop Martha Lee a line for them. (A loose 2c stamp enclosed for return postage is appreciated.)

In writing for the extra lesson sheets just give your registered club membership number. If, however, you have delayed joining this fast-growing organization for New England, wouldn't you like me to send you your membership card and number today? There are no dues or obligations in this club but many worthwhile features and privileges for women interested in better homemaking. Address your letter to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, Mass.

MILK TEST FOR 41 BOYS

American parents will be interested in an important and far-reaching experiment recently conducted by the Medical Research Council of London, to determine the food value of various articles of the diet on children. A total of 220 boys were studied. Sixty-one of the boys were given a basic diet aimed to satisfy the growing appetites and apparently all that was needed for them. During the first year these boys increased in height 1.84 inches and gained on an average of 3.85 pounds.

Another group of 41 boys were fed a pint of milk a day in addition to the same basic diet. As a result their gain in height was 2.63 inches and their gain in weight 6.98 pounds, or 42 per cent gain in height and 81 per cent in weight over the basic gain.

I don't need to point any moral to adorn this tale, do I? Except perhaps that it is interesting to note that the extract from the report of the Medical Research Council states that "after 18 months a casual visitor entering the dining hall where the boys sit at table would never fail to recognize the ones who were receiving th extra ration of milk, as they were very evidently in much better physical condition than the other boys."

American Girl Weds Irish Yachtsman

London, Jan. 3 (AP)—An Irish-American wedding was celebrated this afternoon in St. Mark's Church, Audley st. Miss Janet Dempster Wiles, daughter of the late Thomas Wiles and Mrs. Wiles of Washington, D. C., was married to Austen Trevor Boyd ofBelfast, a widely-known yachtsman and the son of the head of a big Belfast distillery company.

Ice Cream Saves Old Tree From Axemen

Shrewsbury, N. J., Jan. 3 (AP)—With the help of ice cream a 161-year-old tree has been saved from destruction. Seven women entertained three workmen on a warm day and induced them to use spoons instead of axes. Meanwhile their husbands used oratory on the town fathers.

WALES MAY USE AN AIRPLANE IN AFRICA HUNT

London, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Prince of Wales probably will use an airplane to cover at least part of the territory on his hunting trip, which may take him over 10,000 miles of Central African territory, including considerable jungle country.

The prince will board the liner Kenilworth Castle at Southampton today for the voyage to Capetown, from where his African trip, interrupted last year by the serious illness of his father, will begin.

A half-dozen automobiles will be provided for his use in Africa, but it was feared recent rains will have made so many jungle tracks impassable that he will have to fly to Dodoma, Central Tanganyika, where he abandoned his tour last year. It is from Dodoma he actually will begin his new trip.

He is due at Capetown January 20 and probably will remain there some time with the Earl of Athlone. He is not expected to reach Dodoma before February 20. Before leaving South Africa Wales intends to visit districts where the natives recently have been disaffected. Among the districts to be visited is Durban.

An experienced big game hunter, Capt. Finch-Hatton brother of the Earl of Winchelsea, is arranging a program at Dodoma, where he will meet the prince and act as conductor for the trip.

Rev. Robert Parker Dies in Marblehead

Marblehead, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Rev. Robert Parker, 70, since 1925 rector emeritus of St. Michael's Episcopal Church, is dead at his home here after a long illness. He was a native of Shrewsbury, N. J.

Mr. Parker was graduated from Columbia College in 1881 and three years later from the Cambridge Theological Seminary. He held pastorates in Providence, Ipswich and North Andover, coming here in 1922. Besides his widow, a son, Robert, Jr., of Wayland, and a daughter, Charlotte E., of New York city, survive.

Sees Light Rain and Short Crops for 1930

Ottawa, Jan. 3 (AP)—Lighter rainfall, reduced crops, better radio reception, greater danger from forest fires, fewer electrical storms and increased fur production—these are some of the possibilities suggested by an astronomer for this year.

Dr. Ralph E. Delury of the Dominion observatory looks for a lessening of the sun's ultra-violet rays.

Globe Girdler

Michigan Chemist Wins Honor Medal

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—Dr. Herbert H. Dow of Midland, Mich., today was announced as the winner for 1929 of the Perkins medal, one of the highest awards in chemistry.

The award was made to Dow because of "his development of improvements in the production of chlorine, magnesium and numerous other chemical materials."

STIMSON RENTS PALACE FOR PARLEY

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Suiting both his personal inclinations and time-honored British custom, Secretary Stimson has chosen to surround the American delegation to the London naval parley with as much home-like atmosphere and informality as is compatible with the hard work it will face at the conference.

Not only will all the delegates and most of their principal advisers be accompanied by their wives or members of their families, but Mr. Stimson has leased a spacious country home in Middlesex where he expects to hold many informal conversations with representatives of other powers.

He will maintain an apartment at the Ritz-Carlton, official headquarters of the delegation, but on week-ends and whenever the pressure of business relaxes he will retire to the country.

Throughout his public life and especially since coming to Washington as Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson has made it a practice to discuss and dispose of as many important subjects as possible in the seclusion of his home.

The house selected by Mr. Stimson, which is the property of Sir Maurice Fitzgerald, has extensive facilities for entertainment, numbering 18 principal bedrooms. It has a private golf course and is near famous shooting and hunting country. None of the other American delegates is planning to establish themselves in the country and Warren House, the Stimson residence, will become an informal base for the delegation.

Reservations aboard the George Washington, on which the delegation will sail next week, have been made for Mrs. Stimson, Mrs. Charles Francis Adams, Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, Mrs. David Reed, Miss Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of the ambassador to Mexico, and for the wives of Admirals Pratt, Jones, Pringle, Varnell and Hepburn.

An escort of 10 marines will be taken along, but their chief function will be to serve as messengers rather than sentinels.

Sentence Brockton Boy for Truancy

Brockton, Jan. 3—Walter Rapp, vice-president of the Brockton Fair, who saved Eugene Hartwell, 13, of Falmouth ave. from being committed to the Union Training School for Boys in the District Court last Tuesday, was unable to help him when his case came up on a continuance. Attendance Officer Charles P. Brooks insisted that the boy be given corrective measures because of his persistent truancy, and the court imposed sentence to the school.

The Bond Half-Yearly

Sale

We stick to the old-fashioned idea that, above all else, these half-yearly events should win increased favor with our old customers; and add many new friends to our rapidly lengthening lists—and that high pressure ballyhoo is a mighty poor method of holding their confidence ▼ We believe that faultlessly fashioned style is just as important during a sale as during a season. We cannot bring ourselves to think that a man is willing to accept less fabric quality in January than he demands in October ▼ And so, we refuse to harbor "special purchases" of inferior goods, and odds-and-ends, for the sake of "dressing up" our price reductions ▼ We know that critical men appreciate this policy of ours. They've told us so, by giving us their business ▼ At the same time, we don't pretend to overlook the very timely importance of lowered prices—for in this established Half-Yearly Sale we are presenting abundant selections of our London-Designed

Radio via Sydney

S. S. Discovery, Dec. 31 (delayed) —Pack ice still besets us on all sides, and since our last message, when shallow water indicated the proximity of land near Latitude 67 South, we have made a tortuous track through the pack.

In endeavoring to go through to the West, we have been forced and driven North to Latitude 65, and today's position is Latitude South 66.11, Longitude East 66.10.

Since our last message, the blizzards have grown from mild flurries into gales reaching a maximum of 50 miles an hour, driving the Discovery further westward than we might have desired. Today we reached the edge of solid, unbroken, hummocky floe ice, definitely barring our progress to the south.

Then, with the coming of bright, clear weather, we were given the opportunity to try out our airplane. Pilot Campbell and Sergeant Douglas, mechanic, ascended to about 500 feet, sighting about 50 miles to the south what appeared to be low, hilly, ice-covered land, with a 40-mile belt of unbroken ice and then about 10 miles of coastal water intervening.

An excellent marine program was executed and our meteorological balloon ascended and observed to the height of 5000 feet.

The day ended with the celebration of New Year's Eve, when all drank to the good health of MacRobertson, to whose munificence the expedition is chiefly indebted for good, Yalumba port wine.

LA GUARDIA IN WAR ON JERSEY DRY CHIEF

New York, Jan. 3 (INS)—Congressman Fiorello H. La Guardia (R.), New York, has charged William J. Calhoun, prohibition administrator for New Jersey, with "gross dereliction of duty" in a telegram to the Treasury Department.

The telegram charges that federal raids in Atlantic Highlands, N. J., several months ago when Calhoun declared they smashed a huge liquor ring, were mostly faked.

"This is another instance demonstrating the the impossibility of the Government enforcing this unnatural law not wanted by a vast majority of the people," La Guardia's telegram declared.

"Liquor traffic in Calhoun's district is open and a large plant is operating right under the nose of officials.

"Padlocked places in his district are now operating in full blast.

"Why can't the treasury department be frank enough to admit existing conditions for the benefit of the legislative branch of the Government."

More Relief Sent Porto Rico Starving

Philadelphia, Jan. 3 (AP)—In response to an appeal of Gov. Theodore Roosevelt for food for the starving children of Porto Rico, it was announced today that the Presbyterian Board of National Missions has forwarded to its representative in Mayaguez $1000 for distribution among the needy throughout the island.

This brings to $116,481 the relief funds sent by the Presbyterian Board to Porto Rico after the hurricane disaster of September, 1928.

Solon's Letters Faked for Paroles

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP)—Willis E. Carter, ex-convict, confessed to police yesterday that he used forged stationery of Rep. Albert E. Carter of California for parole pleas on behalf of inmates of San Quentin penitentiary.

Carter was arrested after attempting to shoot two policemen. He was sought in connection with the alleged parole plot after Philip Valentine, son of the former head of the Wells-Fargo Express Co., and Mrs. Carter had been arrested on suspicion of forgery and burglary.

SECRET PROBE INTO FIRES AT AYER HOTEL

Ayer, Jan. 3—A secret investigation into the causes of the six fires at the Hotel Devens, owned by three young women, was held today in the Ayer district court by a representative of the state fire marshal.

The public as well as newspaper men were barred from the hearing. Twelve witnesses, including Alice, Marion and Lillian Davis, the owner-managers, were summoned.

Acting Fire Chief George Donahue told of the four upstairs blazes and two cellar ones, all within four days, over the last week-end. Burned matches and soaked oiled rags were found, but the fires were all checked rapidly.

No arrests will be made, if at all, until after the review next week of the court record of testimony.

FORD'S SKIPPER ADMITS GUILT

Providence, R. I., Jan. 3 (AP)—Capt. Oscar S. Anderson, commander of Edsel B. Ford's motor yacht Sialia, admitted at the conclusion of his hearing today before the board of the United States steamboat inspectors that he was steering the wrong course on the night of December 5 when the vessel was grounded on Hen and Chickens Reef in Buzzards Bay.

Facing trial on a general charge of negligence, Capt. Anderson appeared only slightly improved over his condition at a previous hearing on December 13, which had to be postponed when it appeared he would collapse because of nervousness. His testimony today was given in almost a whisper, and at times he failed to answer the questions of Capt. Robert B. Clark and Richard F. Bailey, members of the board. The case was taken under advisement.

MORE SERVICE GILCHRIST'S JUBILEE AIM

Seventy-five years ago.

The Salem of Boston swayed leisurely down tree-shaded streets in full panoply of hoopskirts and bustles. The dandies of the day sported trouser loops under their heels and wore beaver hats, even to business. Horse cars and coaches threaded the city streets and went far out into the country—to Brighton and to Dorchester.

Rumblings of unrest in the southward disturbed the political atmosphere. The Civil War was yet to come. The steamer Great Eastern was still the marvel of the age. Gas was coming into use for home and street lighting; electric lights were unknown.

Seventy-five years ago.

At Washington and Winter sts. George Turnbull & Company opened a dry goods store. Laces and flounces; yard goods and underwear; blankets and sheets, and the yards and yards of all the fabrics that women used were on the shelves. A little shop, but the parent of a great business.

George Turnbull & Company became Churchill & Watson Company, and later was to be known as Churchill, Gilchrist & Smith. Then the sign of R. & J. Gilchrist went over the door, and remained until simplified nearly 40 years ago into Gilchrist & Company, and in 1901 to The Gilchrist Company.

CELEBRATES JUBILEE

So today Gilchrist's enters upon the celebration of a Jubilee Year—a year of rejoicing for the achievements of the past, but more especially a year devoted to a forecast of the future.

Gayly decorated throughout in blue-green, magenta and black, the entire store is in gala attire for the occasion. On the outside a huge electrically illuminated diamond covers eight floors of the Washington st. facade, and sends its flashing message far down Summer st. to Church Green. Every window is dressed in carnival colors and is decorated with the diamond symbol of the Jubilee.

The formal opening of the Diamond Jubilee took place yesterday morning. At 8:30 o'clock 1500 employes of the Gilchrist Company assembled on the second floor of the store to greet the executives, and in particular to pay tribute to the president of the company, Felix Vorenberg, to whose vision and leadership is attributed much of the success and growth of the store in recent years.

Responding to a vigorous welcome, Mr. Vorenberg said in part: "We who have the responsibility for the direction of this business can take but little credit for its success and its popularity.

"Those of you in the ranks are the real builders, and it is your loyalty and the loyalty of those who have gone before you that has made this store successful. Without your cheerful co-operation, without your friendly service to our customers, we could have nothing like the store we have today. Executives may shape policies, but it is the men and the women in the ranks who make or break them."

Mr. Vorenberg then went into some detail concerning the history of the business and paid particular tribute to two employes who have been in the employ of the company for more than half a century: Robert Hearts, 60 years of service, and still at work every day; Thomas J. Lane, 54 years an employe, and still actively employed.

CURLEY SPEAKS

Mr. Vorenberg then introduced Mayor-elect James M Curley, who was given a rousing reception. Mr. Curley said that this was his first speech since election, but that he could not refuse to be present on such an occasion and to pay his tribute to such an organization and to those who were responsible for its position in the commercial life of the city.

Mr. Curley also said:

"The diamond jubilee of Gilchrist's is happily to be celebrated at the same time as the 300th anniversary of the establishment of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. The significance of one, politically, is no greater than the significance of the other commercially.

"In the span of our national life, 75 years is an important period. As a nation we are but twice that old. It is but a small segment of time as regards world history, but when taken as a unit of our business life it is a measurable achievement.

"To have been in business for three-fourths of a century and at the end of that time to be a respected leader with friends throughout New England is a noteworthy accomplishment and one upon which I congratulate you.

"That this success is yours, is not surprising. When one realizes that you of the Gilchrist Company are man and woman who regarded as such instead of being mere parts of a great machine, there is no cause for wondering at the spirit of loyalty and cooperation which we see and feel on every hand. It is that spirit which has made your store what it is today, and which will make it even greater in the years to come."

Interviewed after the mass meeting, President Vorenberg said: "We are all proud of the past and the things which this business has been able to do in the years that have gone by, but we are all of us more interested in the future.

PLAN FOR FUTURE

"Our plans for this Jubilee are not to glorify the past, although we view that past with reverence and pride. We are planning a celebration of the present and to build for the future. Our entire program is built around the thought expressed in our Jubilee announcements — 'Celebrating seventy-five years of growth with Boston, by giving greater value.'

"Each day in one or more of the store departments we shall have Jubilee specials, which we will endeavor to have outstanding in value giving. Instead of a Gilchrist celebration in which the store alone might share, we are planning a year long celebration in which all of our friends and customers will have a part.

"It is our hope to accomplish such a measure of value giving as will make it a real party, shared by thousands, and giving to those thousands a tangible expression of our pride in the past and our pledges for the future.

ALIVE AND ALERT

"Above all else, we must keep alive and alert, abreast with the times. Mastodons a million years of age are of scientific interest but of little practical value. Age in a store, of itself, means little. The spirit is what counts.

"The youthful, aggressive spirit of this store is what makes it great; is what will make it greater. When we placed an aviation beacon on this building in 1926, it was the first of its kind in Boston.

"We did not do it as a spectacular stunt, but as recognition of a new era in transportation. It is not an advertising idea—it is a symbol of progress and a beacon of the spirit of this entire organization."

Mr. Vorenberg then introduced Robert Hearts, who chatted interestingly about the early days of his association with the business. Starting as a clerk on the lace counter, Mr. Hearts has been a buyer, a floor superintendent and store superintendent.

He is now actively in charge of the store welfare work, directly under Mr. Vorenberg. Outstanding in Mr. Hearts's memory is the recollection of the manner in which he first obtained employment in the Turnbull store.

A raw country boy, just landed from the Provinces, he went into the store and sought employment. Turnbull talked with him and took the time to read every one of a large bundle of references presented by the lad. Then he put him to work.

FIRST WOMAN CLERK

"Store-keeping in those days," said Mr. Hearts "was much different from now. We had, for example only men clerks, and I remember very well what a lot of talk was made when we did finally have a woman in the store. She was in the shawl department, and hundreds of customers came in just to see for themselves if it was true that we had a woman salesperson.

"Another interesting thing was one day when Robert Gilchrist was looking over a salesman's samples. It was the custom in those days to interview salesmen right over the counters, and with the samples spread out over our own merchandise.

"One day when many salesmen, or drummers, as we called them then, had driven Mr. Gilchrist nearly to distraction, a hand organ man stopped outside the door and allowed his monkey to go inside. The monkey climbed up on the counter in front of Mr. Gilchrist, took off his little hat and bowed Mr. Gilchrist looked up, scowled and said, 'Well, who do you represent?'"

An interesting commentary on the business of those days is to be found in the advertisement of a women's ready-to-wear house of that period which appeared in a Boston weekly newspaper.

One cannot help wondering if 75 years from now, the messages which appear in the press today may not seem as odd to the year 2005 as those of 1855 seem to us of 1930.

It is, however, to 2005 and to all the years between that the present Gilchrist management is looking forward.

Proud of the record of service which is marked by this Jubilee celebration, Gilchrist's is building for the future—looking to give service to the present generation and to be the logical choice of those future generations which tread so close on the heels of today. Seventy-five years of service is not so much a goal as a starting point, and it is Gilchrist's pledge that the 12 months now ahead will be such a carnival of value and good will as will give tremendous momentum to the progress of the next 75 years.

Ex-Mayor to Edit Own Gloucester Paper

Gloucester, Jan. 3—After serving eight years as Mayor of Gloucester, having relinquished the office here on New Year's Day to his successor, Ex-Mayor Henry J. Parsons will enter the newspaper field.

Within a few days "The Joppa Liberty," a weekly newspaper, edited and published by Ex-Mayor Parsons, will make its appearance on the streets of Gloucester. It is sure to create much excitement, according to the former mayor.

Ex-Mayor Parsons' defeat for reelection last month by Col. John E. Parker created a surprise in this quiet town. Believing that a "job was done" on him, the former mayor decided to get back at some of his political enemies to avenge his defeat.

Parsons declared today that he was calling his paper "The Joppa Liberty" because the section that he resides in is known as Joppatown and the addition of "Liberty" means that everybody will get a square deal.

"There is always two sides to a story," said the ex-mayor today "Now I am going to publish my own newspaper and I am going to voice my opinion through the press of my own press, and tell the Gloucester people just what is going on."

Police Chiefs Talk About Legislation

The discussion of legislative matters of importance to police work occupied the greater part of the meeting of the Massachusetts Police Chiefs' Association at the American House.

Owing to the absence of Chief John F. Wash of Medford, president of the association, who has been on the sick list nearly two months, Chief Allan Rutherford of Brookline, secretary, occupied the chair. Nearly 50 members, including three new chiefs, were present.

REM checks Jean's cough

Jean Roberts of 1905 S. Belmont Ave., Indianapolis, had caught cold and had such a bad cough that school was out of the question. In fact, she could hardly speak above a whisper and the cough was so bad the whole family had spent several sleepless nights. Then her mother saw a REM ad, and father went to Walsers' Drug Store at Howard and McLain, reaching there just at closing time. "I gave Jean some REM right away", says Mrs. Roberts, "and she slept much better that night. Soon she was much better. I myself caught cold recently and had a terrible cough, but REM soon stopped it." When one member of a family once tries REM, it usually isn't long before it's the regular cough medicine for the whole household. Insist on REM—every druggist has it.

RECORD CROWD AT LONDON'S ART SHOW

London, Jan. 3 (INS)—Paying admission of only 35 cents each, another record crowd of art lovers swarmed into Burlington House today to view the exhibition of Italian masterpieces.

The exhibition is sponsored by Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy. The art galleries of his nation cooperated by loaning for the first time 350 of the great Italian masterpieces.

Nearly 200 works were sent from other countries, including the United States.

Never in history have so many masterpieces been gathered under one roof. Their total value is estimated at more than $100,000,000 those from Italy alone being insured for $70,000,000.

UNDER HEAVY GUARD

Armed Fascist sailors from the Italian warship that accompanied the pictures from Italy guard the exhibition day and night, hundreds of English detectives and special guards are scattered both inside and outside the gallery.

Among the 20 pictures from the United States are several of the finest in existence. This is the first time America has taken part in a European art exhibition on a large scale.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, former foreign minister, is responsible for the exhibition. While in Rome last April he suggested it to Mussolini as a wonderful opportunity for raising Italian prestige in the eyes of the world.

Within an hour Mussolini telegraphed the mayor of each town in Italy, ordering a search of all public and private art collections for the best examples of Italian art.

THROUGH GREAT STORM

All were shipped aboard the Italian steamer Leonardo Da Vinci, which battled terrific gales while en route to England.

One of the masterpieces is Giorgione's "Tempest," considered by experts to be the finest expression in art of a stormy landscape ever executed. Among the other Italian masters whose pictures are hanging together for the first time in history are Titian, Raphael, Tintoretto, Michelangelo and Leonardo Da Vinci.

Balmy Spell Near End in Washington

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Weather Bureau today predicted a definite end to the period of balmy weather which had its climax yesterday in the warmest January 2 Washington has had in 14 years. At 2 p. m. the temperature was officially recorded as 66 degrees.

The high water mark set yesterday has been exceeded but two times before in the capital from available records. On Jan. 2, 1910, a temperature of 70 was reached and on Jan. 2, 1876, 71.

Pearl Thief's Humor Not Funny to Cops

New York, Jan. 3—Search for a lost or stolen pearl necklace, valued at $30,000, has been turned in to a search for the person or persons who left it at a police station.

The necklace has been identified as the one Mrs. Mary H. Gilmore reported lost or stolen on Nov. 22. It turned up mysteriously on a desk in the detective room of the East 33th st. station.

Asst. Dist.-Atty. Harold Hastings, in charge of the investigation, said he planned to question several persons before presenting the case to the grand jury.

No one who saw the necklace placed on the desk could be found at the station, Hastings said.

Mrs. Gilmore missed the necklace while shopping on Fifth ave. On Dec. 11 her insurance company notified police they had received a telephone message offering to return the necklace for $10,000. On the advice of police, the insurance company attempted to complete the negotiations, but was unsuccessful.

Expectant Mother Dendied Probation

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Kavanaugh, 23-year-old expectant mother, who was convicted with her husband, Edward, of robbing the United Artists Theater safe of $12,000 last August, today was under a prison sentence of one to 15 years. Judge Emmet Wilson refused probation.

SMUTS AND OLD FOE MEET

Montreal, Jan. 3 (AP)—Two men, who faced each other as enemies during the South African war, renewed their acquaintance when Gen Jan Christian Smuts visited the United Services club just prior to his receipt of an honorary degree at McGill University.

Lieut.-Col. E. Gill, who was a corporal in the Yorkshire yeomanry during the South African war, was introduced to the guest.

"Do you remember when I brought you in for a parley under a white flag?" asked Gill.

"Yes, I remember being blindfolded and led within the British lines for a conference," replied the general.

"Well, I was on sentry duty when I saw two figures approaching in the distance. I fired, but you disappeared behind a farm house."

"Yes, I remember that," Smuts said.

PLANS A PLANE TO CARRY 170 PASSENGERS

Berlin, Jan. 3 (INS)—Plans for construction of a gigantic transoceanic plane capable of carrying 170 persons from Berlin to New York in a non-stop flight are being laid by Dr. Edmund Rumpler, German airplane engineer, it was learned today.

Dr. Rumpler, it is understood, will leave for New York sometime in February in an effort to enlist American backing in his enterprise.

The Rumpler flying boat will be built to carry 170 persons, including crew, for more than 4000 miles. It will dwarf in size the giant 12-motored Dornier Do-X, which carried 169 persons in an hour's flight over Lake Constance.

The D. O-X, however, cannot carry more than 35 persons for a distance of 2000 miles.

The Rumpler plane will in reality be a gigantic wing superimposed on two powerful boat-like floats. The motors and passenger cabins will be located in this huge wing, while the fuel will be stored in the floats. Ten motors, aggregating 10,000 horsepower, will supply the power needed to lift the craft's enormous weight of 123 tons.

Dr. Rumpler expects his machine to attain a speed of between 160 and 175 miles an hour.

2 Disabled Ships Due at St. John's N. F.

St. Johns, N. F., Jan. 3 (AP)—Two disabled ships, the Bal County and London Corporation, were due here today. The Bal County had her bows stove in above the waterline in a collision with the Cairn Line ship Bairnrak, 40 miles from here, and the London Corporation, Capt. Wenzrath, had her machinery damaged.

BULLET-PROOF VEST FOLLOWS CHICAGO VISIT

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP)—Lease is lease and vest is vest, but whether the twain shall meet depends upon G. I. Potter of Lafayette, Ind.

Potter, wrapped in a bullet-proof vest, was in town to transact a bit of business involving a lease. He acquired the lead-shedding waistcoat after the man with whom he was to deal began talking bottle.

Police, learning that a man was buying it, got on the trail. They shadowed him to a bank.

Potter's only purpose in going to the bank was to get money to pay for the vest. Police though thought he intended to rob the place.

When he drove away they pursued him. Potter thought it was Chicago gangsters and threw out his chest to take their bullets in the vest. Eventually the matter was explained satisfactorily.

Potter, in his iron shirt, called police again yesterday, demanding protection. He said that vest or no vest he was a virtual prisoner at 6036 Kenwood ave, because a mysterious voice had told him over the phone that he would be killed if he left the house.

Police assigned a guard. The gentleman from Indiana intimated that unless steps were taken to remedy the situation, he would return to Lafayette while the returning was good.

Rob Gem Salesman of $10,000 in Jewels

New York, Jan. 3 (INS)—Dumped into the gutter from a speeding automobile after having been abducted, beaten with pistol butts and iron rods, robbed of $10,600 in jewelry and $255 in cash, Isadore Koenigsberg, 41-year-old gem salesman, was in a serious condition today in Harlem Hospital.

BEAT NURSE IN JEALOUS RAGE

New Bedford, Jan. 3—That pretty Frances Warren of Middleboro, 18-year-old student nurse at St. Luke's Hospital here may have been the victim of the jealous rage of another female nurse was a new theory on which police were working today.

Miss Warren was hit over the head two days ago while she slept in her room at the nurses' home connected with the hospital.

She told Chief Inspector Walter Almond she did not know who hit her but thought it was a man.

From information received from another source today the police were including the possibility that a jealous girl or woman may have attacked the young nurse as she slept.

'SHOOT TO KILL' ORDER GIVEN IN STRIKE

New Orleans, Jan. 3 (AP)—Nearly a hundred heavily armed officers under orders to "shoot to [redacted] if necessary" patrolled the streets of New Orleans today after the dynamiting of two street cars had brought to 64 the number of trolleys blown up since the beginning of a carmen's strike last summer.

Authorities said the night had been quiet and reported no arrests.

Supt. of Police Theodore A. Ray, who placed all available patrolmen on guard duty, also instructed officers to charge any suspects taken into custody with violating an old State law which provides the death penalty for bombing.

Supt. Ray said he believed that "jitney" operators were "directly or indirectly responsible," for the persistent dynamiting of street cars.

Paris, Jan. 3—The Seine and Marne rivers are rising rapidly as result of heavy rains. The Marne has overflowed in the vicinity of Chalons-Sur-Marne. Workmen declare the Seine embankments in Paris to be sound enough to withstand any flood.

C. OF C. GUESTS TO HEAR TALK ON DIRIGIBLES

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

The last of the present series of Boston Chamber of Commerce members' luncheons will take place Jan. 16, and the feature of the luncheon will be an address by P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company and the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp., according to an announcement made by Theodore Holcomb, manager of the aviation bureau of the Chamber.

Litchfield will speak on both the automotive industry and air transportation, with appropriate remarks on the two dirigibles now under construction at the Akron, Ohio, plant. These two ships, the ZRS-4 and ZRS-5, will be the two largest ships of their type in the world, and are being built for the U. S Navy.

To compare the two ships now being built with the world famous Graf Zeppelin, one finds that the proposed ships will be almost twice as large as the German ship.

That the luncheon will assume the aspect of an aviation affair similar to the last one held, at which William B. Stout, the Ford tri-motor man, spoke, is assured by the invitation issued by Holcombe to all interested in aviation. Those desiring tickets may obtain them by writing Holcombe at the Chamber.

The history of the airport which was supposed to appear in the official program issued at the dedication of the Administration Building, was lost somewhere in transit, and three days' work of Holcombe went for naught.

He is planning to have the history printed in small booklet form, and issue it to all throughout New England.

Good idea, we think.

BALLOON WEATHER TESTS

The chap who reigns over the records of the flying weather at the Boston Airport, A. D. Ross, is now making night balloon observations for wind conditions aloft.

Heretofore, Ross has been making the observations in the morning and afternoon, but with the present 24-hour weather service at the airport, the need was felt for observations in the early morning hours and early evening. These observations are necessary for the proper laying out of the weather maps and such.

Now, by means of lighted balloons, Ross can be seen out on the airport, squinting through his theodolite, and watching the antics of the hydrogen-filled balloons on their way heavenward.

Another new wrinkle was unearthed in Ross' office while we were chatting with him. The broadcasting station at Castle Island sent a message on the teletype to the effect that the mail plane was on its way up from Newark, and a special weather report was desired by Pilot Pridham, sitting in the cockpit of his Pitcairn Mailwing, 150 miles south of Boston.

Ross punched out the last-minute weather on the teletype and a few minutes later Pridham knew by his radio that the weather was getting better and better here.

Such is the 1930 weather service to the boys who cruise the skylanes of America. As soon as Ross moves into the Administration Building, a still more complete service will be at the disposal of the pilots and commercial operators.

ROCKFORD FAREWELL

The farewell party to Dan Rockford, aviation editor of the Transcript, will be a sell-out, according to Lorraine Defren, who has charge of the reservations. All the boys at three local airports are planning to attend, as are the newspaper boys who write aviation.

Dan will be sent off to his new job as publicity and advertising manager for Pan-American Airways in royal fashion, and after the party at the Hotel Lenox is over, he will be positive that he has a load of friends in this man's town.

And in what manner!

With nice warm breezes ushering the new year in, the commercial boys at the airport got down to serious business, getting every student available into the air, and making the most of the spring-like weather.

Moths and Fledglings, Command-Aires and Stearmans, Travel Airs and Robins, all chasing each other around the sky, making landings and cavorting to their heart's content.

With the Wright 300 Whirlwind of Bound Airways' Travel Air monoplane all overhauled and installed in the ship, Dave Sher, general manager of the New Bedford company, and Hank Olden, chief pilot, are once more grinning at the world at large.

Dave had another motor put in his ship while his own was being gone over by East Coast Aircraft, and kept the ship in commission at the East Fairhaven field. The pair came up on the train, and flew home with the Whirlwind.

Patient Is Found Hiding in Hospital

Worcester, Jan. 3 — A search of eight days by state hospital officials and Worcester police for Joseph W. Gledhill, 46, of Park ave., this city, a patient who disappeared from the institution more than a week ago, ended when he was found comfortably established in a hiding place he created for himself in a ventilator shaft at the hospital.

Gledhill's retreat was discovered by a ward inspector, who found that the man had fixed up a nice little camp, and he has been getting his daily rations by making single-handed raids on food trucks that bring supplies to the hospital and have to pass close to his hiding place.

WOMAN SUICIDE, BUT HER SON ESCAPES

Pottsville, Pa., Jan. 3 (AP)—Firemen were grappling in Kauffmann's Dam, near here, today for the body of Mrs Thomas Price, who the authorities believe committed suicide after failing in her efforts to coax her 12-year-old son, Teddy, to walk to his death with her on the thin ice covering the dam.

Teddy told the police that his mother, after kneeling in prayer and begging him to die with her, had walked out on the ice until she broke through and drowned. The lad said he had broken from his mother's grasp when she attempted to drag him on the ice-covered dam and had rolled down a 60-foot embankment.

NEW HUNT FOR EIELSON

Nome, Alaska, Jan. 3 (AP)—A dog team driver today brought word to Nome that a plane was heard soaring over Pilgrim Springs 75 miles north of here in a mountainous district, at midnight New Year's day Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland disappeared while flying to for trading ship Nanuk, ice-bound at North Cape.

If other conditions permit, arrangements probably will be made today to send a plane to accout the area, those in charge of the Eielson search said.

If the plane heard was Eielson's it would indicate he had turned back for Alaska after finding it impossible to effect a landing because of darkness and fog after reaching the Alaskan mainland. It was said that he carried sufficient gasoline to have made the return trip easily.

The Pilgrim Springs district is an isolated section, with only a few inhabitants scattered many miles apart.

Natives in the North Cape area have reported seeing Eielson's plane within 60 miles of North Cape, flying in the direction of Alaska. There was a dense fog in the area, they said.

Heretofore Eielson was believed to have come down in the area of North Cape and all rescue operations have been aimed in that direction.

Hurls 2 Milk Cans Through Drug Store Window; Pinched

With William Daughtery of Stillman st., West End, under arrest, police today sought the motive prompting him, according to their allegations, to hurl two eight quart cans of milk through the display window of Metcalf's drug store at 555 Boylston st., Back Bay.

Patrolmen Adair and Pittgerald, who took Daughtery in custody, said they saw him in the act of hurling the second can.

8 NAVY SHIPS OFF FOR CUBA

Eight units of U. S. navy left Boston navy yard for Hampton Roads, Va., to meet the remainder of the fleet, and then proceed to the southern drill grounds off Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, for annual winter manoeuvres.

The eight ships are battleship New York, flagship of battleship division No. 3, with Rear Admiral H. E. Christy aboard; cruisers Raleigh and Detroit, with Rear Admiral Frank Clark on the latter, destroyers McFarland, Sturtevant, Childs, J. K. Paulding and Overton. The New York, flagship of Rear Admiral Christy, underwent minor repairs during her two weeks' stay here.

Sixty ships and more than 70 planes will go to the southern drill grounds. All are under way.

Ersking Smith, Noted Gold Miner, Is Dead

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 3 (AP)—Another link in the long chain of western pioneers snapped in the death here of A. Erskine Smith 63, mining broker, soldier of fortune and gentleman adventurer on three continents.

In Vancouver he was better known as "Coolgardie" Smith, a sobriquet gained in the gold diggings of Australia. He won and lost a half-dozen fortunes. He was worth a quarter of a million dollars at 22.

In the early '90's he won the amateur light-heavyweight boxing championship of Johannesburg.

In 1897 he answered the lure of gold in the Yukon. There he was a well-known figure among picturesque men of the time. He was the first man to shoot the dreaded White Horse rapids.

In later years he engaged in development of mining properties in British Columbia. He was born in Australia.

May Close Nomination

Washington, Jan. 3—The contested nomination of Ait Offrdahl to be collector of internal revenue at San Francisco, probably will be withdrawn by President Hoover, because of the complaint that the nominee is a resident of Maryland

COURT CLERK'S HOME BOMBED

Philadelphia, Jan. 3 (INS)—A dynamite bomb or grenade wrecked the front of the home of Robert Farley, clerk in the register of wills office, here early today. No one was injured.

A gaping hole was torn in the door and the vestibule door almost torn from its hinges. Farley, his wife and two daughters and a sister-in-law were asleep at the time.

Police have been unable to uncover any cause for the attack.

Men All Wrong on Dog Catcher's Job

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 3 (AP)—After two experiences with men as dog catchers, a woman today had the job.

Mrs. Lillian Lundahl will act without pay, being satisfied to see that the dogs are properly cared for.

Evanston's first dog catcher was Clarence Skinner. He lost his job because he was too good. He was so vigilant that even a high class dog dared not go far without his collar or Skinner would get him and take him for a ride, a term meaning the same in canine as in gangland.

Gene de Servi succeeded Skinner. He took office with the slogan, "Every dog will have his day and every day will have its dog." One of the exploits for which De Servi long will be remembered was his conquest of the iron dog. Mr. De Servi, always jealous, thought the iron dog was a real dog. He leaped and grabbed it and sprained his hand severely.

Mrs. Lundahl will not actually catch dogs. Whenever she hears of a dog that needs catching she will tell the police.

GERMANS FIGHT SANCTIONS AT THE HAGUE

The Hague, Jan. 3 (AP)—Final trimming, expansion and revision of the young plan was the object today of representatives of thirteen nations meeting here for the second conference on reparations.

When they have concluded their labors — unless some unforeseen hitch develops — the Young plan will be referred back to the governments for ratification and its schedule of annuities over 58 years actually will replace the present Dawes plan annuities scale.

A meeting of from ten days to two weeks was hoped for, but there were those not so sanguine that pending matters could be disposed of in that time.

Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, hopes to leave here in time for the meeting of the council of the League of Nations January 13 while several of the delegates here will attend the London naval conference opening January 21.

The problem which possibly will bring most discussion and draw national lines clearest, it was expected here today, will be Germany's demand that the idea of sanctions be eliminated from the creditor nations' reparation policy.

Although parliamentary ratification has not been given it, the German government has pledged its good faith in acceptance of the Young plan, and announced its intention to abide by its provisions, but in the event some circumstance should bring about a cessation of payments the Reich does no desire to have the Rhineland reoccupied, or other penalties imposed to exact further cash.

With Bank 50 Years

Keene, N. H., Jan. 3—Walter R. Porter, cashier of the Chesire National Bank of this city, received congratulations on rounding out 50 years' service with the bank. His father, the late Royal H. Porter, also had served 50 years with the same bank.

U. S. Cuts Debt More Than Billion in 1929

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—A decrease of more than $1,000,000,000 in the public debt of the United States in the last 12 months was shown today in the Treasury statement for December.

The gross debt of the nation on December 31, 1928, was $17,309,749,-135, while on last Tuesday it amounted to $16,300,221,301.

The debt reached its highest peak on August 21, 1919, the figures being $26,596,701,645.

On the last day of the old year which ended the first six months of the 1930 fiscal year the Treasury had collected $2,077,538,361 from all sources and had expended $1,963,-894,861, leaving a surplus of $91,-644,554.

In the same period last year the income amounted to $1,867,638,075, while the expenditures were $2,036,-111,722.

Income taxes again played an important part in increasing the government revenues, amounting to $1,185,317,880 in the six months as compared with $1,012,705,591 in the same months of the previous year.

BURY 50 CHILD FIRE VICTIMS

Paisley, Scotland, Jan. 3 (AP)—Inhabitants of this grief stricken town today witnessed another act in the tragic drama of the Cinema fire which Tuesday snuffed out the lives of 72 children living here.

Fifty of the child victims were buried. Business life was hushed, and flags were dropped to half mast on public buildings. Blinds on residences were drawn as the hearses at brief intervals for five hours carried the tiny coffins through silent streets to the cemeteries.

Large crowds lined the roads to Hawkhead cemetery where nearly 50 graves have been prepared. Funerals for the remaining victims will be held tomorrow.

Name Receivers for Submarine Boat Co.

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Irving Trust Co. and Henry R. Sutphin today were appointed receivers in equity for the Submarine Boat Co., which has been petitioned into receivership both in Newark, N. J., and San Francisco. The company maintains offices in both those cities and New York. Liabilities of the Submarine Boat Co., as of Dec. 31, 1929, are set forth as approximately $3,340,000, and assets as $4,772,850.

Barbourville, Ky., Jan. 3 (AP)—T. W. Minton, 79, owner of the nationally-known Hickory Mountain stable of show horses, died at his home here early today after an illness of only three days.

CUSTOMS MEN TO OPERATE AIR PATROL

Newport, R. I., Jan. 3 (INS)—Alleged wholesale liquor smuggling at this point will be combatted by a large "flying squadron" of customs officials operating their own patrol boats and under the direction of the office of Secretary of Treasury Andrew W. Mellon at Washington.

This became known this afternoon when Frank J. Finnegan, deputy collector of customs at Boston, who has been conducting an investigation here, summoned a squad of customs men to this district.

The new "rum patrol" to stamp out the smuggling from the sea will not be under the jurisdiction of the coast guard, but under that of customs officials.

Salem Jail Trusty Makes His Escape

Salem, Jan. 3 (AP)—Harry E. Sweeney, 25, a trusty, escaped from the county jail here today, where he was serving a sentence for robbery. Sweeney was assisting with the prison mess when he escaped. On December 26 three other prisoners escaped from the jail, one of whom is still at large.

Protests Awarding of Mail Contracts

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—J. E. Sheedy, president of the United States Steamship Lines, today protested the awarding of mail contracts to the Kermit Roosevelt Steamship Line at a hearing before Assistant Postmaster-General W. Irving Glover, asserting that "putting Americans in competition with Americans where foreign competition is rife, can spell nothing but failure."

Doug and Mary Back

San Francisco, Jan. 3 (INS)—Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford returned to their home in Los Angeles today after a four months' tour, arriving here from Tokio.

Doctors Condemn Alienist System

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—Declaring the method of testimony by alienists in murder cases to be "highly unsatisfactory" from both the point of view of the courts and the dignity of the medical profession, the New York Academy of Medicine has appointed a committee to study the question.

The academy contends there is need of "a satisfactory definition of murder in the first and second degree and manslaughter." The committee was ordered to make recommendations "in regard to the legal definition of insanity, the disposition of those convicted of criminal offenses and on the question of expert testimony when a psychiatric problem is involved."

52 CHILDREN DIE OF FEVER

Hammerstein, Germany, Jan. 3 (INS)—Deaths in the epidemic which has attacked the concentration camp here of German peasant emirges from Soviet Russia mounted to 52 today.

All the victims are children. The [illegible]ths have been caused by an unknown bacilli producing a virulent fever. Several hundred other children are suffering from measles.

The emigres are encamped here pending decision as to their eventual destination and disposition, as Germany is economically unable to absorb so large an influx of unemployed.

The peasants recently fled from Russia to escape the communisation program of the Soviets.

Mrs. Burgess, estranged from her husband, who, she said, is living in Washington, was in a serious condition at Union Memorial Hospital today.

FIGHT ON SUGAR TARIFF LOOMS IN SENATE

Washington, Jan. 3 (INS)—The most important battle over "sweets" ever staged on Capitol Hill loomed on the congressional horizon today as opposing factions in the Senate prepared for the coming tariff war on sugar duties.

The cost of sugar to the American public, which pays an annual bill ranging up to $1,000,000,000 a year, may be fixed for the future by the outcome of the battle over tariff rates. At least, billions of the consumers' dollars will be at stake.

The proposed plan of Senator William E. Borah to offer an amendment to the pending tariff bill, fixing a bounty on American sugar, may prolong the warfare. Once before, in President Cleveland's administration, the bounty plan was adopted as a means of protecting American sugar producers, but it was soon repealed. Borah would attempt the experiment again as the cheapest method of protecting American producers while holding down the cost of sugar to the consuming public.

The importance of the problem facing the Senate can be appreciated by the fact that Americans consume around 14,000,000,000 pounds of sugar annually. One way or another, both sides agree, the price of sugar will be affected by the tariff duties approved by Congress. For each penny added to the cost of a pound of sugar, the national bill would be increased $140,000,000 a year.

LAWMAKERS IN INDIA REVOLT RESIGN

Lahore, India, Jan. 3 (INS)—The Indian Nationlist "revolt by non-cooperation" continued throughout India today with the resignation of additional members of Indian legislatures.

Led by Pundit Motilal Mehru, a prominent Indian leader, 23 of the 26 members of the Central Indian Legislative Assembly resigned their posts as a boycott of British authority. Further resignations are expected.

Of the 43 remaining members of the assembly, most are in Europe, and are expected to cable their resignations shortly.

With the exception of this legislative boycott, no spectacular developments are expected in the "revolt" until January 26, the date which has been set for a nation-wide demonstration in favor of the Nationalist declaration of independence.

Mahatma Ghandi, famous Indian Nationalist leader and author of the declaration, is still fighting to sustain his small majority in the executive committee of the Nationalist congress, where he hopes to swing the radical forces around to his policy of pursuing a campaign of civil disobedience to the British throne, and thus force Britain to grant his country complete independence.

HUB RESIDENT MADE VENEZUELAN GOV.-GENERAL

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

THE city editor studied the dramatic message. Probably a fake, but run it down. Sitting here waiting for something to break, anyway. Second radio might come from the canyons—Bryce kid and the girl found dead. On the questioning of Laura Dawn might bring out a new angle. Big enough story for a second extra.

All set for this—

A reporter at his elbow suddenly leaned down and pointed to the letter "B" in the mysterious note. The lower half of this symbol was nicked off. The reporter's finger moved along till it found a "t." This was but partly crossed and the "s," "m" and "r" were out of line. Same peculiarities of typing in the four ransom notes! Same machine as sent those deadly precise directions to William Bryce last Friday night had marked off these three sentences.

This message in the editor's hand was genuine!

Immediately the room was charged with excitement. Have the whole mystery cleared and before any one else had a chance!

Two reporters and a cameraman went out with the mystery messenger. He would lead them to the ransom; he would discuss the fate of Patricia Dawn and little Billy Bryce.

And at this tremendous moment the three people most concerned sat in the detectives' bureau, spent, uplifted, half wasted with suspense.

Laura Dawn was held for questioning. William Bryce came to aid in the search. And Barbara, white, piteous shadow, whose dark eyes were terrible to see followed him there. She followed him everywhere, seizing on any comfort, any hope, however wild he offered.

Now they sat with the moving stupendous word from Guy at or exciting and shaking them

When this message came William Bryce added two planes to the three he'd sent out at daybreak. Three planes left San Francisco at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening. They would make the flight to Los Angeles. And at dawn start from there for the canyons. They carried doctors and nurses. Billy was alive—they would bring the child back!

Bryce sat with his hand on Barbara's. Tears streamed down his florid cheeks. Openly he wiped them.

More than anyone else, William Bryce understood what ten days in a remote wilderness with the dissolute Montgomery and the ruthless Partridge must have meant to young Patricia Dawn. If that girl saved his grandson will he knew at what a price it would have been. Well he knew that years, nor money nor words could ever repay her.

Sheik Montgomery and Slim Partridge—both former employes of the Bryce-Elliott plant. Both out of a job when the plant closed down on that ill-omened Monday morning.

Could it be but 10 days since his quarrel with Guy? Was it really but three weeks since he, William Bryce, who now sat here bowed prayerful, weeping with emotion, had tried to trick a woman out of her whole heritage? Only three weeks since money seemed so ridiculously important?

What a mockery that he had enough now! How ironic that his copper stock had unexpectedly, abruptly doubled; and that his radio had gone from $250 to $1,000 in the thrill of such luck as this was long, long done—counted not by days but by emotions—he would never tingle to it again.

Superstitiously, he imagined that his love for money had brought this frightful disaster upon Barbara and the child. He was nearly sick even in the midst of the seething hopes.

"God!—I've done the boy a fearful wrong. Not the lowest man on earth would entrust the girl he loved to a wastrel like Montgomery, a cutthroat like Partridge."

"All right," said Tim Chase, his jaw blackened and his eyes hard, "who got the ransom then? Who sent that special delivery letter from Berkeley? They've a confederate here. That's plain. And this confederate still appears to be El Hoot."

He lost his nerve and didn't make a getaway. There's a ring of them. And he's in the ring."

Why the fellow knew just where to find them or he'd be wandering 10 years in those canyons!

"Acts like an innocent man, doesn't he? Why'd he need to break jail? Other aviators in the world!"

And he went on with his dogged questioning of Laura Dawn. Questioning—she couldn't be found at her home all last night and all today. No sign of her till she was sure he'd arrived. She didn't show up at her home until after he'd sent the radio giving his whereabouts to the whole world. Tell the police about it! Impudent fellow, trying to clear himself with this audacious challenge!

Laura answered with unflinching calm. Yes—she'd visited Guy at the jail, 7 o'clock last night. Yes, he'd told her to get a plane and be waiting in her machine. She'd arranged for his takeoff in the Bryce-Swallow.

But it was quite well known wasn't it, that Guy was arranging bail? Was understood he was to be released immediately. Isn't this the law? She thought it quite natural—ah, if she could operate a plane all the cautions in the world would not have held her back till dawn—so she thought it but right. Guy being in love with her daughter, that he should fly off without an instant's delay. Most assuredly she'd aided him in

Mrs. Mary Spinelli and her daughter, Mary, on a visit to friends on Franconia st., Dorchester, crossing the street on the ladder which spans the mire. Mud, caused by the rain, snow and warmer weather of the past few days has made the street practically impassable without sloshing through deep puddles and oozing into the soft mud.

ASK PARDON FOR MARLBOROUGH

A pardon for Walter J. Marlborough, 29, of Worcester, inmate of the Rutland Prison Camp, was urged today by Atty. Charles W. Johnson before the Board of Pardons.

Johnson declared that when Marlborough was sentenced in 1926 to five to seven years for breaking and entering and an additional year for escaping from Worcester jail, there was an understanding that if he entered a plea of guilty he would be eligible for parole in four years.

Asst. Dist.-Atty. Norman of Worcester told the board he had been instructed to say the district-attorney's office would not oppose any action the board might take.

The board took the case under advisement.

SLACK SEASON, SAYS ADAMS

Little hope for any immediate remedy of conditions at the Charlestown and Portsmouth navy yards was held out by Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy.

Reminded that more than 300 men have recently been laid off at Charlestown and that the situation was also reported bad at Portsmouth, he replied: "Yes, but we can't do much about it right now. There's nothing to do about it. It's unfortunate. But this just happens to be a slack season."

American's Picture of Fr. Power in Erin

Not only the biography of Rev Patrick J. Power, but his picture, issued as a supplement to the Boston Evening American, has been widely circulated in Ireland

Sister M de Sales, Order of St. Francis, at St. Finnbarrs College Farranferria, Cork, in a letter to the Boston American under date of December 19 requests a dozen copies of Fr. Powers picture as it appeared as a supplement to this paper.

"A friend of mine in Bantry got one to frame and crowds come to see it and to kiss it," writes Sister de Sales.

A letter to the American last week contained a clipping from a Cork paper printing the identical biography of Fr. Power that was written and printed by the Boston American after considerable research.

Bride-Elect Is Given Reception

A delightful hospitality planned by Miss Dorothy E. Reilly for her close friend, Miss Margaret M. Horgan, was a bethrothal reception and bridge presided over by Miss Reilly at her home in Dorchester. Miss Horgan's engagement to William J. Cunningham was recently announced.

The guests entered the dining room to the strains of the wedding march. STATE STARTS DRIVE AGAINST SELLERS OF PARAFFINED EGGS

DISPOSED OF AS 'FRESH WESTERNS'

Lythgoe Starts Prosecution of Waltham Dealer Who Held Them in Storage

A crusade against dealers selling so-called "fresh" eggs has been started by Director Hermann C. Lythgoe of the state division of purs food and drugs.

Lythgoe said today his inspectors had found the public was being asked to pay top prices for "fresh Westerns" and other designations, which have "reposed" here in storage for many weeks after being shipped from Iowa and states further west.

The director disclosed that he had started prosecution against one dealer in Waltham whose "fresh Westerns" were of the parafined variety shipped from beyond the Mississippi late last summer for the Eastern trade.

Lythgoe said that this dealer obtained the eggs from a jobber in Boston last September and that the eggs were kept in cold storage while the retail price mounted from 46 cents a dozen to 65 cents.

At the latter price, Lythgoe declared, the Waltham retailer sold out his holdings.

Spiritualists May Air Troubles in Court

Trouble dating back to last October, when the Rev. F. W. Constantine of Buffalo was defeated for national president of the Spiritualists, has caused a split in the ranks of the Massachusetts Spiritualist Association and is expected to lead to court action.

At present the association is seething with discord, and charges and counter-charges, naming President Arthur E. Wilson of the association and the Rev. Frederick A. Wiggin of Brookline, Massachusetts' leading spiritualist preacher, are flying fast.

The annual convention of the national association in Boston last October in which Wiggin's candidate for president, the Rev. F. W. Constantine, was defeated, is the background of the friction.

The Rev. Millicent Wilson of Wakefield, wife of the state president, in a speech she recently made in Maine, charged Wiggin with being "instrumental in transporting from New York to the national convention in Boston a large number to vote for Constantine for president." It is claimed she made the charge at the behest of her husband.

Wiggin denied the charges and called for the impeachment or dismissal from office of Wilson as state president "in the interest of organized spiritualism in this commonwealth of Massachusetts."

Wiggin and Constantine, incensed at the accusations brought against them, have made affidavits denying the charges. In the current issue of The Banner of Life, a Spiritualist publication, an article by Wiggin is published. In it he asks if "the president would prefer to have the matter brought before the board or presented to the general public through the columns of the press.

"It was my desire to bring the fact of the gross injustice done Mr. Constantine and myself before the board of trustees in the hope of receiving from the board justification for making my request and at least an apology for the great injury done me," declared Wiggin.

NEW SCHOOL IN BACK BAY IS DEDICATED

Martin Milmore Exercises Are Featured by Presence of Sculptor's Grandniece

The Martin Milmore school on Peterboro st., Back Bay, was dedicated today by Miss Vivian Milmore, a grand niece of the sculptor in whose honor the school was named.

Miss Milmore also presented the school a blackboard picture drawn by the sculptor when he was 14 and a pupil in the Brimmer school.

The blackboard drawing, showing a young student in geography was so well done that school officials of 1866 decided that it should be preserved. When the old Brimmer school was destroyed by fire the chalk picture was reduced and until today it had remained in a glass case at the Art Museum.

The new school, a two-story brick structure with seven classrooms and a kindergarten, was erected at a cost of $300,000.

WIDOW'S FIGHT FOR INSURANCE OF VET OPENS

Jury of 10 Hear Charge He Was Incompetent When He Disinherited Her

A federal jury of 10 men is hearing the suit brought against the Government by Mrs. Emma Nellsen of Brookside ave., Jamaica Plain, to recover $10,000 war risk insurance willed to relatives in Denmark by her husband, John Nellsen, a war veteran.

When the case opened today only 10 men were left on the jury panel.

Asst. U. S. Dist.-Atty. John J. Walsh admits liability for the amount of insurance, but wants the jury to decide whether Nellsen was mentally incompetent as brother and two sisters as beneficiaries in place of his wife.

According to Mrs. Nellsen, she was married to the veteran in July, 1922, while he was a tubercular patient in Groton Hospital. He named her as beneficiary in his policy.

In May, 1924, the couple separated and the following July Nellsen struck her name from the policy. He died in December, 1925.

VET IS GIVEN BIG VERDICT

Walter J. Abraham, overseas veteran, of Mountain st., Worcester, was awarded $7500 and $57.50 a month for the rest of his life by a federal court jury in his suit to collect on his war risk insurance policy.

Abraham, it was claimed, contracted tuberculosis while serving overseas in the navy. He has been in veterans' hospitals for several years, and a year ago he married Miss Mary Kirwan, his nurse at the Rutland Veterans' Hospital, and she is now caring for him at their Worcester home.

PASSENGERS SWAP FRILLS FOR THRILLS ON SEA-TOSSED SHIP

FREIGHTER IS BATTERED BY WILD GALES

Christmas Tree Swept Away as Heavy Wash Rolls Over Vessel

Free from the frills of an ocean greyhound, F. E. Johannesen, 28-year-old Washington hotel proprietor, arrived in the Hub today as a passenger on the storm-tossed freighter Schenectady, "lucky to reach port."

The Schenectady, one of the American Scantic line vessels owned by the Shipping Board, was a full week behind schedule from Copenhagen after battering seas all the way across.

The paint on her bow was washed off, glass gave way on the bridge, a letter was torn from her name plate and the crew saw their Christmas tree swept out of the dining saloon when a heavy wash boarded her Christmas day.

Johannesen, together with Eric Henius of Copenhagen and Ove E. Gude of Oslo, Norway, made the passenger list of three. The latter two are bound for Akron, O., as representatives of a rubber firm.

"I wanted to get away from all the dress up occasions that one must attend on an ocean liner," Johannesen gave as his reason for traveling on the freighter.

"When a fellow keeps dressed up seven days a week his only vacation is old clothes and relaxation from bowing to introductions."

The youthful hotel man as a native of Norway, having arrived in this country 13 years ago to seek his fortune.

A few years ago he acquired property in Du Pont Circle that included the home of William Randolph Hearst in his boyhood, when the famous Mr. Hearst was a member of the United States Senate.

Afterwards this famous mansion housed the royal Italian legation.

Capt. Axel W. Pearson described the trip as the worst in his experience of 28 years.

Heavy seas tossed the vessel like a chip and the log entries in regard to direction resembled an outline for a crossword puzzle. A heavy load of newsprint and paper pulp was the redeeming feature that held the ship down and enabled them to make port, he said.

MOTHER LOSES IN WILL FIGHT

Francis and Patricia Carroll of Quincy triumphed over their mother, Mrs. Harriett Carroll of Quincy in Norfolk Probate Court today when Judge Joseph R. McCool disallowed the will, involving an $1100 estate of the late Frank Carroll.

The children of the dead man won because Gertrude A. Barry of Quincy admitted that her name was not affixed to the will as a witness until after the death of Carroll. The Barry woman also admitted that she did not realize what she was signing.

In disallowing the will Judge McCool ordered that two-thirds of the estate be given to the children and one-third to Mrs. Carroll.

HOLY NAME DAY OBSERVANCE TO BE GREAT HERE

60 Union Services, Centering at Cathedral With Cardinal, Planned

With a special significance for the archdiocese of Boston, the feast of the Holy Name of Jesus will be observed through the Christian world a week from Sunday.

Its special significance hereabouts lies in the establishment of the Society of the Holy Name of Jesus by Cardinal O'Connell in every parish soon after he succeeded to the see of Boston. General observance of the feast day has grown in importance every year as the society has grown in size and accomplishments.

The feast day will be observed in the diocese in the morning by general communion for all men at the parish churches. In the afternoon and evening neighboring parishes will unite in convenient centers to hold union vesper services, with appropriate sermons on the significance of the day and the aims of the Holy Name Society. New members will be received into the society and old members will renew their pledge.

About 60 centers have been arranged for the union services, a special feature of which will be the congregational singing of the "Hymn to the Holy Name," written especially for the society by Cardinal O'Connell.

The principal union service will be held at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, with Cardinal O'Connell presiding. Rev. Robert F. Barry will deliver the sermon.

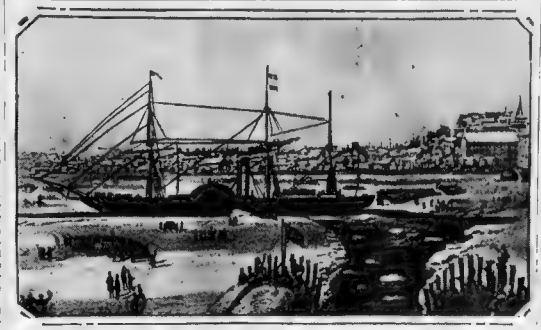
Codification of the laws relating to corporations engaged in the business of loaning money and discounting paper is asked for in a bill filed today with the Legislature by Representative Edward J. Kelley of Worcester.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 147



BOSTON harbor was frozen over during the hard winter of 1843-4 and February 3 it was necessary to chop a channel through the ice to permit the first Cunarder, Britannia, to sail for Europe. The channel which was seven miles long and 100 feet wide, was cut at the expense of $1500, the money being subscribed by leading merchants of the city. More pictures of Old Boston will be printed in the Boston Evening American.

COAST GUARDS' VICTIM BURIED

The private funeral services accorded Dudley Brandt, 21, of Williams st., Dorchester, slain rum-runner, were marked by a simple religious ceremony.

The funeral was attended by only a few close relatives, including Brandt's widow, who has been in a state of near-prostration since the news of her husband's death reached her.

Brandt's coffin, flag-draped in honor of his services in the navy during the World War, was borne to the chapel of the Unity M. E. Church, Neponset.

Girl Forced Out of Car, Walk 10 Miles

Two Beverly girls who were picked up by an automobilist and his companion in Town House sq., Salem, were thrown out of the machine in the woods off the Andover turnpike, Middleton, early today, and were forced to walk ten miles to Salem police headquarters, where they reported the matter to Salem officials.

The suits are Mary Little, 17 and her chum, Miss Cecile Banks, 20, of Rantoul st., Beverly.

According to the story told by the girls, they had just left a Salem theater. They went to Town House sq., to wait for an electric car.

A roadster came along and one of the girls recognized the driver as an acquaintance known as "Scotty." He asked them if they were going to Beverly. The two girls got into the machine, which "Scotty" was driving.

Instead of going to Beverly he drove his machine toward Danvers into Middleton sq. and onto the Andover turnpike. The girls protested but to no avail. When on a lonely spot on the turnpike the men's actions were such that the girls were forced to repulse them.

Angered by the actions of the girls, one of the men opened the door of the car and the other threw both out.

POLICE SEIZE 5,500 LOTTERY TICKETS

Raids in South End Follow Weeks of Investigation, Authorities Assert

In raids on four South End stores today, police secured more than 500 lottery tickets and arrested five men.

The raids on five of them in Harrison ave. and the fourth in Broadway were the result of weeks of careful investigation by Sergt. William Cripps, and members of the vice squad.

Those taken into custody were Ernest Carakia, Waltham st., South End; Joseph Melba, Hudson st., South End, Frank Maroili of Shirley ave., Revere; Joseph Jabbour of Dartmouth pl., and Thomas Geranon of Revere st., Revere.

Having in mind that Friday is the day lottery tickets are placed in the hands of distributors, police were careful not to arrive until they knew the five persons long suspected as distributors had received shipments.

For several weeks many complaints have been received from wives of men playing the lotteries and it was as a result of these complaints that that investigation which resulted in today's raids were conducted by the police.

JOE COOK, BROADWAY PLAYBOY, DESERTS STAGE FOR SCREEN STARDOM

COMEDIAN SIGNED FOR FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 3.—Goodness but it takes a long time to negotiate a contract. Columbia has been working with Joe Cook for a month or more, and it wasn't until yesterday that final word was received that Mr. Cook had finally agreed to star in "Rain or Shine," his musical comedy which ran for well over a year on Broadway. Frank Capra will direct and some well-known movie actress will play opposite him.

The name Joe Cook is much better known in the East than it is in our town. We are so far from New York that stars have to be in our own local constellation before we properly appreciate them. Next year at this time we shall probably be very glib with the name of Joe Cook.

Louella O. Parsons

Cook, with his plays and plans, reaches here March 1 to begin operations at Columbia Meanwhile, Harry Cohn is going to New York to buy a few stage plays. Columbia, this year, plans to produce talkies that will make the natives sit up and do a little side line cheering. Here is hoping their hopes come true.

• • •

DARRYL ZANUCK is planning to produce an intimate revue, for Warner Brothers, something on the order of "Charlot's Revue" and "The Little Show," now playing in New York. In fact, Darryl tried to buy the title, "The Little Show" for it illustrates so perfectly what he will attempt to do. There will probably be 12 leading ladies and 12 leading men, all of them well known stars and everyone of them doing his song or dance or special number. "The Show of Shows" can be classes as the most stupendous of all revues and probably Mr. Zanuck will now try to make the most concentrated and intimate revue yet produced.

• • •

VINCENT LAWRENCE can look over the fence at the Fox studio when they produce his play, "In Love With Love," but he cannot take a hand in the production. He is signed at Paramount and Paramount probably won't want its writers to go gadding about. The Fox company at the moment is negotiating for someone to play the leading role in "In Love With Love" and it looks as if Robert Montgomery, providing he can be spared from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, will be put in the part. By the bye, M G M seems to have great hopes for this young man, who is good-looking and seems to have more than an ordinary share of ability.

• • •

HOW come all the villains are moving to First National? Andres Randolf and Noah Beery, then whom there are no two wickeder vilyuns in the movies, are both playing in "The Big Flood." Speaking of Noah Beery, I had a look at a "Show of Shows" at a preview and heard that boy sing. What a voice! He only sang a few notes and you cannot blame First National for nabbing him and giving him a chance to sing.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Ina Claire wearing long diamond earrings, dining at the Embassy with Jack Gilbert. Barney Glazer displaying moonstone studs and cuff links specially engraved. Lilyan Tashman wearing one of the three chinchilla coats in Hollywood. Juliette Compton dining with Alfred Tennyson, 2nd, nephew of the poet at the Embassy. Carmelita Geraghty being greatly admired in a white satin evening dress. Zoo Akins dining with Charlie Chaplin at the Embassy. Rose Meredyth and her new husband, Michael Curtis, entertaining at dinner. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Half Breed Siren

LUPE VELEZ

"TIGER ROSE," on the Scollay and Fenway screens, gives the vamp of Mexico a chance to strut her stuff. Lupe makes the hearts of many a prospector go flippity flop.

APED STARS IN CHILDHOOD

LUPE VELEX, the little 'Mexican wildcat," who is cast with Monte Blue in "Tiger Rose," the Warner Vitaphone production which makes its first Boston showing at the Scollay Square Olympia and Fenway tomorrow, always wanted to be an actress, even when she was a tiny tot in San Luis Potosi. Her mother, Josephine Velez, was an opera singer and her father was a colonel in the Mexican army.

"I used to watch the opera from behind the scenes and was fascinated by the actresses dabbing their cheeks with red," says Lupe. "At home I would dab my cheeks with peppers and put flour on my nose. Then I would roll my eyes before a mirror and make faces, like at the opera."

When she was 15 she got a job dancing in a musical comedy, "Rataplan," in Mexico City. An American woman, Mrs. Frank A. Woodyard, saw her and suggested that Lupe go to Hollywood. Her big chance came when she was loaned to Douglas Fairbanks to play the part of the wild mountain girl in "The Gaucho."

AFTER SCRIPT FOR SCREEN

SINCE Jeanette MacDonald's arrival in Hollywood, the script of "Let's Go Native," George Marion comedy, has undergone some changes, the most important being the addition of six song numbers.

The cast follows: Jeanette MacDonald, James Hall, William Austin, Eugene Pallette, Charles Sellon, Jack Oakie, Kay Francis, "Skeet" Gallagher and David Newell.

Percy Heath collaborated with George Marion in the script. The music is by Richard A. Whiting. The lyrics are by George Marion, Jr. Leo McCarey is directing.

"THE SACRED FLAME," with a half dozen big names in the cast, is the feature picture at the Metropolitan for the New Year's first week. The stage presentation is again a revue, produced by Boris Petroff and titled "For Art's Sake." But for two things, one a sin of commission and the other of omission, "The Sacred Flame" would rank as an excellent talkie to begin A.D. 1930 with. As it is the slough has tripped along a considerable distance before the story gets to its grip. In fact it reels it is out of the humdrum rut and the acting puts it across in the nick of time. There are several big moments, and that long tense home stretch in which the film (for the most part) redeems earlier frailties.

Conrad Nagel

THE first sin is that of giving in to an ailment for which we will have to invent a term. It is "themitis," epidemic amongst talkies for in, these past months! The inevitable theme song—one is tempted to exclaim: "It, one is inevitable, but why now?" This is the big istake in "The Sacred Flame." Suddenly, without warning or any reason therefor, Conrad Nagel breaks into song. This drama of Somerset Maugham is intensely serious, and Mr. Nagel is supposed to be an ace and a colonel in the Royal Flying Corps. What he sings is, "The Sacred Flame of Love." Tailor-made for the talking picture version of the stageplay. The song, though it be well done, jars upon good sense and taste; it just doesn't belong. The other mistake is in the seasoning of the original drama and particularly in the absolute elusion of scenes showing the development of the love between the wife and the husband's brother. The effect of this is that motivation is not established. We are inclined to blame the studio cutting-room, rather than Archie Mayo, who otherwise had given pretty good direction.

• • •

IT will be observed that the film is best when it is photographed drama: this is the latter half! It is then, also, that the dialogue is best. Mr. Maugham, who knows his stage "onions," develops a powerful theme of mother love; he gives it a new twist. As you watch this tale develop, think what a mystery thriller it could have made; two suspected of the murder of Mr. Nagel, a brother and a wife; and the guilty person none other than the mother! It is not so harsh as all that; it will be good entertainment to look and listen through these latter sequences. It is a mighty dramatic situation, levied for high interest, both by playwright and most of these actors in the film.

• • •

PAULINE FREDERICK has the trying role of the mother, and she gives her all. Which means she is convincing. Once or twice she shoves too much hysteria into the part; but in general she is fine. Mr. Nagel, though never much of an actor, is here at his best; we think his performance the best in his screen career. Nothing that requires much of course. It is a stellar tone that is lent by the presence of the also Williams Courtenay and the ever good Alec Francis. Lesla Lee screens beautifully, in truth her very best. She is, however, below par on acting. Walter Byron is rather lack-luster; Dale Fuller, as the nurse, is handicapped by her looks, but histrionically she is well above Miss Lee. The photography is without flaw, almost.

• • •

AIR SQUADRON IN HUNT FOR LOST ZEPP

WHEN the hum of airplane motors was heard above Washington st., near Essex, the crowd on the street looked up. "Gee, there's a whole flock of them!" hollered a newsboy. Some persons said they counted 20, others 25.

"They're doing stunts," came an adult voice.

"Wonder what's it all about?" asked another.

A pair of boyish eyes, spotting a Zeppelin-shaped body on a truck chassis, standing in front of the Park Theater, got a hint; and the owner of the eyes shouted: "They're looking for The Lost Zeppelin!"

Whatever the reason those planes hovered over the section, attention centered on the front of the Park where "The Lost Zeppelin" is playing to capacity houses. After their maneuvers the planes departed, with the crowd still speculating on the air visit. In the motion picture the rescue is effected by a plane after the Zeppelin is wrecked in the Antarctic; the crowd, therefore, on information from a number who had seen the photoplay finally decided the aircraft had been used to call attention to the Park's feature offering.

• • •

The Tiffany production, "The Lost Zeppelin," has in its cast Conway Tearle, Virginia Valli and Ricardo Cortez. "The Lost Zeppelin" deals with a huge dirigible which gets to the Antarctic and is wrecked in a blizzard. All of those in the party but two perish. Through the amazing adventure runs a love story in which the wife of the Zeppelin commander figures. She believes she is in love with her husband's aide on the exploration trip. The husband learns of this, and when an airplane is able to carry away only one passenger, he insists that his aide make the trip back to civilization. The ending of the story comes as a decided surprise.

DIVA 'ADOPTED' BY CLUB

THE recent addition of another young American soprano, Kathleen Kersting, to the Chicago Civic Opera Company gives this organization the right to maintain that it has more Americans on its roster than any other nationality.

Miss Kersting comes from Wichita, Kan., and has the Rotary Club of that city to thank for her present good fortune, for it was this organization that "adopted" Kathleen, financed her education and then put her into opera. She made her debut with the Chicago company this season and will appear during its fortnight of opera in this city, February 3 to 15. She will sing the leading soprano role of Elizabeth in Wagner's "Tannhauser."

COHEN-KELLY TEAM BACK

FOR the first time since its original success, the Cohens and Kellys combination will consist of its original partners, George Sidney and Charlie Murray. The partnership started work at Universal City this week on the fourth of the series of "Cohens and Kellys" stories. This one is entitled, "The Cohens and Kellys in Scotland."

March 15 will have added significance as an unofficial holiday ever since Universal began this unique and diverting series

GOSSIP ALONG NEW YORK'S RIALTO

New York, Jan. 3.

ABSTINENCE, it seems, is the slogan for the day.

Whatever else they did not abstain from, the makers of drama news, succeeded in abstaining from uttering so much as a single word that might seriously affect the theater of 1930—or 1931, if there still is a theater then.

• • •

Charles Dillingham, one of the theater's most serious thinkers, did emerge from a conference upon resolutions for long enough to make one announcement.

Mr. Dillingham, seizing 1930 by the forelock, said:

"We have decided after due deliberation to make certain alterations in Ashley Dukes's dramatization of Lion Feuchtwanger's celebrated novel, 'Power.'

"This is, as you know, the play in which Maurice Moscovitch, eminent London actor, will be presented as star. In case any one has forgotten, it opens in Newark the evening of January 13 and comes to Manhattan the week following.

"But, to return to the matter of the moment.

"We have decided, after due and considered deliberation, to change the name of this play from 'Jew Suss' to 'Josef Suss.'"

• • •

There is this item to add Irene Franklin, the jester, has become serious long enough to incorporate herself in Delaware under the title "Irene Franklin Showboat Company."

Of course, there is more to it than Irene. There is, for instance, a boat, which presently is docked somewhere in the South. And, sooner or later, there will be a company, of which Miss Franklin will not be a member.

• • •

Eventually it will begin operation as Newport News, Va., and will tour the Southern coast. Miss Franklin, not a bit a-twitter, will continue to tickle folks in "Sweet Adeline."

Now I ask you, and with sympathetic regard for the sincerity with which we all look forward what 1930 shall bring forth, can a fellow be expected to become excited over a theater that ends the season with no item of more importance than that?

But wait.

Any rate, wait long enough to hear Eddie Mayer wish the new season in thusly:

"There seem to be a few folk who labor under an apprehension that 'Children of Darkness' is a play that only an actor-wise known as 'The Gaoler's Wench.'

"Well, there may be such an apprehension, but there is no truth in it. 'The Gaoler's Wench' was simply an adaptation of 'Children of Darkness,' an adaptation to fit the needs of a woman star."

What Is Zat?

IRENE BORDONI

SURPRISE is registered by French-y Irene Bordoni, starring in "Paris" on the screen. It starts tomorrow at the New B. F. Keith's.

SILVER BLONDE TRESSES ARE UNUSUAL

IF you are one of those who prefer blondes, you can't fail to be charmed by the delicately fair beauty of Ann Harding, noted stage and screen star, whose latest success is in support of Ronald Colman in the fascinating tale of Devil's Island, "Condemned," which comes to Loew's State on Monday. Miss Harding's long and luxuriant tresses are of the sort known as silver blonde, and the coiffure she has chosen is simplicity itself. Up at the crown and unbobbed, Miss Harding parts her hair in the middle, draws it gently back over her ears, and fastens it in a loose knot at the nape of her neck.

Ann Harding

The only restorative Miss Harding uses to keep her hair at its gleaming best, is the old-fashioned egg shampoo. Whipped to a foamy pale yellow froth, the whole egg is added to the shampoo mixture, massaged thoroughly into the scalp, and carefully rinsed in warm water before the final icy rinsing.

Sharkey and N. Y. Garden Officials Are Deadlocked

SCHMELING, CAMPOLO OR SCOTT DEMANDED BY LOCAL HEAVYWEIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

JOHNNY BUCKLEY, manager of Jack Sharkey, and William F. Carey, president of Madison Sq. Garden Corp., were in a deadlock today over the question of an opponent for the American heavyweight champion for a bout at Miami, Fla., in February.

Sharkey and myself stand with William Muldoon, veteran member of the New York Boxing Commission, in his plan to name a new world's heavyweight champion this year," said Buckley "I am willing to match Sharkey in the way suggested by Muldoon

Jack Conway

"Muldoon has named Sharkey, Schmeling and Scott as the three men who should fight it out for the title. He has also stated that in his opinion Campolo has the punch, size and ability to smash his way to the title three left vacant by Gene Tunney.

"I am willing to sign Sharkey at once to battle any of the men named by Muldoon. I am also willing to include the name of Jack Dempsey if the old Tiger will return to the ring.

"I do not believe there is any occasion for Sharkey to sign to meet Tuffy Griffiths, Jim Maloney, Ernie Schaaf or Primo Carnera at this time. None of these men are generally considered as serious contenders for the title. Griffiths and the rest can have their chance when they gain more standing with the public.

"Sharkey still stands on his platform of meeting all comers. Willis, Godfrey, Dempsey, Loughran, Stribling, Blake, Heeney, McTigue, Maloney and the rest of them have been battled by Sharkey.

"THE public now recognizes Jack as the world's leading heavyweight. Sharkey, however, is not asking to be proclaimed world's champion until he has met the men named by Muldoon. So let the Garden bring on Schaaf, Dempsey, Campolo or Scott and Sharkey will let his fists of iron fly at Miami, Fla., next month."

Carey came in Boston accompanied by Frank Bruen, general manager of the Garden, and Tom McArdle, his matchmaker.

Carey and his party arrived in Boston at 6 o'clock last night. They immediately went into conference with Buckley and Sharkey. The conference lasted until the small hours of the morning and broke up in a d adlock.

Carey was to attend a directors meeting of the Boston Garden today and it was expected that he would talk further with Buckley and Sharkey.

DURING his conversation with Carey, Sharkey made it known he is willing to take on any opponent who stands in his path to the world's championship, but that he does not intend to engage in any further elimination tournaments against inferior opposition.

The Roxbury boxer was to leave for Miami, Fla. tonight with Mrs. Sharkey and their three children. Sharkey made plans for his trip to Miami several weeks ago before any dispute popped up over the question of his opponent.

Jack stated today that in the event Buckley was unable to come to terms with the Garden that he will make a vacation of the Miami trip and return to Boston in the middle of February.

The Garden's option on Sharkey's services expires on March 15 and Sharkey could not box for another organization until after that date.

William F. Carey and the other Garden officials refused to make any comment on the situation.

Kilroys Engaged in Basketball

Bernie and Kewpie Kilroy, Roxbury brothers, who were football stars on the Boston College unbeaten football eleven of 1928, are now actively engaged in Greater Boston basketball circles.

Bernie, who was the regular center at the Heights, is coaching five of St. Mary's high school in Brookline. He has assembled a fast quintet, and hopes to ace his team open with a victory next week.

He also plays guard for the Pere Marquette five of South Boston Bernie is now a member of the South Boston Council, and was center on the K. C. football team last fall.

Kewpie isn't a player, but has joined the officials' association, and proves a double attraction as a referee. Kewp knows the game thoroughly.

B. C.-H. C. AGREE NOT TO SCOUT

Boston College and Holy Cross, Jesuit college rivals, have decided to engage in a non-scouting agreement next fall. This was announced by Coach Joe McKenney of B. C. who reached the decision with Cleo O'Donnell of H. C. at the annual coaches' meeting in New York which convened the early part of the week.

"We decided to make the game more interesting for the Boston College-Holy Cross following," said McKenney in reference to his meeting with O'Donnell. "The games of late have been mostly defensive battles and often lacking in real, abundant thrills. The agreement will give the teams a chance to wage an offensive war and enable them to form their own defensive tactics on the field of play."

The agreement has been made for one year. It will be put in force at the 1930 Eagle-Crusader football embroglio. It isn't permanent and if the coaches do not see the desired results they'll cancel the issue.

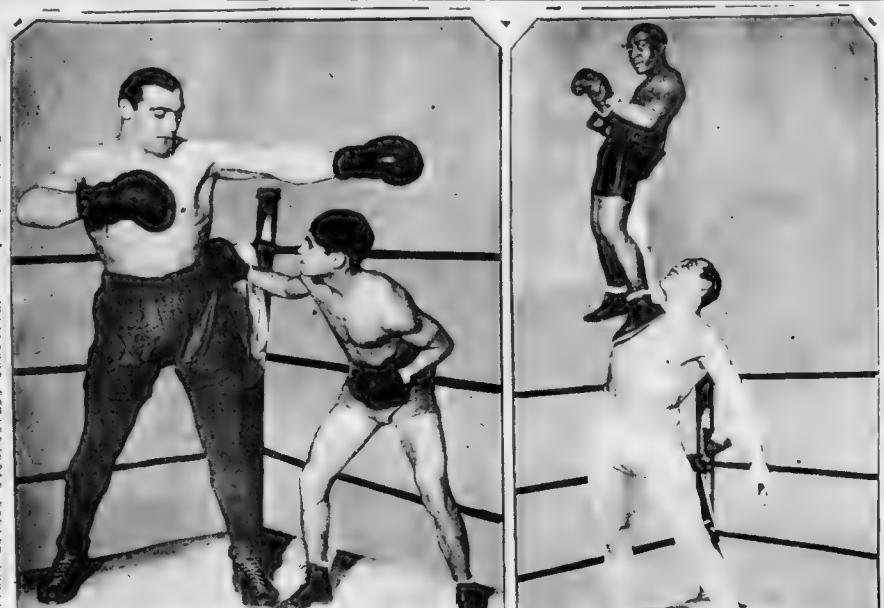
Non-scouting p ects mean little or nothing to most colleges but it may develop that the agreement reached in New York will see Boston College and Holy Cross playing even more brilliant and hair-raising football than has been evident in the past.

For the last four or five years the Boston College-Holy Cross struggles have been games in which the "breaks" meant more than a little. This was due to the fact that both rivals were so well scouted that they had to depend on making and taking the "breaks" to win. This was because their offensives were so tightly bottled up.

Joe McKenney, a very smart young man, has scouted Holy Cross personally in his two years of head coaching the Eagles. And his teams won both games. McKenney spent the weeks before the Holy Cross meetings drilling his men on Purple running plays and planting them for passes.

Cleo O'Donnell of Holy Cross did likewise and it would seem that Mr. McKenney is either a very intelligent scrutinizer of hostile maneuvers or that Boston College has been the recipient of the biggest and best "breaks."

'ITALIAN SKYSCRAPER' SHOWS AMERICA SOME REAL SIZE



American fight fans had heard about the great size of Primo Carnera, Italian heavy, but they never realized he was as big as he appeared in his first workouts in New York, as shown above. There have been many ring giants such as Jess Willard, Fred Fulton and Vittorio Campolo, but Carnera wins the size title without an argument. He is depicted here working out with Al Singer, featherweight, and holding a negro bantam in one of his hugh paws.

Four East Stars May Play on Coast

San Francisco, Jan. 3 (INS)—Impressed with the possibilities of San Francisco, four football players who participated in the East-West game here on New Year's Day today are considering plans of returning here to play football with the Olympic Club. They are "Frosty" Peters, of Illinois; Ray Richards, of Nebraska; Ed Pomeroy, of Utah, and Walter Holmgren, of Whitman.

Seven Out for Tufts Wrestling

Seven members of the Tufts wrestling squad reported to Coach Sam Ruggeri for the first workout of the Christmas vacation. Coach Ruggeri announced that the number will be increased before the week ends.

The men who turned out yesterday are Stella, Edwards, Budnick, Littleton, Giles, Berry and Dumbros. All of these men, although they compete in different classes, trained on the mats.

Coach Ruggeri will hold a special session Saturday morning and from then until next Friday will devote most of the time to conditioning and polishing up the weak spots. The elimination tournament, which will determine who will represent the Brown and Blue, will last two days and will take place about a week before the Harvard meet of January 15.

Named Own Men on All Ten Team

Jimmy Phelan, Purdue coach, picked an All-Big Ten team and named three of his own men, Harmeson, Welch and Sleight.

Cavanaugh Signs to Coach Fordham

New York Jan. 3 (AP)—Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh has been re-engaged as head football coach at Fordhom University, thereby setting at rest rumors that the "Iron Major" would be found elsewhere when the 1930 season rolls around.

Cavanaugh turned out an unbeaten team at Fordham during the season just closed.

Fordham has a difficult schedule for next year with seven major games in a row but loses only two men from this year's formidable array.

Murdoch Picked to Defeat Segal

San Francisco, Jan. 3 (AP)—Ed Murdoch, Oklahoma lightweight, was favored to defeat Willie Segal, New York, when they meet in a 10-round fight here tonight.

Harvard Six in Two Games Next Week

WINTER athletics returned to a full time schedule at Harvard as classes resumed today. The Cantab athletes will practice regularly from now on through the remainder of the winter season.

Harvard's hockey sextet, coached by Joe Stubbs rested today preparatory to meeting M. I. T. at the Garden next Monday. The Cantabs should not find the Engineers very tough after the Toronto battles.

However, the Tech six is playing head up hockey this season, and would consider a victory over Harvard a fine feather in its cap.

With only one day to rest between the Tech and the Michigan Tech game, Harvard's hockey team would appear to be in a bad way Michigan Tech, who will oppose Harvard here on Wednesday is rated one of the strongest clubs in the Middle West.

The Michigan Huskies have been invading the East during the last ten days, and have all three of the former Big Three teams on their schedule.

So far, Michigan has failed to make good its threat to scalp the Eastern college sixes. In their games with Yale, the Elis dropped their guests by large scores.

The Michigan game will give Harvard another hint as to the outcome of the Harvard-Yale series. So far, Harvard and Yale have both met University Club and, of the two college teams, Yale appears to have shown better hockey against the grads.

Harvard's winter track season opens officially on Monday, when Coach Eddie Farrell expects to greet a large squad of Crimson runners. Many of the Cantab track stars have already been out on the boards at Soldiers Field for several weeks.

With Coach Jasko Mikola and Red Haygerty as assistants, Eddie Farrell expects to develop one of the best track teams ever to represent Harvard for this winter's schedule. He has plenty of time to pick a likely looking flock of runners before their opening meet.

Harvard's first track meet comes Jan. 25, when Farrell expects to be able to enter a large representation in the K. of C. games at the Garden. In February, the Crimson trackmen will enter the Millrose A. A. meet in New York, February 8; the B. A. A. games February 15, the New York A. C. games at New York, February 18, and after that comes the triangular meet with Dartmouth and Cornell on February 24.

HARD GAME FOR BOYS' CLUB

The basketball team of the Boys' Club of Boston will meet the Middlesex Pre-Medical school tomorrow at the Eben D. Jordan Memorial gymnasium, Charlestown.

The future medicos have one of the best teams that have ever represented the school. To date they have played two games, winning one and losing the other in a game in which they were minus several of their best players. They expect to have their full strength against the Club boys and a hard fought game is expected.

The Club team, while still in the formative stage have the makings of a strong quintet and when the younger members have gained a little experience will prove to be a tough team to defeat.

The starting lineup will be picked from the following players John Sweeney, Dan Crowley, John Crowley, Fred Daley, Al Baker, Dan Doherty, Joe Dooley and John Dooley.

Concord Six to Play Night Game

The Concord Hockey Club plans a game with the Firestone hockey team, on the latter's rink in Hudson, tomorrow evening, providing there is suitable rink ice.

The Hudson outfit has a lighted rink so that evening contests can be played without trouble. This game will be the first one of a series between these clubs. The Concord team is planning a busy week-end with games Saturday and Sunday.

Frenzied Fan Hurls Chair; Starts Riot at Mat Show

Milwaukee, Jan. 3 (INS)—Authorities were called on here today to investigate a wholesale riot which ended the wrestling match between John Friberg, Swedish heavyweight and Ernst Schargegge in the Gayety Theater last night.

With Schargegge holding the edge, his opponent was seen to hit him on the jaw. Schargegge retaliated, but just then a big chair hurtled into the arena, and the riot began.

Several squads of police were needed to restore order, and it was necessary to halt the bout and declare it no-contest. Harry Commenberg of Beloit, Wis., was arrested for heaving the chair.

ACT 1.

Scene 1. A room in the Picadilly Hotel.

(The Merchant of Venice sits with his legs thrust through the door and into another room. Enter Friedman.)

Duffy—How now, what news of the Rialto, not to mention the Silver Slipper?

Friedman—Johnson says the big fellow can't fight here until he gets his ground of fresh.

Leon See—Give him 10 pounds. What are a few pounds to Carnera?

Pete the Goat—That guy means 10 per cent.

Leon See (a pained expression crossing his Gallic pan)—That's different. Who is this Shylock Johnson?

General Chorus—Just somebody's friend.

Izzy the Photographer—What's all about it?

Lady Reporter (speaking in English to Carnera)—What is your reaction to petting?

Carnera (replying in French)—Wonderful.

Attendant—Who left them two trunks in the other room?

Leon See—Hush, varlet, those belong to the Merchant of Venice.

Attendant—Well, they look like overgrown feet to me.

Leon See (in an undertone)—That's what they are.

Carnera (quoting poetry again) "You that choose not by the view,

Chance as fair and choose as true!

Since the fortune falls to you,

Be content and seek no new."

Lady Reporter (to Primo)—Are you fond of sole?

Carnera (looking at his dogs)—Yes.

Enter a house detective.

The H. D.—What's all this noise about?

Six guests quietly depart. Joe the Gouff slips the H. D. a plugged quarter.

Friedman—Sall right, officer. We're waiting for somebody's friend.

Carnera (who appears to be trying to hide behind a chiffonier)—Get that guy out of here. He looks like Willie Stribbling, and if my temper should get the best of me there's no telling what I'd do to him. You recall how dangerous the Lord Chamberlain of London said I was, don't you?

The three dukes march through the room, looking neither to the right or left, while a concealed orchestra plays very softly, "We Kiss Your Dukes, Three Dukes."

All present rise and make sweeping bows.

Leon See—First time I knew you had kings in America. Who were those three gentlemen?

General chorus—Just somebody's friends.

The Duke of Muldoon returning and addressing Izzy the Painter.

The D. of M—Put out that cigarette.

Shylock Johnston enters, preceded by his coats.

Johnston—The quality of mercy is not strained. I'll take nine and seven-eighths per cent.

All faint, but Johnston and Carnera, who doesn't understand English. (Curtain.)

TIGERS SET FOR CLASH WITH REDS

BOSTON TIGERS had their last practice session in the Garden this morning in preparation for the crucial games with Providence Reds tomorrow night at the Garden.

The Reds at the moment are coasting along at the top of the Canadian-American League and much depends on the game both from their viewpoint and that of the Tigers.

The Boston entry, which set the pace in the early going, has been on a slump of late but its only New Year resolution is to get back into stride, and there is no team the Tigers would rather wallop than Providence, with whom they battled for the league championship and the Fontaine Cup at the end of last year.

For the past month the Reds have been all but unbeatable, although they won narrowly and with the aid of the fates when they met the Tigers in the Garden a week ago. On that occasion considerable bitterness cropped out between the teams and the game was marked by three major penalties.

Eddie Oatman, veteran Tiger defense man, was ill yesterday and did not practice but he does not feel like himself tomorrow. Manager Eddie Powers will start the courageous Lionel Constant in his place beside Reg Mackay.

Bill Regan, who got the first major of his pro career for fighting with Leo Quenneville of Springfield, Tuesday night, will plenty of work as a reserve.

Manager Eddie Powers kept his combinations of forwards intact in today's practice and worked to restore the teamwork which made the Tigers invincible in early season. With the exception of Oatman, the team is in perfect condition.

UNICORN STARS IN K. C. MEET

The 1929 track season for Coach Jack Ryder of Boston College and the B. A. A. will open tomorrow night at the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus games in New York city. Two B. A. A. men have been entered by the veteran track mentor.

The Unicorns who can their first race are Eddie Blake and Arnold Noyes, both former college stars. Blake will run in a special 800-yard race and Noyes in the 50-yarder.

Both these boys showed up well for the B. A. A. last spring in the nationals and as members of the Unicorn relay quartet. Jack is counting on them to keep the B. A. A. up in the track limelight now that Leo Lermond is in Australia and Lloyd Hahn is no more. Boston College was to have sent a relay team to the Casey meet in Gotham but the holidays interfered with the conditioning work of most of the candidates, so Jack frowned on the idea of sending a quartet to New York that couldn't be counted on to offer stiff opposition to any opponent.

The Eagle trackmen will report hard to Coach Ryder on Monday when the college reopens. For the first week the work will be doubled so that the runners of the Maroon and Gold will get back to the shape they were in before the Christmas recess began on December 17.

Within a few weeks the big meets will come in quick succession. Ryder doesn't expect to have any B. C. runners in any of the meets much before the local Casey games on January 25. If his boys work hard, however, they may be in action before that time.

McCarthy Will Face Strong Foes in Glove Tourney

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

STARS WILL COMPETE MONDAY

JACK McCARTHY of Roxbury, rated by observers as the outstanding amateur featherweight in the country, will meet the stiffest opposition of his career when he attempts to score a victory in the New England Golden Glove Tournament at Mechanics Building next Monday night.

For many years, Al Delmont, one of the greatest bantamweights of all the ages, has been trying to find a boxer who could absorb his teachings. Now he has one, in the tall, rangy McCarthy lad from Roxbury, who has swept through the amateur ranks with an unparalleled exhibition of boxing and punching.

John Sweeney of South Boston, George Yeo of Cambridge, and Eino Nyholm of Maynard will stand up against the McCarthy fists Monday night. Nyholm looks like one of the roughest and most rugged prospects that has come swinging down the line in many years.

PROTEGE OF McFARLAND

He is a protege of Tommy McFarland, a welterweight of the old school, and McFarland is willing to back him against McCarthy or any amateur welterweight in New England.

There is bound to be action, as Sweeney, Yeo, and Nyholm try to crowd past McCarthy in search of the Golden Glove championship and the beautiful trophy which represents it, and the 140-pounds class may be the most sensational of the eight. Certainly, there will be drama enough for all if one of the three youngsters stops McCarthy.

STARS IN LIGHT CLASSES

The 147 pounds and 112 pounds class, too, promise glad tidings for followers of amateur boxing. Every boxer in the 147 pounds division—Charlie Kelly of Newton, Chris De Rosa of East Boston, Vernon Merlin of Roslindale, and Fred Rien of Wakefield—is a recognized star, while the 112 promises a return meeting between the two most bitter rivals in New England, Arthur Nadeau of Cambridge and George Ostrow of Revere.

The advance sale is the greatest in the history of amateur boxing in this city, and Mechanics Building will be crowded to the roof when the show starts at 8 o'clock Monday.

GOLDEN GLOVE TITLE SEEKERS

HAGEN IS AFTER $3500 PURSE

Long Beach, Cal., Jan. 3 (AP)—The great Walter Hagen, who lately has failed to show the form which brought the British open crown to his determined brow, today came forward to start a defense of his Long Beach open tournament title against a field of more than 250 entrants over the municipal golf course. The three-day contest, which will end Sunday, carries a $3500 purse.

Horton Smith, the Missouri youth, with three championships already to the good in the winter campaign, is classed a slight favorite against the field, which includes such starters as Tony Manero, Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J.; Harry Cooper, Al Espinosa and a host of others.

Erskine Award for Notre Dame

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—Further football laurels have been given to the Notre Dame team in the Albert Russell Erskine football award, designed to be emblematic of the national football championship for 1929. The award was made by a committee of nationally known sports writers after a nation-wide poll had been taken. Announcement yesterday that Notre Dame had been named showed an overwhelming majority of votes in favor of the South Bend institution.

N. Y. Rangers Bow to Americans, 7-1

New York, Jan. 3—The New York Americans defeated the New York Rangers, 7 to 1, in the second game of the year between the local National Hockey League rivals. The victory evened the annual series, wiping out an earlier Ranger triumph.

The superb American defense finally found an offense to match, and after the first period, the Rangers were hardly in the game. They took an early lead, but the Americans tied it up near the end of the first period, made it 3 to 1 in the second then added four more goals in the final period. Even when they were short two men on penalties the Americans kept the Ranger attack helpless.

BRUINS LEAVE FOR MONTREAL

The Boston Bruins' squad will leave Boston at 9 tonight headed for Montreal and an attempt to create a new National League record of 12 straight consecutive victories. The Bruins won their 11th straight game when they turned back New York Americans 5-to-0 at the Garden on the holiday night.

The game with the Maroons tomorrow is looked upon as an unusually severe test for the Bruins Maroons happen to be hard to beat on Montreal ice, but on their last meeting at the Forum the Bruins won 4-to-3. The decision was reversed three nights later when the Bruins, weakened by the absence of Eddie Shore and somewhat battered by their experience in that Montreal game, lost in Boston, 6-to-1.

Penn and Yale Court Teams Play Tomorrow

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3 (AP)—The race for the Eastern Intercollegiate League basketball championship starts tomorrow night with each of the six teams sending formidable squads into the competition.

Opening the season here with Yale the University of Pennsylvania will start a bid for its third consecutive league title. The Quakers' log of six victories in seven starts against non-league teams so far this season has helped to establish them as forward favorites for the crown, but they are expected to meet plenty of opposition, particularly from Yale, Columbia and Cornell.

Yale has one of the best squads developed there in years. It includes Ollie Albie Booth, "spark plug" of the Elis 1929 football team and captain of last year's freshman basketball five; Capt. Don Kamy, Horowitz, Nassau, Beyer, Townsend, Farley, Patterson and Freeman, all veterans.

PENN DEFENSE STRONG.

With four veterans and fine material from last year's freshman team, Pennsylvania is expected to present a strong defense of its title.

Coach McNichol said he planned to start the same team against Yale tomorrow night that he has started in most of the contests this season—Ullrich and Brodie, forwards; Peterson, center, and Tanner and Magner, guards.

Columbia, which finished in a tie for third position last year, has six veterans and six former freshmen as a nucleus. The veterans are Gregory and Ballin, centers; Obey and McGurk, forwards, and Capt. Tye and Middleton, guards.

Graduation and ineligibility dealt Dartmouth a severe blow, Coach Dolly Stark losing nine prospects. Stark, however, appears optimistic and expects his team to be a contender throughout the season.

From last year's team he has Captain Cheney, Schmidt and Bleed and half a dozen from the freshmen class have displayed varsity possibilities.

CORNELL HAS 4 VETERANS

Cornell, with four veterans and several promising freshmen, may be the dark horse of the campaign. The veterans, Besemer and Lewis, guards, and Murphy and Hall, forwards, were big factors in the Ithacans' tieing Columbia for third place last season.

Should Bennett and Vogt recover from football injuries, Princeton will make a strong bid for the title. So far this season the injured men have been unable to play basketball. Coach Albert Wittmer started the season with his brother, Edward, captain of the team; Paul Carey, Bowan, Dickovics and Johnson, all veterans.

Some excellent material also is available from the freshmen five, including Goodpasture, Nicholson, Bessire and Lemon.

Mike Gonzales Is Released by Cubs

Chicago, Jan. 3—Mike Gonzales, one of Cuba's first contributions to major league baseball, became a free agent as the Cubs gave him his unconditional release.

Thirty-eight years old and hampered by a weakened salary wing, the veteran Cuban backstop probably passed out of the major picture for good after 14 years of service.

Gonzales' release indicated the Cubs were convinced that Leo "Gabby" Hartnett's right arm had healed and that he would be ready to take his turn behind the plate in the 1930 championship drive.

Hartnett, who was out all of last season, recently pronounced his wing in good shape again.

Concord High Six Plays First Game

The Concord high school ice hockey sextet is slated to open its season tomorrow afternoon taking on the Wakefield high school outfit on Crosby's Pond rink, here, if there is suitable ice. These rivals will clash in another contest later in the season. Capt. Wilson will lead the Concord team into action Concord still has a game to play with alumni, postponed because of lack of ice.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

One advantage that will be of supreme value to the average golfer in playing the new ball is that every lie he has with the bigger ball will be a better lie. Conversely, this means that how ever bad a lie may be, it will not be as bad as it is with the present ball, and even the very bad lie with the present ball will be a fairly decent one with the new ball. This, I think, is the one factor of greatest importance in the new ball—the one thing that will make every average golfer a better golfer. The present ball seems to have an indecent capacity to snuggle down into bare and depressed spots, and despite all the advice ever written on how to go about shoveling the ball out of the bad lie, there always has been something about a rotten lie that simply got my goat. I never could conquer it. But with this new ball, all is changed. I have deliberately dropped it into depressed spots, and have noticed that it was just as easy to pick out of there as if it were sitting up on top of the world. There is so much more of the ball —or appears to be—that I' ' annoyance of the ordinary bad lie is about 90 per cent removed. And that's something.

LOMSKI AND MAX IN 4TH MEETING

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Maxie Rosenbloom of Harlem and Leo Lomski of Aberdeen, Wash., will meet for the fourth time tonight in Madison Square Garden.

The elimination contest ordered by the New York State Athletic Commission to provide a successor to the retired Tommy Loughran never did take Lomski into consideration.

Rosenbloom, the slapstick, acrobatic star, lost his standing among the "Favored Four" by dropping a close decision in Buffalo to Jimmy Slattery, also overlooked in the early nominations. Slattery and Lou Scozza, also of Buffalo, must fight now for recognition here as the new title-holder.

Rosenbloom and Lomski have fought on three previous occasions. Leo won one bout, Rosenbloom one and another was a draw. Tomorrow night's 10-round feature should result in a definite edge one way or the other. Rosenbloom, fighting now in his best form, is a 6 to 5 favorite over the stiff-punching Westerner, who has not appeared to his former advantage of late.

Primo Carnera, the mastadonic Italian heavyweight, will attend the show at the Garden's guest.

The similfinal brings together another pair of light heavyweights, George Courtney, the Oklahoma cowboy, meets Joe Sanovic of Binghamton, N. Y. Canada Lee, New York welterweight, and Arturo Scheckles of Belgium will box the first 10

Commissioner Needed to Rule 'Pro' Hockey Leagues

MINORS MAY DEMAND ARBITER

By BILL GRIMES

DUE to its tremendous growth, professional hockey is rapidly approaching the stage, when the minor leagues will band together and demand the appointment of a commissioner.

At present, President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League is the last word in all hockey controversies. Arrangements, making it possible for the president of the major league to decide arguments, the most important of which concern his own organization, are unfair to all parties.

Bill Grimes

If President Calder renders a decision against a minor league, he is open to criticism that he is favoring his own circuit. On the other hand, if he rules against the National Hockey League, he incurs the wrath of his own organization.

All recognized minor league are now affiliated with the National Hockey League. Arguments are arising frequently between minor and major league clubs, details of which, if the club involved cannot agree on, are forwarded to President Calder for final disposition.

Most of the disputes between major and minor league clubs center around players, and, as the value of players runs, in some cases into many thousands of dollars, the final disposition of these arguments is of vital importance. The decision for the allotment of players under dispute should be placed in the hands of a wholly disinterested party.

CALDER'S WORD FINAL

If a minor league club established a claim that a certain player is on its reserve list and a National Hockey League club argues to the contrary, Pres. Calder decides the destiny of the player involved. A verdict favoring the N. H. L. owners naturally brings out a protest from the minor league club, due primarily to the position Calder holds in the N. H. L.

In the past, minor league owners have protested against the rulings of the chief executive of the National Hockey League, who doubles as the hockey commissioner, but there is no appeal from Calder's verdicts.

The minor leagues are increasing annually and becoming stronger and stronger. As yet the minor leagues have no organization, working as separate units, but the time is not far distant when they will get together and be in a position to make demands upon the National Hockey League.

Before an uprising occurs, it would be to the advantage of professional hockey, for the National Hockey League to follow the example of the baseball moguls and appoint a commissioner. A break might bring into the open a scandal and no professional sport can afford to have its dirty linen exposed to the view of the public.

PRO HOCKEY IS SOUND

Financially professional hockey is sound and therefore in a position to present a most inviting proposition for a commissioner of hockey. By levying a tax on National Hockey League clubs and all teams in leagues affiliated with the present body, professional hockey would be in a position to interest almost any candidate proposed.

Although not generally known President Frank Calder was called in "on the carpet" by the board of governors during the recent meeting in Chicago. According to reports, the governing board informed Calder that some of his recent actions did not meet with their approval and that the National Hockey League has outgrown the one-man stage.

The National Hockey League is a growing industry, but its development is certain to be retarded if the chief executive does not give it his undivided attention and rule fairly. Decisions made by President Calder, even though not pertaining to the N. H. L., reflect upon that organization. The National Hockey League can ill afford to present a condition which will in any way affect its goodwill.

Until the baseball leagues reached an agreement which made Judge K. M. Landis commissioner, the national pastime underwent a period of unrest, very similar to that which hockey is beginning to experience. Landis was the savior of baseball. And hockey needs a Landis.

Perhaps Judge Landis could be prevailed upon to act as the hockey commissioner. He is an ardent fan, attending all games in Chicago. Apparently, he enjoys talking hockey as much as he does baseball, for he always displays great interest whenever the conversation drifts around to the great winter game.

If Judge Landis, hockey would have a commissioner in whom the entire sport-loving world has absolute faith. Landis lost no time selling himself to the followers of baseball and he would be equally successful with the hockey enthusiasts.

Although Judge Landis is a stand-out among the eligibles for commissioner of professional hockey, there are many other disinterested parties possessing proper qualifications.

If it should come to pass that Bob Quinn wound up his interests in baseball, the president of the Red Sox would be an ideal commissioner for hockey. Honest to a fault, fearless and respected by all, Bob Quinn would, without the frills, out-Landis Landis.

Sooner or later, hockey will be under the jurisdiction of a commissioner and if the first step is taken by the National Hockey League for the establishment of a dictator it will go a long way towards cementing the feeling between the major league and all minor organizations.

Shires Barred After "Bagging" Charges

DETROIT, Jan. 3 (AP)—Arthur (the Great) Shires, White Sox socker and a lad who might be heavyweight champion if he were half as good as he is reported to have said he is, is under suspension by the Michigan Boxing Commission.

The charge, which Shires denies indignantly, is that his representatives sought to have Shires' opponent in a scheduled fight here take a "dive."

The commission acted yesterday after receiving a statement from Vance Gildersleeve, manager of Battling Criss (who was to have been Shires' opponent) in which Gildersleeve said Shires' representatives told him Criss would have to "take a dive" or Shires would not go through with the fight.

The bout which was to have taken place last night was called off when physicians for the commission found Shires was suffering from a severe cold.

Shires pooh-poohed the idea that anyone representing him would suggest that Battling Criss "dive." His will not, however, be permitted to go through with scheduled fights at Flint, Jackson and Grand Rapids, James M. Brown, chairman of the boxing commission said.

The National Boxing Association, he added, will be asked to suspend Shires in the states it governs.

"We are satisfied," commissioner Brown said, "That Shires does not belong in the boxing game."

In Chicago, Nessie Blumenthal, Shires' manager, denied any attempt had been made to fix the fight with Criss.

The suspension of Shires was indefinite, but Commissioner Brown said it probably would be made permanent when the commission meets at Lansing, January 9.

Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, said at his Chicago office that he had no intention of taking any action in the Shires case on the basis of present information. Later, he indicated, his office might have something to say if it were determined that the Michigan commission's action was based on sound evidence.

Hub Boxing Board Awaits Word From Michigan

The suspension of Art Shires will not interfere with his coming bout with Al Bohrer at the Garden one week from tonight unless the Boxing Commission of the State of Michigan requests the Massachusetts Commission to suspend him, according to a statement made by Commissioner Eugene Buckley last night.

"We have no working agreement with Michigan," said Mr. Buckley "but if they requested Shires' suspension and presented sufficient cause, we would suspend him. I understand that he is to box in New York early next week, and I shall watch with interest what action the New York Commission takes. We have a working agreement with the New York Commission, and if they suspend him, we would be forced to."

ICE OFFICIALS MEET JAN. 12 AT YD CLUB

A meeting to organize a board of hockey officials will be held at the YD Club, 200 Huntington ave., Sunday, Jan. 12, at 3 o'clock. Albert E. Prettyman, chairman of the collegiate hockey committee, has requested Donald P. Sands, well known official, to call the meeting, primarily to have more uniform understanding of the rules of the game.

It is intended by having the rules more uniformly known that many of the unsatisfactory cases which now arise will be eliminated.

A questionnaire has been sent to officials in the district which requests them to fill out questions which will be answered at the meeting. At the first meeting officers will be nominated and the organization take a definite form.

Among the more important things which will be considered is a rules interpretation meeting each year at which coaches will be invited and questions answered. The more experienced officials have found in the past that many times coaches and players do not know the rules and take offence at the official when a rule is enforced.

In other cases officials have been handicapped in enforcing rules for fear that they would not be chosen by the various coaches for future games.

When the board is formed, it is also the aim of the organization to have officials assigned sufficiently in advance of the games and eliminate the present state of conditions which in many cases officials are chosen the day previous to the game.

Ralph Windsor, noted Harvard authority, will be on hand and make suggestions. Sands has also had a wide experience in college, club and school officiating. He played with the old B. A. A. team back in 1905 and 1906 and also with the YD team after the war. He was chosen for the 1920 Olympic hockey team but was stricken with appendicitis and could not make the trip.

STEINKE SEEKS TITLE CHANCE

One of the most important heavyweight mat duels to be waged in the Hub in years is scheduled to take place at Mechanics Building next Wednesday night, when Hans Steinke, the giant German, clashes with Gino Calza, the Italian champion and idol, in the semi-final match of Billy Avery's all-star card.

Steinke and Calza, two outstanding contenders for the world's crown, have had their shoulders pinned to the mat only once each. Strange to say, it was Dick Shikat who performed the trick on both of them. The champion defeated Steinke in a sensational fuse in Philadelphia early last summer.

For several months the German Oak has been hurling challenges at both Shikat and Sonnenberg. It is more than likely that he will get a return match with Shikat, but he must first brush aside the Italian, who likewise has a tilt with Shikat pending upon the outcome of the Mechanics clash.

It is the most difficult task Calza has ever had in Boston. Never has he met a wrestler of Steinke's ability in this city. The greatest throng of Italian mat fans since the memorable Londos-Calza match of several years ago is expected to be on hand to cheer their favorite on to victory. The two men will probably enter the ring on even terms so far as the betting is concerned.

The windup tussle of Avery's sparkling program will bring together Jimmy McMillen, the former University of Illinois All-American football star, and Jim Londos, the Greek title holder.

Seven Challengers for Layton's Title

New York, Jan 3 (AP)—John Layton, holder of the world's three-cushion billiard championship for the past two years, begins defense of his title at the Palm Garden tonight with seven challengers in the field.

The championship round robin tournament gets under way with Layton opposing Harry Schaefer of New York in one match and Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, meeting Charles Jordan of Los Angeles in another.

Butters Pivot on Tufts Five

"Red" Butters was the only absentee at the initial workout of the Tufts basketball men but will be back in the pivot position this afternoon.

Art Cochran and Horton continue to hold their first string positions at forward, but are being pressed by Charlie Haber and Bob Realty. This group gives Law Manley plenty of reserve strength as all four men are capable players.

"Red" Butters has clinched the pivot position while Jack Fine and the veteran Dick Warren seem sure to start at the guard positions. Robison, Mazzola, Mottia and Story are fighting it out for the runner up berths.

M'COY AND 'SONNY' TO CLASH

The match is attracting tremendous attention throughout New England, and in Greater Boston especially. After the Strecher-Stanlak match was concluded, a line formed at the box office.

"GOD HAVE MERCY ON US!"

THE TRUEST AND MOST VITAL PIECE OF FICTION TO COME OUT OF THE WORLD WAR.

"That made me stop and think. The idea of personal heroism on the battlefield was a dead issue with me. All places on the battlefield looked alike. You were under fire, and whether you were walking, running or sitting, your chances of getting hit were the same. A man who stopped on the battlefield to help a wounded man was not a hero in my eyes. And it seemed to me that, as long as the whole bunch of us were together and taking the same chances, either we were all heroes or none of us were."

William T. Scanlon, author of "God Have Mercy On Us!" saw service with the 97th Company of Marines in the Second Division of the American Expeditionary Forces.

THE N B C and their rivals, Columbia, missed an opportunity when they failed to have Graham McNamee, Ted Husing and other veteran war correspondents on board the C. & O. 290 in its foray against the "Black Duck." What would have been more thrilling than their inimitable descriptive eloquence painting pictures of the battle of Long Island Sound with realistic background of machine-gun rat-a-tat-tat? Radio must be in a slump when such a big event out of our liveliest national sport pass unnoticed. Bloodshed and death would have been done into the politest of phrases, with no possibility of offense to the most susceptible of listeners.

JESSICA DRAGONETTE will be the new soloist of Cities Service broadcasts over WEEI and the coast-to-coast and Canadian network of the NBC starting tonight at 8 o'clock. The Concert quartet, once known as the Hoover Sentinels, and an augmented orchestra of 25 musicians under the direction of Rosario Bourdon will also be heard in the new Cities Service series.

THE story of Mme. Jumel and her marriage with Aaron Burr will be dramatized during the Famous Loves program through WBZ and the NBC System at 8:45. Burr was 78 years old, and was a social outcast. Nevertheless he was a former Vice-President of the United States and Mme. Jumel desired the prestige of his name. This sketch will be accompanied by incidental music of the Colonial period.

THE Interwoven Pair, Billy Jones and Ernie Hare, sing a little comedietta soon, "Oh, How I Love Goulash," in the program to be heard through WBZ and the NBC System at 8 o'clock. The Perry Twins and his orchestra are also heard in the following program: "Have to Have You," vocal duet, Billy Jones and Ernie Hare; "Down South," orchestra; "Just Can't Be Satisfied With Me," vocal solo, Ernie Hare; "Oh, How I Love Goulash," comedy duet, Jones and Hare; "Rock Me to Sleep in Your Arms," vocal duet, Jones and Hare; "Mine Wonderful," orchestra; "Family Must Be in Love," vocal solo, Billy Jones; "Lucky Little Devil," vocal duet, Jones and Hare.

AN all request program will be played by the Schradertown Band during the broadcast tonight at 9:30 through the WEEI and the Red Network. From the hundreds of requests Arden Perry has selected six for the program. The selections will include operatic airs, marches and descriptive pieces. RADIO WILL SEE NO DRASTIC CHANGE IN '30

There are a number of factors that will make 1930 an excellent year from the standpoint of those who own or are about to purchase, radio receiving sets, says Major Herbert H. Frost, chairman of the merchandising committee, Radio Manufacturers' Association.

Broadcasting stations are learning to render better programs and better entertainment as time goes on and the radio industry itself, its manufacturers, its distributors, and its dealers are also learning through experience to render better service in putting radio sets into American homes more efficiently and more economically.

There are no radical changes that will tend to disturb present methods of reception, or tend to render obsolete sets that have been purchased within the past year.

The year 1929 witnessed the widespread development of the screen-grid tube and the electro-dynamic speaker. There are now new developments which will supplant these two features in 1930. The remote control of radio sets which permits tuning in stations from rooms distant from the receiver itself, is one of the improvements which are now being perfected in radio laboratories.

Burlesque History in Flufferettes Hour

A new version of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth harbor in 1620 will be described by the Durkee-Mower Flufferettes in their opening program over WNAC and WEAN Sunday evening at 7:15. The first episode in a hilarious series of historical dramas, called by their author the "Boo of the Moment," will reveal how Plymouth Rock might have got its name. The hero is Lowell Cabot Boswell, described as a famous explorer, dilletante, raconteur and Bostonian. The supporting ensemble will be under the personal direction of Joe Rines. Other features of this program will be supplied by a saxophones sextette in special arrangements of popular hits of the day and Ray Rhodes, tenor, in Moyer "Song of Songs" and the recently introduced "I'll See You Again" from Noel Coward's English operette "Bitter Sweet."

Paulist Singers and Ex-Gov. Smith on Air

Heading the list of distinguished speakers who are to broadcast from Station WLWL during the New Year, is former Governor Alfred E. Smith, who comes before the microphone next Monday evening at 6.35. He has selected as the subject for his talk: "Duties and Rights of Citizenship." Sharing the program are the Paulist Choristers, under the direction of Father Finn. As this is the Feast of the Epiphany, commonly known as "Little Christmas," a special arrangement of Christmas carols has been made by Father Finn. This broadcasting group of Choristers will be composed of five men and 16 small boys.

Now in Radio

MAURICE CHEVALIER

The French musical comedy star will sing over the radio for the first time during the Coty broadcast on Thursday night, January 9, at 8:30 o'clock, over stations of the Columbia System.

By Radio From Filmland

Joan Crawford, in private life known as Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will be heard with friend husband from Hollywood during the inaugural broadcast of "Voices from Filmland" next Monday evening at 7:30 over WNAC and a coast-to-coast network of the Columbia System.

WAGNER OPERA TOMORROW

The entire second act of Wagner's "Lohengrin," sung by a cast of Chicago Civic Opera singers, including Hallie Stiles as Elsa" and Rene Maison as "Lohengrin," will be offered to the radio public tomorrow evening at 10 o'clock from the stage of the opera over NBC Blue network.

The act includes some of the finest arias of the work. Elsa's prayer song, the majestic strains of the wedding march as Lohengrin and Elsa proceed to the nuptial altar, and the tempestuous music of Ortrude's denunciation on the steps of the cathedral make the act one of the most interesting in operatic repertoire.

In the part of "Elsa," Hallie Stiles, brilliant young American soprano, is given one of her most colorful roles of the season, and Rene Maison is expected to reach a new pinnacle of operatic success in his portrayal of the role of "Lohengrin." Maria Olszewska as the dark and sinister "Ortrude," Robert Ringling, as the villainous "Telramund," Alexander Kipnis as "King Henry" and Desire Defrere as the Herald complete the cast.

The story of the opera is based on the legendary lore surrounding the mystic "Holy Grail" which for more than a thousand years has served as an inspiration for poets, painters and musicians of every nation.

My Dog Rudy He Has Puppies

SWEETHEART DAYS ARE HAPPIEST FOR GIRLS

What Air Castles Are Built and What Hopes!

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE are many names in the English language that are pleasant to dwell upon—names that sound like music because of the thoughts they suggest. Home, affection, love, flower garden, mother are a few of these musical words. And among the loveliest and dearest of all is the old-fashioned word "sweetheart."

Beatrice Fairax

Sweetheart days are happiest days. What hopes, what air castles we build then! Sometimes they come tumbling about our ears, for young love does not always fulfill its promise. But surely the sweetness of courtship more than atones for lovelorn moods.

Every girl's problem is how to get all the wholesome happiness she can out of her sweetheart days and live them so wisely that they will lead to calm friendship without regrets, or else to a successful, happy marriage.

Let us consider today some of the ups and downs of courtship, and ways and means of keeping sweetheart days as full of fun and joy and promise as they should be.

Betty is wondering why it is that when she and Bob first met they were supremely happy and never quarreled. But now, after going about together for a couple of months, they are beginning to bicker and find fault.

Betty says she had the same trouble when she went out with Burt. They got on wonderfully well the first few weeks, then things didn't go so smoothly and finally they broke up. Now the question is, as Betty sees it, would it not be better to marry Burt or Bob, as the case may be, before the quarreling began, say a few weeks after first meeting?

Are not whirlwind courtships and engagements best? They skip right over the quarreling period and hurry into marriage. That is what Betty is beginning to wonder, because as time goes on Bill does not seem so absolutely, irresistibly fascinating as he did at first.

Betty, your reasoning is not 100 per cent sound. When a couple first meet and are attracted to each other each unconsciously poses as a perfectly wonderful being in order to impress the other. Both have their best foot forward, as the saying goes. But this play-acting can't last always. By and by the real personality of each begins to assert itself.

Then if Bill and Betty or Burt and Betty have great differences of opinion, and both have a strong will, difficulties are bound to come up. That is what courtship is for, Betty—to give a young couple the chance to learn what there is to know about each other and whether their differences can be made to fit pleasantly and agreeably into the plan of marriage.

Neither should expect perfection of the other. If you are really happy together congenial, understanding companions that is the great thing, supposing, of course, that Bill is financially able to marry and is a suitable husband for you. But do not be too discouraged if you drift apart, for the chances are you will say to yourself one day:

"Thank goodness, I didn't rush into a marriage with Bill!"

Every girl is likely to be more or less in love a number of times before Mr. Right comes along. Being a little in love is a normal state of mind and heart for the average girl. Sometimes she's just in love with love—the sweet idea of love! But when she does at last find happiness and peace and security in marriage she realizes that never before was she really, truly in love.

Molly's problem is how to interest Dick, who seeks every opportunity of talking to her but has never paid her any special attention. That's a rather pleasant problem, Molly! Dick likes you or he would not seek opportunities of talking to you. He may not need much encouragement. It may be he will very soon ask to come to see you.

Meantime, accept all worthwhile invitations, have interesting, diverting times to make life colorful and gay. That will keep your spirits high and prevent the dismal mood that comes from dwelling too much on one thought. Men like stimulating companionship of girls who are not lovelorn, but full of life, with interests they long to share

Flirtation—Or the New Love

-:- -:- -:-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

"A new face at the door, my friend."

GLORIETTE turns at midnight and finds a new face in place of the aging one of her old Love. A bold, flirtatious, promising, asking, fresh baby face—a young lover with gifts behind his back. And while Glorietta smiles back she tries to see what he holds in the hidden hand for her.

And only one deep, anxious wonder is in her mind: "WILL I BE HAPPY THIS YEAR? Is that what he holds for my gift?"

Not money does she wonder about. Though money is a gorgeous thing. Not Love alone, for Love doesn't always mean happiness. Not Fame, though Fame is grand and satisfies a strange hunger in a lady's breast. Not clothes, pretty clothes, thousands of clothes, though a few of them are food, clothes, fame, love and ALMOST happiness to the heart of a girl. None of these things does she really pray for from the brand-new pink and white fist of baby Nineteen Thirty.

Just Happiness. And unconsciously, though I know New Year Resolutions have gone out of style, just as many of us unconsciously pray when Trouble is sitting heavy on our back, she promises to do many things better, to be a better girl ENTIRELY this year in return for that big Present.

Happy New Year to all the pretty Glorlettes, blonde and brunette, who write kind letters to me. To the tiny ones. To the nice older people, who write more than KINDLY to me. Happy New Year.
—NELL BRINKLEY.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WOMEN have real equality with men in Russia. "Equal work, equal wage, equal rights," is their motto and they carry this out literally.

Co-education is the rule, just as it is in this country. But, after leaving school, the Russian women enjoy much wider opportunity than the American. They may enter any union and earn the same wage as men at the same task. They may and do take part in every form of government work, both as administrators and employes. Women play a much more important part in political life in Russia than they do in America. They hold some of the highest posts. Several captains in the Russian navy are women. Many judges are women.

Elsie Robinson

They also work as directors of public affairs in the local Soviet. Supervision of construction of roads, sewage systems, sanitation, the creation of schools, nurseries, clinics and hospitals.

And the simplest working woman enjoys as great privileges as her more intellectual sister. Married women are not only permitted but encouraged to work outside the home. Under the Soviet system home space and housework are deliberately limited . . . there is little chance for the idle or parasitic wife to flourish.

But, on the other hand, every opportunity is given to the wife and mother to maintain her family life while working outside the home. Public nurseries are established where the smaller children may receive the best of food and care during the day.

The mother is not compelled to put her children in these nurseries but she is encouraged to do so and most mothers welcome the opportunity. Nurseries are also conducted in connection with the factories which, like other Russian industries, are under governmental control. The mother is given time out from her work to feed and play with her baby.

The Soviety protects the mother not only after but before the baby comes. A manual laborer is given two months' leave with full pay, before childbirth and two months after. An office employe six weeks before, six weeks after. This care is extended to the unwedded mother as well as the wedded. There are no "illegitimate" children in Russia . . . only unmarried mothers.

Equal rights . . . BUT AT A PRICE. The Russian woman can't have her cake and eat it too. If she's going to have the privileges of a man she must accept the same responsibilities. Soviet Russia is young and poor. Her men live under intense discipline and endure great hardship. No luxuries are permitted. And the women accept these conditions as well as the men. They dress as shabbily . . . work as hard. If they break the law they are punished as men are punished, even to the death penalty. They enjoy no sentimental exemptions. If they are accepted as intelligent, responsible citizens they must act as such. A woman cannot bring a breach of promise suit against a man in Russia.

She cannot hold him to an unwilling marriage. She cannot demand alimony save for a most limited period.

That's the Russian plan. Ours is different. Here in America we also claim to have equality for women, but it is still far from actual equality with men, either in industry nor in civic or federal affairs have women equal power. They do not receive equal wage for equal work. The problem of the working mother and child is unsolved. And conditions concerning childbirth are notorious. We have the highest death rate of mothers and babies, during childbirth, of any civilized nation.

But, on the other hand, the American woman has a sentimental standing which the Russian woman lacks . . . and would doubtless disdain! She is lauded and courted. In fiction, drama, music and popular tradition she is crowned the Queen of Romance. She may be allowed to die in childbirth and be double-crossed in the payroll, but she gets the biggest engagement rings, publicity notices and alimony decrees on record. In short, she seems to be popularly regarded as a Beautiful Nit-wit . . . the toast of the nation . . . but still not quite responsible.

Which plan is better?

Actual equality, or remove woo-boobs sentiment, but gives woman identical rights with man and treats her as a valued responsible citizen.

Or theoretical equality, when makes a tremendous romantic fuss about women, but short-changes her in practical life?

this! Is this crime when she thought him free?

Maybe not crime but rather surprising shed ducked off and couldn't be reached all Tuesday and all today.

"Why is that surprising?" asked Laura softly. "I was excited when that word came from my daughter, Mr. Chase, you can understand this. I didn't wish to be alone. After Mr. Elliott's takeoff, I took my little boy. We drove to San Jose. I spent the time with my sister. I wanted contact—human contacts . . . Yes, wanted someone to tell me that Pat was safe.

"I wanted someone to tell me my girl still lives.

"I came back after the radio arrived that I might be near to give aid if necessary. And as soon as you release me I want to fly with Burke you've met him, Mr. Chase? We want to fly to that airport at Kingman—be there when Pat comes back to us."

"Well," said he with forced gruffness, "why didn't you, report your part in the escape you read this morning that Elliott had broken jail?"

Laura replied with sublime defiance. "My daughter's life is more important to me than upholding jail discipline, Mr. Chase, if your little boy's life was in danger and you knew someone who could save him—Never mind if that someone is black as pitch—your child is in danger Would you cry out to the police to stop the man who can save him? If so, you are a better citizen and a poorer soul than I shall ever stoop to be."

Nothing could shake her. She said to Barbara Bryce: "Do you know that the boy we have both united in a happier mood, has nothing to do with this? Do you not feel that Pat has struggled with these men, and at whatever cost, will bring your baby back to you? If life remains she will!"

Barbara answered: "Your daughter could never have part in this. I have seen her." After a moment she added: "Nor could Gil."

She was suddenly remembering the day she jumped from the parachute. Guy lifted her. He drove her home.

She remembered the dark beauty of his look the tender youth in his eyes. Looking up to them, she had loved him; had admitted to herself that she loved him.

Now she wept. Now she prayed that the strength she imagined then in Guy Elliott would rise and save her son.

The reporters and the cameraman drove out through the mission . . . On and on. They came to a small dark street—a small gray cottage with five steps leading t othe front door.

The messenger handed them a second envelope And here he left them

"You're to read that letter. It tells you what to do." The letter contained keys and explicit directions how and where to use them.

One of these keys was to the front door.

The Real Truth

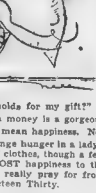
ABOUT SANE LIVING

By ELINOR GLYN

I AM wondering, girls, if the wave of tipsiness at college anniversary parties is growing I ask this hip flisk now out of fashion?

Do you Grace and Maud, go home to bed after a joyous outing uncontaminated by gin? I sincerely hope so!

Because I would like really worth while things, and not always want to seat the band simply for the pleasure of "going"—always searching for a new thrill.



Elinor Glyn

What is a thrill? It is something which causes a sudden shock to the nerves, either of pleasure or pain. If you experience one, naturally it is stimulating—but if you search for one by doing dangerous things and taking great chances, your sensory nervous system will soon be numbed, and the thrill will have to be procured by stronger measures.

And all this makes old age.

It is quite agreeable as you grow older in years, to retain your youthful flesh and thick hair, and vigor and magnetism, because by then your critical faculties will be so much more polished—and you will be able to select joys with so much more judgment.

The famous old Greek philosopher, Epicurus, said: "He who wastes his youth upon wine and women, is like one who wears out his overcoat in the summer."

He was speaking of young men—but the same idea applies to girls. Gracie and Maud, do not "wear out your overcoats in the summer."

Copyright, 1930, King Features, Synd., Inc.

Animated Greek Statuary is suggested by the new evening gowns of classic cut and mould. A red silk net dress just created by Chanel is distinctly Grecian in line. Crossed shaped bands of the fabric firmly mould both bust and hips. The two-tiered skirt is very long.

Correcting Your Child Wrongly

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

HOW often we hear parents reply to a child's request to perform a certain act with: "You may when you are grown up," or "Not until you are a big girl."

Constance Cameron

We are so prone to consider children as having no judgment, no sense of value, no minds of their own until "they are grown up." And just when does that magic day arrive. I wonder. And how shall we know when it has arrived?

We all know adults who have no judgment, no seeming ability to reason things out logically, or to order their lives to their best advantage. And on the other hand we have all seen examples of straight thinking and excellent judging on the part of children even as young as seven or eight years old, on these matters which we claim they cannot handle until they are grown-up"

Where is the line? What is the age limit?

And, unless we allow children to try to creep a bit in this matter of making decisions, of handling their own affairs within reason, HOW are they going to act when the day of "grown-up-ness" does dawn and liberate them from mother's apron strings?

Like very young children, of course! How can they do otherwise, never having learned to think for themselves.

The time to begin training a child in self-reliance, in making decisions which shall conform to social demands and further his welfare and happiness, is that moment when he first senses a CHOICE, when there is an alternative of any kind! And this will probably occur along about the time he emerges from his bath on the anniversary of his second or third year on earth.

It is so easy to direct the lives of children, to keep them running to us with a flattering, "What shall I do about it?" attitude, even though they are as big as we are. But how much easier their paths are going to be when they take the first step on that "grown-up" day if it isn't all so new, if it is just a continuation of a life-long habit of THINKING independently.

The fact that a boy can carry his own latch key, and that mother no longer sits up to await her daughter's return from a dance, will not be the signal for a liberty that is so new and intoxicating as to smack of license and abandon, IF children have learned long before hand to decide wisely, have made their little mistakes in judgment and found out how to correct them, or suffer the consequences. It will simply be a continuation of a familiar responsibility, and the upholding of a cherished faith in their ability to behave like intelligent human beings.

Without a Chaperone

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

1—Is it proper for a young lady to travel, unchaperoned, quite a distance with a young man?

2—Does it seem improper for a young lady to visit in the same house as a young man whom she has no intention of becoming engaged to, or marrying?

3—A lady, while traveling, does not necessarily have to wear a suit, does she? WONDERING.

"QUITE a distance" is a bit vague, for our ideas vary considerably about what "quite a distance" is. If the trip is in the day time, it would be quite all right, if they are old enough, for the young man and the young woman to go on the train together. But if the trip is for over night, on a Pullman, it mustn't be done.

2. No, there is no reason why they should not visit in the same house if they are visiting a family.

GOWNED IN WHITE PANNE VELVET and wearing a veil of Brussell's lace, Miss Winifred Eagleston, attractive daughter of Mrs. George Worcester Judkins of Beacon st., Brookline, became the bride this afternoon of Robert Bonner Bowler, Jr., of East 72nd st., New York, son of Mrs. Everett Bowler and Mr. Robert B. Bowler. The ceremony took place in the Leslie Lindsey Memorial Chapel of Emmanuel Church, which was decorated for the occasion with two large urns of yellow and lavender flowers and on either side of the altar steps with candelabra. The service was performed by Dean Philemon Sturges and the Rev. Benjamin Washburn. Miss Merrill Griswold (Lillian Lowell) of Marlborough st. was the honor attendant and Miss Ann Barton of Crafts rd., Chestnut Hill; Miss Isabella Lothrop of Clark rd., Brookline; Miss Barbara Bonelli of West Newton and Miss Katherine Wise Bowler of New York, a sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They were frocked in wood violet flat crepe and were wearing felt hats on the same tone. Their bouquets were of yellow roses. Mrs. Judkins chose to be attired for her daughter's wedding in a brown lace gown and hat, and Mrs. Bowler was costumed in royal blue chiffon. Both wore orchid corsages.

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

OBLIGATORY NOT TO FINESSE.

Just as it is obligatory in some situations to finesse, the reverse is true in other and seemingly similar situations. Take for example the above hand In the play of the hand West opens the Queen of Spades. Following this opening, the natural inclination of the average player would be to win with the King in Dummy and finesse the Jack of trumps, figuring that he has everything to gain, should East hold the Queen and nothing to lose should the Queen be held by West as in such case the Queen must make whether or not the finesse be taken. But is this actually the case? See how the Declarer (South) figures the situation when the problem is put up to him.

Failure Points of Bidding Auction. At Auction South bids one Heart originally and all pass. The question may arise here as to whether North with but three Hearts should not take out with one No Tramp. Should he do so, however, and South rest content with the bid, a game hand would be sacrificed as with a Diamond opening by East, but two odd can be made. It would be thus obvious that Auction bidding of this character can have boring unless carried to its logical conclusion as at Contract

Contract: As in Auction, South opens with one Heart, West passing; North makes a forcing take-out of three Clubs, prepared to play the hand possibly at three No Trumps dependent upon South's response to the take-out, or at four Hearts if South can rebid his suit. South responds with three Hearts which North carries to four, quite content now to assist with but three cards of partner's suit, thus carrying the bidding to its logical conclusion

Salient Points of Play

West opens the Queen of Spades Before playing to this lead, Declarer pauses not only to count the hands but to consider the situation presented. His possible losers consist of one Heart, two Diamonds and one Club trick

The losing Diamond could of course be discarded upon his Club in Dummy, but only after such suit is established and the outstanding trumps exhausted. He can see clearly that should he win the first Spade lead with the King in Dummy and then finesse the Jack of Hearts and lose to West that West must normally shift to Diamonds in an attempt to establish If possible one or more Diamond tricks in case his partner East should happen to hold the King of Clubs.

With this defense as the cards actually lay South will fail to go game, consequently South cannot risk the finesse His best play therefore is to leave the Spade King in Dummy and win with the Ace in own hand, following which he must lead two rounds of trumps, the Ace and King, hoping for a 2-2 split. Following this he goes to Clubs and makes his contract

CLUBWOMEN DISCUSS SKIRTS

CLUBWOMEN are against long skirts

It was all in fun, but it registered the sentiments of Massachusetts clubwomen on a most controversial subject.

Sometimes there is "more truth than poetry" in statements made in fun. Whatever the significance clubwomen attending the Club Institute session of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, in a mock meeting of parliamentary procedure, over-ruled a resolution calling for the lengthening of skirts.

Club Institute meets monthly at the Hotel Vendome, and acts as a clearing house for the explanation of club details and matters which do not ordinarily get ironed out in the great mass of club activities

This month's session was given over to parliamentary procedure, presenting a club meeting presided over by Mrs. Robert S. Wallace president of the Wellesley Woman's Club and led in discussion by Mrs. Boyd F. Bowles, parliamentary lecturer

The proceedings afforded the clubwomen considerable amusement, at the same time giving them a chance to exchange views on the all-controversial long-dress problem

No doubt the resolution was inspired by the recent stand taken by New York clubwomen opposing the newly created length of skirts

The mock resolution was to this effect

"That, whereas the abbreviated style of women's skirts has affected the textile industry, and whereas the contour of 99 out of 100 limbs is such as ought to be covered, and, whereas, in view of the recent epidemic of colds, it is urged upon clubwomen attending Club Institute seasons to adopt the skirt length as measuring six inches from the floor."

One woman arose to discredit the resolution on the ground that the long skirts added "10 years to our ages" Another opponent suggested that it was "utterly ridiculous that skirts should sweep the floor again."

She called upon the women to oppose such a measure, since with concerted effort, clubwomen could accomplish anything. She could be heved that clubwomen could sure ly do away with this idea

Another facetious suggestion came from a woman who would confine the lengthening of skirts "to women who weigh over 150 pounds." This was protested against because, as one woman stated, "it insinuates that large women have large legs, and this is not true. The opposite prevails"

When the resolution was finally put to a test and voted upon, it was voted down unanimously. And so Club Institute women went on mock record as opposing long skirts.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB OF MASSACHUSETTS

The battleship is still the foundation of the fighting force; the future of national safety remains with the battleship, not with airplanes.

This, in substance, was the message of Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, to the members and guests of the Women's Republican Club, at a luncheon in his honor in the Copley-Plaza

Introduced by Lieut.-Gov. William S Youngman, after words of tribute paid him by the club president, Mrs. Franklin W. Hobbs, Secretary Adams, launched into a discourse of praise of the navy and its importance to national safety.

"Our mission, the mission of the navy, is to bring to you safety, safety always," he said "The mission of the battleship is defensive. I hope it always will be. Many believe that airplanes hold the safety of the nation in the future and that battleship is a thing of the past. Not so. The battleship is still the foundation of the fighting force.

"It is always true that man is the real element of strength. The problem is not of ship, but of personnel of the navy, and this fact is recognized fully. We are doing all we can to make the tools effective and to increase the efficiency of the fleet

"We are directing our energies to the personnel, for we want to have the best personnel possible. Those 82,000 enlisted men are the foundations. Those eager, ambitious American youngsters who come to us ready for work, ready for hard training. Don't think of them as you see them off duty. Think of them as we see them at the end of a long cruising period, after months of hard and rigid training. We depend upon the youth of the nation."

Admiral Sims, speaking before the Secretary of the Navy, told of navy life when he first went into it, and from what he said it wasn't a bed of roses. He compared the efficiency of target practice of old and modern times.

He spoke of his reports on the inefficiency of gunnery when he was in China, and how he had to resort to insubordination to get results. He said his reports were either suppressed or destroyed because he flayed the uselessness of target practice as he saw it then He praised present-day naval gunnery.

Admiral Sims said that the navy had reformed itself on the liquor question, for it was easily discovered that rum and gunning didn't go together. The success of the gunnery was due to the initiative and competitive standards of the boys themselves.

Pres Samuel W. Stratton, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, speaking on "Civil Aviation," said that the situation in Europe was a better one than that in America, and that both were making rapid strides in a great field.

At the head table, in addition to the club president and the speakers, there were Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. William M. Butler, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Miss Ada Comstock, Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, Amos L. Taylor, Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder, Mr. and Mrs Robert Homans, and Mrs. Edward Warren. Mrs. M. H. Gulesian, music chairman of the club, presented a delightful musical program

Woolen Frock Is the Choice of Smart Dressers for Early Day Wear at This Season

HAVE you one of these delightfully simple frocks in your current wardrobe which you can don the first thing in the morning with the assurance that it will be quite perfect for shopping, the club, or an informal luncheon date? If you haven't you are missing one of the best fashion bets of the season Such a frock as this is not in the sports category nor does it have the formality which goes for afternoon. It is pleasantly in-between.

Perhaps you would choose your "in-between frock" in a soft wool crepe like the one sketched here. It would have the same subtle formality of detail together with the tailored simplicity demanded of such a frock. The skirt would be neither long nor short and the tone could well be the lovely aspargus green which colors this dress.

ACCESSORIES of black or a darker tone of green make a striking contrast. Here black has been used for the smartly brimmed felt hat for the matching leather belt, bag, and flower laced in white- for the back one-button gloves also laced in white and for the contrasting trim on the green leather shoes.

A monotone tweed of sheer texture or any of the new jerseys would be as suitable a choice as the wool crepe chosen for this model. And as for a color choice, you no doubt will be happy to choose some of the lighter shades that are now appearing in resort wear—such a pleasant change after several months of winter tones

Add Handbag to Match Your Beret

THE informal beret becomes a bit formalized by the addition of matching bag In chenille mounted on amber frame with an overarm strap, the handbag matched a beret knitted of the same material. This is another evidence of the increasing importance given to the handbag as a part of the general ensemble.

The necessary handbag is ensembled with shoes, with scarf, with costume jewelry, with belt, and often with both hat and scarf

Tucking Is a Boon to Silk, Wool Frocks

IN a season of subtle style details, tucking is a boon not only to the silk mode, but also to the frock of wool.

Vionnet uses tucking as the only trimming on a sport frock of rose-colored jersey. This trimming is enough, however, for it appears in a smart pattern of squares that covers the entire waist.

CABIN AGAIN IN POST AS CHAIRMAN

By FRANK R. MELOON, Financial Editor

Another Massachusetts banker is added to the long list holding dominant positions in New York by election of Charles H. Sabin as chairman of the board of directors of the Guaranty Trust Co. Mr. Sabin, who was born in Williamstown, succeeds James S. Alexander, resigned. Mr. Sabin has been president since 1924. He was chairman from 1921 until May, 1929 when the guaranty was merged with the National Bank of Commerce.

Clifford S. Anderson of the executive committee of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts is the best big leader on record in opposition to the newly proposed plan of corporate taxation, as recommended by the special Bay State commission. He says the majority of Massachusetts corporations will complaint it. He says that under the proposed system corporations would not be able to predict from year to year if their tax bill would be a variable item depending on the volume of business. Under the present system, they can eliminate waste, closely estimate, to be set aside for taxes. He be-

Representative William M. Morrow of the special committee on taxation filed a dissenting report with features of value when raised in State Street circles. He ggested limiting entirely the tax n income from savings bank deposits and co-operative bank accounts. "Surely the Bay State can ill afford to encourage its citizens' thrift," was the way one ate Street broker expressed it.

The taxation "experts" throughout the nation take a dim view of ndent child" exemption at the ts when many children are struggling through normal schools or olleges. This is certainly a poor way to encourage the spread of ducation.

Speaking of education, we stated this column a year ago that it eemed to us as if the efforts to duce highway accidents were in any instances misdirected, and at education in this line ought to gin in lower grades and in hools. Now we notice an "exert," after studying the situation for a year, makes a report to the same effect.

Several months ago we pointed at that 14 years had elapsed since e first big railroad merger in ew England, with the project still held up. We stated then that we saw a likelihood of early big railroad ergers. William J. Cunningham, professor of transportation at Harvard University, in an article in the ew York Evening Post financial supplement, states it is probable nother decade or more will have assed before a plan for consolidaon of railroads into a limited umber of systems is executed. The r. C. C. plan is likely to have ew objectors than supporters, believes. He thinks even those systems or communities that have een awarded a large part of that hich they sought, find additions nd subtractions not to their liking. New England the proposal for ew regional systems satisfies neither those who consider the idea one regional system nor those o believe in trunk line affiliations. ossibilities of economies in consolidation, he declares, are usually ve-emphasized.

Preliminary reports show that ass 1 railroads earned net operating income for 1929 amount to $1,252,000,000, increase of $80,000,000 over 1928, according to R. Ingalton, president of the American Railway Association. Total compares with $1,193,000,000 in 1928, and ith $1,231,000,000 in previous reord year 1926. Dividends for 1929 totaled about $6,357,000,000, gainst $6,177,000,000 in 1928 and $6,000,000,000 in 1926.

Larry Fisher's Motor Dream Comes True

Evolves Unique Sixteen-Cylinder Car; Auto Revival Coming

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Don't worry about the ability of our automobile leaders to pull the industry vigorously out of the doldrums. The indications are that within a month, sentiment will undergo very marked improvement and that Spring sales will exceed present expectations.

B. C. Forbes

The New York Automobile Show, which opens tomorrow, cannot fail to attract great attention. There will be no lack of novel exhibits. Parisian dressmakers are no more enterprising in creating new fashions and new designs than are America's automobile manufacturers. They never stand still. What was good enough for one year is not good enough for the next year. They do not spend their millions on engineering and other research without getting returns. Their vigilantly-lived-up to motto is "Excelsior!"

• • •

One unique car, marking a new advance in the science of motor building, will be shown the world's first 16-cylinder automobile, a Cadillac.

Nothing beyond an eight-cylinder car is being offered in any country at this time. Cadillac brought out the first eight-cylinder motor fully 15 years ago. Packard later went one better by developing a 12-cylinder product, but the industry was not as far advanced then as it is today, and the 12 was discontinued. The world's highest priced car, Rolls-Royce, has only six cylinders.

There's an interesting personal story behind this flight to a 16-cylinder product.

It so happened that one of the famous seven Fisher brothers, Lawrence P., is both a mechanical and an artist. It was he who recently paid a fortune for the Duke of Sutherland's historic full-length portrait of the Duchess of Sutherland. Larry Fisher's home contains priceless art objects, furniture, furnishings, etc. He has a passionate love of the beautiful, the exquisite, the artistic.

To this is wedded a very practical knowledge of mechanical engineering, a knowledge which he had its birth at the blacksmith's anvil. Those who should know declare that Larry Fisher is as strong as an ox—as is the best blacksmith in America.

Not long after he was elected president of Cadillac in 1925, he began dreaming of an ideal automobile, one embodying the acme of beauty with the acme of quality produced with a care and precision unfettered by any consideration of cost. His ambition was to express in the form of an automobile his soul as an artist.

The unique Cadillac 16 is the fulfillment of this long-cherished dream.

• • •

In design it breaks away from established lines. It is fashioned somewhat after the graceful, long-horned town-broughams of our forefathers, yet strikes an extremely modernistic note. Each car is custom-built.

Although deliveries to the public will not begin until after March 15, and although the price at this writing has not been fixed, I am told, are already pouring in.

• • •

Another interesting bit of news: H. J. Klinger, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, writes me that Chevrolet sales will be "substantially reduced" tomorrow (Saturday). He says:

"On Jan. 4 Chevrolet will announce a new car with many worth-while improvements, including a smart, extremely Fisher bodies, larger tires, fully enclosed brakes, greater horsepower and several other items. Prices will be substantially reduced. We made and sold over 2,300,000 new autos in 1929."

At both ends of the price range, therefore, the show will offer interesting exhibits.

• • •

The new Ford is not on view at the Automobile Show, as Mr. Ford is not a member of the National Chamber of Commerce, but it is now on exhibition elsewhere. It, too, has been improved and reduced in price.

• • •

Most other makers have likewise announced, not price reductions, but price increases. Apparently only low-priced cars are being cut and others either maintained or advanced in price—an unusual circumstance.

• • •

You will be glad to know that general sentiment has become distinctly more cheerful in New York, especially in financial circles. Automobile buying won't stop.

CURB MARKET SHARES ARE PUT HIGHER

New York, Jan 3—Curb market shares crept irregularly higher in dull and uncertain trading today. Short covering on yesterday's decline sent the market moderately higher in the early trading, and after a period of faltering toward midday, leading shares generally turned upward in the early afternoon.

With nothing in the days news save a few favorable dividend actions and the expected ease in small money rates, were still inclined to keep close to shore.

Utilities were generally steady to firm. American & Foreign Power and Electric Bond & Share were in fair demand, selling up a point or two. The Electric Power Associates issues rallied briskly on announcement of initial quarterly dividends of 25 cents.

Fox Theaters A, which dropped to a new low at 2¼ yesterday, rallied to above 8 on short covering. American Cigar, another weak spot yesterday, rallied more than 5 points.

In the radio shares Dubilier opened a shade higher.

Further operations in the aviation shares, Fokker making moderate headway.

To provide additional quarters required in its rapidly expanding business, the New York Curb Exchange, second largest stock market in the country, has completed plans for a new building on its plot in Trinity pl., New York city. It is expected that actual construction will start within the next 30 days and in all probability the new exchange building will be completed within a year's time. It will be equipped with every modern facility for business efficiency, and will be 14 stories high.

STARRETT ON BOSTON LIST

L. S. Starrett Co. 150,000 shares of no-par common stock have been listed on the Boston Stock Exchange. Since split-up of the common stock, 9½ for 1, in July, last, the issue has been listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The Starrett company this year will observe its 50th anniversary as the "world's largest independent manufacturer of precision tools." Until July last, stock of the company was closely held by the Starrett family where control still rests. In July, 50,000 shares were sold to the public at $36 per share.

L. S. Starrett distributes its some 2500 different items of basic character through more than 5000 dealers in United States and Canada and in a dozen foreign countries. Earnings have been largest with peak net income in the war years. In 1918, net of $3,000,000 constituted a high point. This was equivalent to approximately $11.43 a share on the common stock now outstanding. The trend has been upwards since 1922 when net of $313,686 was equivalent to $1.84 per present common share.

Earnings for the first six months of 1929 were equivalent to $2.94 a share on the common, and it is estimated that for the full year the figure is the vicinity of $6 per share of common. Although regular dividend is $2 per share, 25 cents extra was paid last month as "extra" which may become a permanent feature given indication of current earnings. Yield on current price around 34 is approximately 5.9 per cent. On basis of dividend, yield would be about 5.8 per cent. The price is less than 3.7 times earnings.

Oliphant Study of Business Cheerful

Jas. H. Oliphant & Co. say: "Because annual forecasts are given out for popular consumption, there is occasionally felt some doubt whether opinions are genuine. According to reports both General Electric and du Pont have recently made surveys just in course of business and wholly for company purposes. These have therefore more significance. Understanding is that General Electric divisions and districts reporting separately forecast optimistic and suggesting recovery in business reasonably soon. With contracts all over the country these companies are in position to judge conditions exceptionally well."

FINANCIAL NEWS OF THE WORLD

BONDS OF HIGH GRADE MOST IN DEMAND

By JOHN L. COOLEY

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—A mild investment inquiry served today to keep bonds at about the levels attained on yesterday's small advance. The market failed to attract enough attention to add much to these gains, and the appearance of a few early issues gave the list a slightly irregular appearance.

The bulk of the trading was again in big-grade issues, which made little change. Turnovers on the rails and utilities, where the best buying is concentrated, were still small. Only in scattered instances did the industrial group show life.

Interest rates remained firm during the early hours, but funds were plentiful in the call market at the renewal rate of 6 per cent and an easier undertone was evident. The 6% and 5 per cent charges on time loans were regarded as nominal and only small transactions were reported. Bankers acceptance charges next week when the effect of the year-end settlements has worn off.

In the rail section fluctuations were of minor consequence, gains and losses were evenly divided, with most of the best loans holding virtually stationary. Convertibles turned over slowly.

United States Governments ruled steady, while foreign bonds again improved. Obligations in this department are for the most part well under their 1929 highs and dealers believe that the expected revival of the market as a whole will bring out considerable support for these loans with liberal yields.

The $50,000,000 issue of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., 10-year 6 per cent convertible debentures, to be offered by Halsey, Stuart & Co. and a syndicate, is to be marketed at 99½. The bonds will carry stock purchase warrants in addition to their conversion feature.

General Baking's Sales Are Up 7 P. C.

New York, Jan. 3—Sales of General Baking Corp. for 1929 approximated $50,000,000, an increase of about 7 per cent over the preceding year, F. H. Ecker, president of the board, states. "During the past 10 weeks of industrial uncertainty the sales increased, the rate of 200,000 loaves of bread a week," Mr. Frazier states. "Judging from preliminary figures, the year just ended resulted in a somewhat better sale increase than is usual. The company now is the largest baker of bread in the world."

Investment Trusts Under Actual Value

In the interval since November 13, the day on which stocks started in general roads their lows, investment trusts have been able to figure out where their stood. The broad October-November liquidating movement swept investment trust shares where they were listed on the New York Stock Exchange, New York Curb and Boston Stock Exchange to prices well below their break-up value.

Initial Dividend by Water Service

Directors of Community Water Service Co. declared a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent on the common stock, payable in common stock. This is the initial dividend on the common and is payable Feb. 1 to holders of record Jan. 15.

McCrory Stock Is Acquired by Big Banking Group

McCrory Stores Corp. stock owned by J. G. McCrory, president, has been acquired by a group of bankers headed by Merrill, Lynch & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. Representatives of the new interests will be placed on the board of directors, but no change in the management is contemplated. Mr. McCrory reports for 1929 sales were "substantially larger" than for any previous year and that the company closed the year free of bank loans.

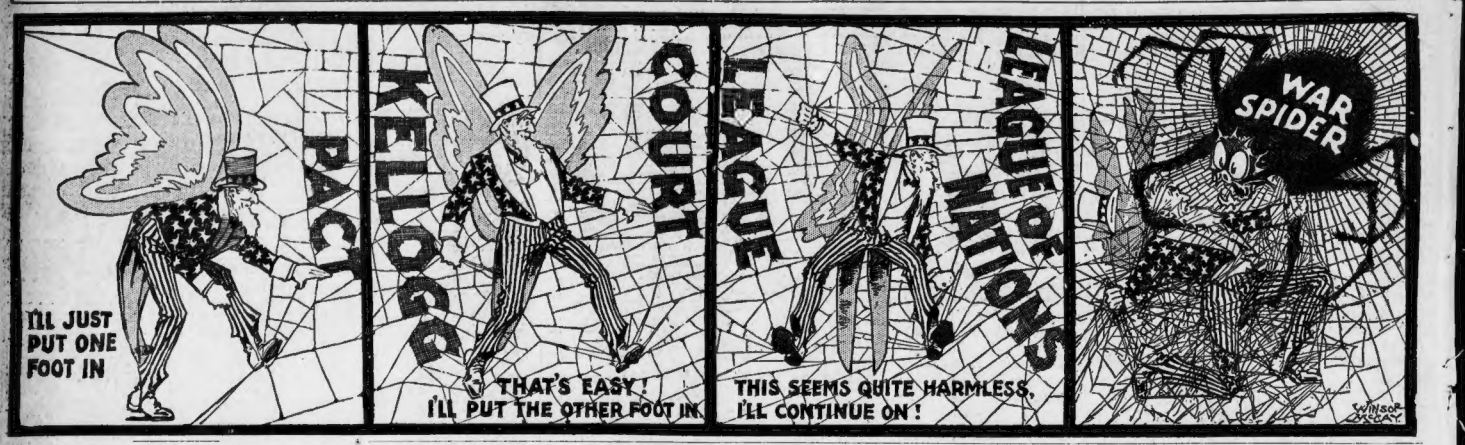
BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

European Nations Are Going to War as Surely as Sun Rises; Why Must We Risk Going with Them to Satisfy Self Seekers?

SAD STORY OF THE HUNGRY SPIDER AND THE FOOLISH FAT FLY



AFTER his return to England from his visit to America, speaking at a tea in the House of Commons, Great Britain's Premier, J. Ramsay MacDonald, said:

"They (the United States) certainly are not going to co-operate with us as allies bound by formal ties. They certainly are not going to commit themselves to European policy and mix themselves up in European messes.

"No President of the United States is going to go back upon their wise traditional policy of keeping out of European messes.

"It is perfectly evident at the same time that wherever and whenever there is a humane flag flying over the world the thought and heart of America will be there.

"We have never been able to say the United States has failed in support of any great humane cause."

(From "Time," December 23rd, 1929)

AS a gentle overture to January's five-power naval conference, the British Foreign Office issued a "White Paper" last week. Bearing the signature of Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs Arthur Henderson, it was strongly reminiscent of the Quixotic reasoning of James Ramsay MacDonald in his more elfin moments. Discussing that bugaboo of Anglo-U. S. naval agreement, the question of freedom of the seas and rights of neutrals in war time, the paper read:

"The whole situation has been built up on the assumption that there is nothing illegitimate in the use of war as an instrument of national policy, and as a necessary corollary that position and the rights of neutrals are entirely independent of the circumstances of any war which may be in progress.

"This assumption is no longer valid as regards States which are members of the League of Nations and parties to the Kellogg Pact... in other words, as between members of the League there can be no neutral rights, because there can be no neutrals."

This reasoning brought a loud rumble of protest from the square jaw of Hon. William Edgar Borah, Chairman of the U. S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"If the British interpretation of the Kellogg Pact means that henceforth there shall be no neutrals," he boomed, portentously, "it necessarily follows that we and all the other signatories become belligerents. Under these circumstances the pact is mis-named. It is not a peace pact. It is a war pact."

"The British conception of the matter," said Chairman Fred Albert Britten of the U. S. House Naval Affairs Committee, "is silly."

CHAIRMAN BRITTEN, of the House Naval Affairs Committee, declares that the British conception of the Kellogg Pact matter is silly.

It is not silly. It is serious.

Chairman Britten is silly if he does not recognize the seriousness of a situation, which becomes more serious with every step of ours tending to identify ourselves with the European entanglements which Washington warned us to avoid.

It ought to be obvious by this time, even to the self-advertising statesmen, who want to make themselves prominent internationally, even at the expense of their country, that the situation of the United States in these various pacts and compacts is not determined merely by the opinion of the United States, but by the opinion of the other parties to the pacts and compacts.

In other words, the meaning of the phraseology of these agreements, the purpose and intent of the agreements, are determined by the decision of the majority of the parties to the agreements.

And when the United States enters into such a compact, the meaning of the compact and the future course of the United States under the compact, are not going to be decided by the United States, but by the European nations which constitute a majority of the signatories.

Hence the danger of these compacts to our peace and our independence, a danger which increases geometrically with every agreement that we sign.

The Kellogg Pact seemed innocent enough, it put the United States in the position of a fly that places one foot on the fly-paper. The second foot follows and in a short time the fly is hopelessly entangled.

What need is there for the United States to get into these entanglements at all?

Why cannot this country continue to mind its own business in the way that it did so successfully to itself and to the world before the late war?

Why can it not continue to abide by the injunctions of Washington, which have guided us in safety and prosperity throughout all the years of our glorious national development?

Why do we have to risk so much to satisfy the vanity of self-seeking, self-promoting statesmen?

The European nations are going to war as surely as the sun rises.

Why must we go with them?

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

IF wishes were horses—every woman would wish for an automobile. And if wishes were wives—every man would wish for a miracle-woman.

Consciously or unconsciously, every man is looking for that pluperfect Being, a non-interfering wife.

You know the kind I mean! A wife where chatter won't interfere with his reading of the newspaper at breakfast, and whose love of an argument won't interfere with his digestion at dinner.

Whose religious principles won't interfere with his Sunday golf—and whose suspicion won't interfere with his Saturday night poker-game.

Man is a peace-loving animal and what he wants is a wife whose social ambitions and dancing dates won't interfere with his evening's rest—and whose nightly questionnaire won't interfere with his sleep.

The kind whose boiler-plate housekeeping won't interfere with his comfort or his right to put his feet on the chairs—and whose espionage won't interfere with his little amusements.

A wife whose sense of humor won't upset his amour propre—and whose Scotch conscience won't interfere with his good times.

A woman whose scruples won't put a blight on his little bachelor-habits—and whose prejudices won't frighten off all of his bachelor friends.

Whose opinions won't interfere with his expressing his honest opinion of her—and whose vanity won't interfere with his admiration of other women or his monopoly of the bathroom mirror.

Whose opinions won't interfere with his infallible deductions—and whose mental brilliancy won't interfere with his "superiority-complex."

A NON-INTERFERING wife! That's what every man wants! A wife, like his watch, always handy when she is wanted, and never in the way when she isn't wanted.

All he asks of a woman is that she love him a little, trust him a lot—and LET HIM ALONE! But that, my heartie, is making for a miracle!

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

THENCE it is handed in turn to the second maxillipedes, the first maxillipedes, the second maxillae and first maxillae, all appendages which do but little chewing of the food, and finally it comes to a pair of powerful cutting and grinding jaws, the mandibles.

H. G. Wells

So the food undergoes a thorough mastication, and only when it has been finely minced by this living canteen of appendages is it allowed to enter the mouth.

From the mouth a short gullet leads to the stomach. This stomach is not only a digesting bag as ours is; it is a second mincing machine.

It is provided with a beautiful but complicated set of muscles and hard levers of chitin, the gastric mill which brings about the gnashing together of three powerful teeth. By these teeth the food is reduced to pulp, and at the same time it is acted upon by a digestive juice which oozes forward from the so-called liver.

And here let us interpolate a warning about the names applied to these various organs. That part of the lobster's body which is called his abdomen is obviously unlike our abdomens; it is differently made, and it contains different structures.

Nevertheless, the pioneers of comparative anatomy, men with nimble hands and clumsy tongues, could think of no new word to attach to this highly characteristic structure. They called it abdomen, and abdomen it has remained to this day.

Similarly with the lobster's inside. His stomach does not correspond to our stomachs, and his liver—so called because it is a large gland communicating by means of a narrow tube with the beginning of his intestine—is utterly distinct, both in its minute structure and in its working, from our own.

When we compared a fish to a mammal we found that both organisms had on the whole the same set of organs, working on the whole in the same way.

We can speak, without any fear of misleading ourselves, of the liver or stomach or spleen of a fish, because these organs in a fish are essentially the same as our own.

Right down to Amphioxus there is a liver. But a lobster is put together in a different way. He has no spleen. His "stomach" is differently made from ours and does different things. He has no organ that corresponds either in structure or working to our livers, and we have no organ corresponding to his.

It would be clearest and best to invent a new name for every organ in the lobster's body, but unhappily this has not been done; we shall have here to follow the general usage and apply the old terms, remembering, however, as we do so that every one of them is a misleading misfit, borrowed from an alien organism.

The lobster's "liver" is an enormous, tubular gland, manufacturing every one of the digestive ferments that have yet been discovered in the animal; in his respect it corresponds to our salivary, gastric, intestinal, and pancreatic glands combined.

It also stores glycogen and fat, resembling our liver in this respect at least. But besides these substances it differs from all our organs in storing lime; the lobster, being enclosed in a rigid armoring, has to moult from time to time so that he may grow, and the calcium salts required for forming a new shell are stored in readiness in the liver.

In addition before each moult, some limy matter is absorbed from certain regions of the shell, making it easier for the lobster to get out of, and allowing him to store additional lime-reserves in the form of the so-called "crab's eyes"—concretions on the walls of the stomach, afterwards used up in strengthening the new armor after the moult.

This gland lacks the most characteristic feature of a vertebrate liver, the portal vein, and is in no sense a scrutineer of blood from the bowels. Lastly, it resembles our intestine, for food actually travels into its ducts and tubules to be absorbed.

From the gastric mill the food is passed into a smaller chamber, provided with an elaborate apparatus of sieves and filters, where it is sorted into two fractions.

The coarser particles pass into a long, cylindrical intestine, whence much of their nutritious matter is absorbed and whence their residue is ultimately voided.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

HELEN WILLS' marriage is very important to Helen and to other girls who hope to star in those old aisle Olympics.

Helen did not promise to obey and her husband did not endow her with his worldly goods.

There was no obedience and there was no endowment. Which is very correct. Marriage should be a straight life policy.

Marriage ceremonies are in the same catalog as our first Constitution. Subject to repairs.

The reformers have now rewritten and polished up every famous document except Gray's Elegy and Lydia Pinkham's original prescription.

When you clip the word "obey" out at the altar you are merely postponing the quarrel.

When a bridegroom fails to publicly announce that he intends to shower his worldly goods, chattels and salary on the mushing bride he is setting the best man a bad example.

If they are going to change all the documents in the world, why not start with the lease?

Just leave out the morbid reference to rent, gas and electric lights.

Brevity is the soul of schedules, but there are some beautiful ceremonies that should not be taken in capsule form.

We understand that the Soviet has reduced marriage to the least common denominator. The bewildered couple just walk up to an official desk and spill the ink.

At the other end of the room is the divorce desk. You can purchase a souvenir separation on the way out.

No woman is ever going to obey her husband anyway. But, if it fools the bridegroom, why not allow him to be happy for that afternoon?

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Thoughts while strolling: Something cheerful about red-checkered tablecloths. They suggest cream gravy and hot biscuits. Frieda Hempel's beauty parlor. A department store features a fat-reducing parlor. Adele Rogers St. John, who deserted Hollywood for New York.

Those striking brunettes with a plume of white hair. Rose O'Neill, creator of the Kewpies. Cabmen with empurpled faces who rise to clap heavily gloved hands—like so many flapping crows. The dreamy reverie of book store clerks. Ben Ames Williams, a Jackson, O., boy, who made good in the city.

Janitors who droop all day in basement doorways. What is so cheery as a crackling fire in an open fireplace? Earl Carroll's chauffeur is a former actor. The man who owns the Ritz barber-shop is named Ritz. No relation. Just coincidence. Clair Maxwell of Life.

What became of the peacock tail table fan for shooing flies? Hungry looking children who stand at the "eats" windows—like a circle of cats around a rat hole. Those romantic Italian waiters. Who work all winter in stuffy table d'hotes. And set off in the spring to roam the hills of Anacapri.

The former comedienne—Edna Leedom. Now the wife of a millionaire. The waiting line at the news reel theater. Beauty parlor sign: "Nicotine stains removed in five minutes." At last—a spat shop. Keats Speed, of the Sun. Smart looking ladies in green. Young man in revolt—and wearing Latin Quarter hats.

Chubby apoplectic young men who sport lightly pinned collars. And dinky mustaches. Those bloods with a gift for wearing mufflers with a dash. Mine always resembles a discarded sock. Leslie Howard, the English actor, idling in front of the Lambs.

George Arliss and Booth Tarkington bear a resemblance somehow. Those cobwebby theatrical studios that lodge in the attics of old Broadway buildings. Jas. R. Quirk and Mae Allison. A man walks across 7th ave. at 3 o'clock in the afternoon in a dressing gown.

A westerner in New York may become totally absorbed by the metropolis but I have never known one who did not, no matter how long he lived here, call a station a depot.

People grow old gracefully in New York. They are rarely shunted in the proverbial chimney corner. Withered ladies with faces and hands like old ivory as well as gentlemen with a dodder are seen at theaters, in cafes and now and then at night clubs. It does not seem to me any other city shows them such respectful deference. They are not coddled, but made to feel they are actually welcome. And I believe they are.

Nothing makes people feel the sting of age and its cold isolation like solicitous attention. They nurse the same rebellion as cripples who are helped about. I know a grandaddykins of 82 who puts on a dinner coat and squires six 22-year-old niece to dinner once a week. And, bless his heart, he always wears a white carnation in his coat lapel.

One of life's little illusions: Many of the Bond st. looking spats worn by the drawing room lions are manufactured in Portsmouth, O.
